

VERGILIAN BIBLIOGRAPHY

Author(s): A. G. McKay

Source: Vergilius (1959-), 1979, No. 25 (1979), pp. 46-60

Published by: The Vergilian Society

Stable URL: <https://www.jstor.org/stable/41592119>

JSTOR is a not-for-profit service that helps scholars, researchers, and students discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content in a trusted digital archive. We use information technology and tools to increase productivity and facilitate new forms of scholarship. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org

Your use of the JSTOR archive indicates your acceptance of the Terms & Conditions of Use, available at <https://about.jstor.org/terms>

JSTOR

The Vergilian Society is collaborating with JSTOR to digitize, preserve and extend access to Vergilius (1959-)

VERGILIAN BIBLIOGRAPHY

The present survey of Vergilian scholarship is the seventeenth in the Vergilius series. Classical World 68:1 (1974), published in association with the Vergilian Society, Inc., contains my 'Recent Work on Vergil: A Bibliographical Survey, 1964-73.' The survey has been reprinted, along with earlier surveys compiled by George E. Duckworth, in The Classical World Bibliography of Vergil (ed. Walter Donlan), Garland Publishing, Inc., New York & London, 1978. Subsequent surveys have appeared in Vergilius 19 (1973), 20 (1974), 21 (1975), 22 (1976), 23 (1977), and 24 (1978).

The editor of 'Vergilian Bibliography' welcomes offprints of articles and bibliographical notices for inclusion in the annual Vergilius review. Address correspondence to Professor A. G. McKay, Department of Classics, McMaster University, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada L8S 4M2.

The celebration of the bimillennium of the publication of the Georgics was marked most impressively by Italian scholars under the aegis of the Istituto Universitario Orientale in Naples (17-19 December, 1975). The memorial volume entitled Atti del Convegno Virgiliano Bimillenario delle Georgiche (Napoli 1977) will be abbreviated throughout as ACVBG.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

1. A. G. McKay, 'Vergilian Bibliography (1977-78),' Vergilius 24 (1978) 62-76.

2. J. Ernst, 'La bibliographie classique: jugement et perspectives,' REL 56, 1978 (1979) 413-25.

Juliette Ernst pleads for continuation of her monumental L'Année Philologique and quotes Georgics 3, 284-5 at the close: 'deux vers de Virgile qui paraissent refléter fort bien notre sentiment:

sed fugit interea, fugit irreparabile tempus, singula dum capti circumvectamur amore.'

TEXTS, EDITIONS AND TRANSLATIONS

3. A. Grillone, 'Le Georgiche in Egitto,' ACVBG 401-4.

4. Heinz Hofman, 'New Editions of Vergil,' Acta Classica 20 (1977) 215-21.

5. E. Paratore (ed.), L. Canali (transl.), Virgilio, Eneide Vol. I (libri I-II), Vol. II (libri III-IV). (Milano 1978).

6. G. Stégen, Virgile, Le livre I de l'Énéide. Texte latin avec un plan détaillé et un commentaire critique et explicatif. (Namur 1975).

7. John Richmond, James Henry of Dublin. (Dublin 1976).

8. Giuseppina Barabino, 'Testo ed esegesi vergiliana in Nonio Marcello,' ACVBG 137-47.

9. Aldo Bartolucci, 'Cornelianus, editore e interprete di Virgilio,' ACVBG 167-77.

10. Leopoldo Gamberale, 'Autografi virgiliani e movimento arcaizzante,' ACVBG 359-67.

11. Ulrich Schindel, Die lateinische Figurenlehren des 5. bis 7. Jahrhunderts und Donats Vergil-Kommentar. (Göttingen 1975).

12. B. Munk Olsen, 'Vergil i middelalderen. Vergil-håndskrifter og Vergilflorilegier fra det 9. til begyndelsen af det 13 århundrede,' Museum Tusculanum 32-33 (1978) 81-116.

13. J. Perret, 'Superflua demere. L'Énéide devant ses premiers éditeurs,' P. Grimal, J. Préaux, R. Schilling, P. Flobert (edd.), Varron, grammaire antique et stylistique latine: Recueil offert à Jean Collart (Paris 1978) 405-11.

14. Felicita Portalupi, 'Contributo alla critica di Virgilio nel II secolo,' ACVBG 471-87.

15. Aldo Setaioli, 'Filoni interpretativi nel'esegesi tardo-antica delle Georgiche,' ACVBG 521-47.

16. D. E. Hill, 'What sort of translation of Virgil do we need?' G&R 25 (1978) 59-68.

Grillone treats Pack (Roger A. Pack, The Greek and Latin Literary Texts from Greco-Roman Egypt (Michigan 1965²) nos. 2938, 2937, 2936. Hofman extols Mynors' OCT (1969) and Johannes and Maria Götte (Buc., Georg. Catalepton) and Karl Beyer (Vergil-Viten) (München 1970). Richmond's brief account of James Henry, revered for his buoyant, however eccentric Aeneida, concentrates on his life rather than on his role as Vergilian scholar. Schindel makes an original and worthwhile contribution to Donatian scholia and to the history of scholarship. Hill suggests that translators of Vergil should 'combine the self-effacing care of a Lattimore with the annotated approach of the new Prentice-Hall series' to find the recipe for success. He argues against abandoning the aim of real fidelity too easily and supplies specimen versions of his own (A. 1, 291-6; 2. 1-39) in prose and verse.

APPENDIX VERGILIANA

17. I. Ascione, 'Aetna, v. 3,' Vichiana 5 (1976) 128-32.

18. I. Ascione, 'Studi recenti sull'Aetna, p. I (vv. 3-323),' Vichiana 5 (1976) 258-89.

19. I. Ascione, 'Studi recenti sull'Aetna, p. II (vv. 324-619),' Vichiana 7 (1978) 142-64.

20. F.R.D. Goodyear, 'The Copa: a text and commentary,' BICS 24 (1977) 117-31.

21. M. Rodríguez-Pantoja, 'La métrica del Moretum pseudo vergiliana,' Habis 7 (1976) 125-157.

22. Armando Salvatore, 'Echi catulliani nel "Culex",' Vichiana 7 (1978) 38-51.

23. Henrikas Zaboulis, 'Appendix Vergiliana: Dirae,' Philologus 122 (1978) 207-23.

Goodyear's text is exemplary; the commentary is crisp and magisterial. Zaboulis assigns Dirae (two poems combined) to Valerius Cato. Lydia is a youthful exercise; Dirae, his final effort, or the work of another neoteric.

ECLOGUES: GENERAL STUDIES

24. A. J. Boyle (ed.), Ancient Pastoral: Ramus Essays on Greek and Roman Pastoral Poetry (Berwick 1975). Rev: Edna Jenkinson, CR 28 (1978) 63-6; R.G.M. Nisbet JRS 68 (1978) 231-2; J. Van Sickle, RFIC 105 (1977) 194-201.

25. A. J. Boyle, The Eclogues of Virgil (Melbourne 1976). Rev: R.G.M. Nisbet, JRS 68 (1978) 231-2; Kenneth Quinn, AUMLA 48 (1977) 351-3.

26. R. Coleman (ed.), Vergil: Eclogues (Cambridge 1977). Rev: Jasper

Griffin, CR 28 (1978) 245-7; A.G. McKay, Phoenix 32 (1978) 169-70; J. Perret, REL 55 (1977) 492-3.

27. E. De Saint-Denis, 'Encore l'architecture des "Bucoliques" virgiliennes,' RPh (1976) 7-21.

28. Ernst A. Schmidt, Zur Chronologie der Eklogen Vergils (Heidelberg 1974). Rev: Colin Hardie, CR 27 (1977) 276-7.

29. John Van Sickle, The Design of Virgil's Bucolics. (Roma 1978).

Hardie's review suggests that it is a useful exercise to rethink E. 8, 6-13 (with Bowersock) as an address to Octavian, 'though Ajax's sponge sticks in the throat (276). Van Sickle's study provides a fresh synthesis of numerical pattern, style, genre, theme, and character and argues that an evolutionary poetics is the basis of design. 'The plan and the theoretical import of Virgil's book were perceived as something new and a challenge in poetics.' (10). Van Sickle approaches his ideal of "well-tempered criticism" and his arguments for 'a highly artful and unified whole' require critical and respectful attention by scholars.

ECLOGUES: INDIVIDUAL POEMS

30. Virginio Cremona, 'Distrazioni critiche e unità poetica della prima bucolica,' ACVBG 287-308.

31. O. Pasqualetti, 'Sull'orditura tematica della prima ecloga di Virgilio,' Didactica Class. Gand. 17-18 (1977-78) 208-14.

32. Benedetto Riposati, 'Un ripensamento su Buc. I, 14-15,' ACVBG 497-503.

33. Ciro Monteleone, L'Egloga Quarta da Virgilio a Costantino. Critica del testo e ideologia. (Manduria 1975). Rev: Colin Hardie, CR 27 (1977) 277-8.

34. Edwin L. Brown, 'Damoetas' Riddle Euclid's Theorem 1. 32,' Vergilius 24 (1978) 25-31.

35. R.G.M. Nisbet, 'Virgil's Fourth Eclogue: Easterners and Westerners,' BICS 25 (1978) 59-78.

36. Vinzenz Buchheit, 'Der Dichter als Mystagoge (Vergil, eccl. 5),' ACVBG 203-19.

37. Étienne Evrard, 'Quelques observations sur la 5^e Bucolique de Virgile,' LEC 46 (1978) 327-38.

38. Guy Lee, 'A reading of Vergil's fifth Eclogue,' PCPhS 203 (1977) 62-70.

39. H. MacL. Currie, 'Virgil, Eclogue 6, 13ff., and the Numa-Egeria legend,' LCM 3 (1978) 289-91.

40. G. Lieberg, 'L'armonia delle sfere in Virgilio? Osservazioni sull'epilogo della sesta ecloga,' ACVBG 405-20.

41. J.-P. Chausserie-Laprée, 'Les "constructions" de la "Septième Bucolique",' Varron, grammaire antique etc. (cf. 13) 353-64.

42. R. J. Tarrant, 'The Addressee of Virgil's Eighth Eclogue,' HSCP 82 (1978) 197-9.

43. G. W. Bowersock, 'The Addressee of the Eighth Eclogue: A Response,' HSCP 82 (1978) 201-2.

Riposati interprets E. 1, 14-15: 'Qui, infatti, tra i folti noccioli, lasciò ora due gemelli, speranza del grege, ah!, dopo averli partoriti sulla nuda strada'. Brown argues that Damoetas' riddle (E. 3. 104-5) depends on the elements of mathematics (cf. Donatus, Life of Vergil, 48) and suggests a literary route by which the name 'Mopsus' received its first currency in pastoral (E. 5 & 8). Nisbet notices Eastern elements (oracles, Jewish eschatology) in E. 4 which V. adapts to Western modes of thought. Buchheit underscores Dionysiac mystery elements in E. 5. Évrard studies the organization and metrics of E. 5. Lee regards verses 1-2, 48-49, and 54-5 as key lines in E. 5, contrasted with vv. 13-4. Like E. 3, V's Fifth Eclogue is a dramatic poem or mime with two subtly dramatic characters, Menalcas and Mopsus, who exemplify rivalry between poets. Lee's analytical reading is remarkably illuminating. Currie is concerned with Aegle, Naiadum pulcherrima in E. 6. He argues for the influence of an Italian version of the Midas-Silenus legend (involving Egeria, Numa, Picus Martius, and Faunus) as reported by Valerius Antias (fr. 6. Peter) in Arnobius. Egeria of the Italic tale becomes Aegle in Vergil's 'capture-and-demand' incident, a recurrent motif. Lieberg suggests that Phoebo meditante (82) suggests that V. was strongly influenced by the music of the spheres under the tutelage of Apollo. Tarrant prefers Asinius Pollio as addressee in E. 8; geographical accuracy (relating to the Timavus) is outweighed by the poet's anticipation. Timavus may even be designed to recall Antenor's progress from Troy to Padua, an heroic association which would affect the poet's audience. Bowersock's response reiterates, emphatically, his preference for Octavian over Asinius Pollio as addressee.

GEORGICS: GENERAL STUDIES

44. Guglielmo Ballaira, 'Un passo delle Georgiche e Varrone,' ACVBG 133-6.
 45. Giovanni Barra, 'Le Georgiche di Virgilio e il mito dell'età dell'oro,' ACVBG 149-65.
 46. Guido Bonelli, 'Labor et Rus. Il sentimento poetico nei primi due libri delle Georgiche (continua),' RSC 26 (1978) 81-101.
 47. Sergio A. Cecchini, 'L'aratro nelle Georgiche. Osservazioni sull'arte allusiva,' ACVBG 277-85.
 48. Francesco Della Corte, 'Virgilio e le ghiande del secolo d'oro,' ACVBG 309-14.
 49. Teivas Oksala, Studien zum Verständnis der Einheit und der Bedeutung von Vergils Georgics. (Helsinki 1978).
 50. Christine Godfrey Perkell, Pessimism in the Georgics of Virgil (Doctoral Diss., Harvard University, 1977). Abstract, HSCP 82 (1978) 355-7.
 51. J. Pigeaud, 'Nature, culture et poésie dans les Géorgiques de Virgile,' Helmantica 28 (1977) 431-73.
 52. Michael C. J. Putnam, Virgil's Poem of the Earth: Studies in the Georgics. (Princeton 1979).
 53. Armando Salvatore, 'Georgiche di Virgilio e De re rustica di Varrone,' ACVBG 67-111.
 54. Armando Salvatore, Scienza e poesia in Roma. Varrone e Virgilio. (Napoli 1978).
 55. Tom Winter, 'The Direction of Vergil's Weather,' CB 55 (1979) 33-6.
- The bimillennium celebration of the publication of Vergil's Georgics has aroused new enthusiasm and fresh insights into the marvelous quartet which some regard as the high-point of V's creative experience. Putnam's new study treats the Georgics as reflections on the ambiguities of the civilizing process. Vergil's concern is as much with nature, and its potential for man, as with man's own nature. Putnam's refined responses to V's diction, metaphors, similes, allusions, the thematic stuff of poetry, are characteristically perceptive and arresting. Balaira studies G. 1, 50-56. Oksala's study is worthy complement to Putnam's new volume. Perkell, like Putnam, is concerned with ambiguities and doubts, with ambivalences and implied pessimism in the Georgics. She elaborates V's sympathy for the victims of 'progress' and as aggressor against nature and morality. Salvatore's study of science and poetry offers useful and persuasive arguments regarding Vergil's indebtedness to Hellenistic and Varronian science. Winter finds Vergil's winds to be variable and precise as the circumstances require.

GEORGICS: INDIVIDUAL BOOKS

56. Filippo Capponi, 'Variae artes ad Georg., I, 139-42,' ACVBG 225-47.
57. Teresa Mantero, 'Cruentaque myrta (Verg. Georg. I 306),' ACVBG 431-52.
58. Luigi Alfonsi, 'Ancora sulle laudes Italiae vergiliane,' ACVBG 115-9.
59. Ivano Dionigi, 'Contaminazione ed arte allusiva in Georg. 2, 510 e 523 sg.,' ACVBG 345-54.
60. E. L. Harrison, 'The Noric Plague in Vergil's Third Georgic,' ARCA (Classical and Medieval Texts, Papers and Monographs 3) (Papers of the Liverpool Latin Seminar, Second Volume, 1979) 1-65.
61. Domenico Romano, 'Invidia infelix. Virgilio. Georg. III, 37-39,' ACVBG 505-13.
62. Jasper Griffin, 'The Fourth Georgic, Virgil, and Rome,' G&R 26 (1979) 61-80.
63. Antonio La Penna, 'Senex Corycius,' ACVBG 37-66.
64. Ettore Paratore, 'L'episodio di Orfeo,' ACVBG 9-36.
65. C. G. Perkell, 'A Reading of Virgil's Fourth Georgic,' Phoenix 32 (1978) 211-21.
66. Piero Santini, 'Pregnanza espressiva nel episodio del vecchio di Còrico,' ACVBG 515-20.

Capponi associates artes with 'forme' or 'tecniche' of an activity rather than with the specific instrumenta of a 'type' of ars. Mangero's article ranges widely over mythical and religious associations. Alfonsi's ruminative commentary is concerned with Cisalpine and Po river associations in Vergil's eulogy of Italy. Dionigi examines Vergil's alteration of two literary topoi. Harrison's exhaustive article submits the Noric plague to searching analysis. V. offers the episode as a working model of how Roman religion reacted to such disasters which were, in the orthodox view, a sign of divine wrath. The plague which attracted the Noric farmers matches the morbis which Aristaetus had to undergo. The Noric plague in G. 3, and Allecto's attack in A. 7 are parallel. Grudging worship aroused Juno's anger and the despatch of Tisiphone. Jupiter restrains Juno's wrath against Aeneas later, but permits her to massacre the beasts of Noricum (not an historical event) and to convert their grazing grounds into a desert. Romano accepts the poem to G. 3 and the composition of A. 6 as contemporary. Griffin observes that Vergil fails to associate bees and honey with poetry and poets. The bee community evidences virtues of some magnitude; but the pains and pleasures of love and poetry are outside their experience. They contrast with Orpheus, the singer who dies for love. Griffin sees the virtues of the hive as equating with those of the old Roman people. They are an image for the traditional Roman state, with their impersonal, collective character. The post-war reconstruction that Vergil longed for, the restoration of order, is at hand. But V. senses the cost, that the end result will yield a society which is efficient and admirable, but impersonal and dispassionate. La Penna and Santini are both concerned with the excursus on horticulture and the old man of Corycus (4. 116-148). Perkell's article (cf. 50) argues against an optimistic positive interpretation of G. 4. She examines the significance of the bougonia and the relationship of the bees to the stories of Aristaeus and Orpheus. She detects a common melancholy in G. 1 and 3, and accepts ambiguity and pessimism as a determining factor in the poet's work.

AENEID: GENERAL STUDIES

67. T. M. Andersson, Early Epic Scenery (Ithaca, London 1976). Rev: Jasper Griffin, CR 28 (1978) 272-4.

68. Elizabeth Block, Omens, Dreams and Prophecies: Patterns in Vergil. (Doctoral dissertation, University of California, Berkeley, 1977). DA 39:2 (1978) 860A.

69. G. B. Conte, 'Saggio d'interpretazione dell'Eneide: ideologia e forma dell contenuto,' Mat. discuss. anal. testi classici 1 (1978) 11-48.

70. M. Delaunoy, 'Virgile et notre temps,' Helmantica 28 (1977) 103-119.

71. Mario di Cesare, The Altar and the City. A Reading of Vergil's Aeneid (New York, London 1974). Rev: J. P. Brisson, Latomus 37 (1978) 554-6; Jonathan Foster, CR 28 (1978) 350.

72. W. R. Johnson, Darkness Visible: A Study of Vergil's Aeneid (Berkeley, Los Angeles, London 1976). Rev: A. Dalzell, Phoenix 32 (1978) 361-3; K. W. Gransden, CR 28 (1978) 247-9; Roger Hornsby, CJ 73 (1978) 355-7.

73. Patrick Kraglund, Dream and Prediction in the Aeneid (Copenhagen 1976). Rev: Anna Crabbe, CR 28 (1978) 249-51.

74. S. Lundström, Acht Reden in der Aeneis (Uppsala 1977).

75. Sara Mack, Patterns of Time in Vergil (Hamden, Conn. 1978). Rev: William S. Anderson, Vergilius 24 (1978) 83-4.

76. J. W. Zarker, 'Vergil's Trojan and Italian Matres,' Vergilius 24 (1978) 15-24.

Delaunoy suggests that contemporary readers and students should approach Vergil 'comme un homme de notre temps, comme un témoin privilégié d'une haute dignité humaine, valable avant tout pour les jeunes' (119). Lundström examines the following speeches which share common concluding formulae, match warriors with divine or superhuman females, and divide equally in their alignment with both Aeneas and Turnus: Creusa, A. 2.776-89; Sibyl, A. 6. 562-627; Juno, A. 7, 293-322; A. 10, 628-32; Turnus, A. 7, 467-70; A. 12, 72-80; and Aeneas, A. 8, 532-40, A. 12, 435-40. Sara Mack explores temporal relationships in the epic (with some brief attention to Eclogues and Georgics) from the standpoint of time and tense, and (with indebtedness to W. H. Auden) Roman history in the Future tense. Her conclusion accords with contemporary verdicts: "The pattern that time reveals in the Aeneid is essentially pessimistic' (87). Zarker studies the matres in V.'s epic as essential protagonists; like a tragic chorus they impart emotional and psychological depth and colour to their scenes. They initiate action and whether Iliades or Latinae, they are the real victims of epic heroism.

AENEID: INDIVIDUAL BOOKS

77. Eckard Lefèvre, 'Aeneas Antwort an Venus,' WS 91 (NF 12) (1978) 97-110.

78. G. B. Conte, 'L'episodio di Elena nel secondo dell'Eneide. Modelli strutturali e critica dell'autenticità,' RFIC 106 (1978) 53-62.

79. E. D. Kollmann, 'Zu Vergil, Aeneis 2, 49,' Hermes 106 (1978) 504-5.

80. Donald H. Mills, 'Vergil's Tragic Vision: the Death of Priam,' CW 72 (1978) 159-66.

81. T. W. Kinsey, 'The Achaemenides Episode in Vergil's Aeneid III,' Latomus 38 (1979) 110-24.

82. Aldo Marastoni, 'Su Verg. Aen. 3, 124-127,' ACVBG 453-9.

83. G. Nenci, 'Drepani... inlaetabilis ora (Verg. Aen. III. 707-708),' Scritti storico-epigrafici in memoria di Marcello Zambelli (ed. Lidio Gasperini) (Roma 1978) 257-60.

84. Pedro J. Quetglas Nicolau, 'La tecnica narrativa de Virgilio,' Helmantica 29 (1978) 161-4.

85. Gabriella D'Anna, 'Esemplificazione di un corso articolato in unità didattiche su ascendenze e problemi storico-letterari del IV libro dell'Eneide,' Didactica Class. Gand. 17-18 (1977-78) 50-61.

86. Victor A. Estevez, 'Capta ac Deserta: The Fall of Troy in Aeneid IV,' CJ 74 (1978-79) 97-109.

87. Lidia Haberman, 'The Theme of "Lacrimae" in the Love Affair of Dido and Aeneas,' CO 56 (1978) 5-6.

88. A. Hudson-Williams, 'Lacrimae illae inanes,' G&R 25 (1978) 16-23.

89. William R. Nethercut, 'Varium et mutabile semper femina,' CW 72 (1978) 101-3.

90. Harry C. Schnur, 'Again Varium et Mutabile Semper Femina,' CW 72 (1978) 103.

91. Edward V. George, 'Acestes, Acastus: Aeneid 5. 35-41,' AC 47 (1978) 553-6.

92. R. G. Austin, P. Vergili Maronis liber sextus (Oxford 1977). Rev: R. Lesueur, REL 55 (1977) 461-2; A. G. McKay, Vergilius 24 (1978) 77-80; R. D. Williams, CR 29 (1979) 33-5.

93. Paul F. Burke, Jr., 'Roman Rites for the Dead and Aeneid 6,' CJ 74 (1979) 220-28.

94. J. C. Cressey, 'Two notes on epic. 1. An Homeric simile, Iliad 3. 221-3. 2. Life and Death in Aeneid 6,' LCM 3 (1978) 221-3.

95. T. M. Falkner, 'The Function of the Deiphobus Episode in Aeneid VI,' Humanitas (Ohio Classical Conference) 3:4 (1978) 19-20.

96. J. Gijssels, 'Lenibat dictis animus lacrimasque ciebat (Verg. Aen. VI 468),' Lampas 11 (1978) 212-7.

97. T. E. Kinsey, 'Vergil, Aeneid 6. 201,' LCM 4 (1979) 59.

98. Serge Lewuillon, 'La piété d'Énée et Caton le censeur. Un problème d'idéologie et de propaganda imperiale,' Latomus 38 (1979) 125-46.

99. C. J. Fordyce, P. Vergili Maronis Aeneidos Libri VII-VIII (Oxford 1977). Rev: Raymond J. Clark, Phoenix 32 (1978) 353-6; Michael C. J. Putnam, Vergilius 24 (1978) 80-2.
 100. E. de Saint-Denis, 'Sur un vers obscur de Virgile (Aen. 8. 693)', REL 56, 1978 (1979) 216-25.
 101. R. Schilling, 'La flotille d'Énée aborde au futur site de Rome,' Didactica Class. Gand. 17-18 (1977-78) 117-26.
 102. A. Arnaudès, 'Rapport sur l'étude de R. Schilling, La flotille d'Énée aborde au futur site de Rome,' Didactica Class. Gand. 17-18 (1977-78) 127-37.
 103. K. W. Gransden, Virgil, Aeneid Book VIII (Cambridge 1976). Rev: G. Binder, Gymnasium 85 (1978) 538-40; Jasper Griffin, CR 28 (1978) 33-5; Roger Hornsby, CJ 73 (1978) 258-9; Emily A. McDermott, AJP 99 (1978) 513-6.
 104. E. Piannezzola, 'Versaque iuvenum/ terga fatigamus hasta (Verg. Aen. 9, 609 sg.) Simbolo ideologico e tradizione poetica,' Studi in onore di A. Ardigzoni (Roma 1978) 691-9.
 105. Robert J. Rabel, 'The Iliadic Nature of Aeneid 9,' Vergilius 24 (1978) 37-44.
 106. T. Köves-Zulauf, 'Camilla (Part II), Gymnasium 85 (1978) 409-36.
- Lefèvre treats tone and intention in Aeneas' highflown response to Venus (A. 1. 372-86) including the seemingly arch sum pius Aeneas. Conte favours Vergilian authorship for the Helen episode in A. 2 but regards it as an unfinished insertion. Kollmann punctuates Laocoon's celebrated cry according to Servius' reading: quidquid id est, timeo. o Danaos et dona ferentes! Mills questions Priam's heroic impulse and assesses his moral fault. But his death is tragic; a figure of humanity and nobility, caught in a deterministic perspective, his death also has a political implication involving the destruction of Troy and the role and destiny of Aeneas. Kinsey's study of the castaway saviour figure, Achaemenides, is the best available critique of the suggestive figure and the unusual encounter. Marastoni favours concita over consita at A. 3. 127. Quetglas Nicolau offers an analysis of A. 3. Estevez detects a figurative reenactment of the fall of Troy in the tragedy of Dido. Hudson-Williams notes Aeneas' complete abstinence from tears in A. 4, 413-5, 437-9. Aeneas is 'a man who rises superior to his personal emotions, inflexibly resolved to discharge the world task commissioned by heaven, and displaying therein an uncompromising and unshakable front.' 'Demands of duty are inexorable... a woman's tears must flow in vain' (lacrimae... inanes). Nethercut regards semper (A. 4. 569-70) as a graecism meaning 'on every occasion' not 'forever'. Schnur (responding to R. Haywood, CW 71 (1977) 130) argues that semper implied 'has been... and still is.' George finds the model of A. 5. 35-41 in Ap. Rhod., Argonautica 1, 321-328. The Hellenistic model, Acastus, and the incident associated with him, has ample echoes in Vergil's derivative hero. But the piety of Acestes is a hallmark which shines more brightly by contrast with Acastus. George suggests that Acastus inspired the Vergilian creation Acestes (normally Egestus). Burke argues for an ingenious transformation of the pompa funebris motif in Vergil's parade of heroes in the World of the Dead. Cressey examines instances of life-death juxta-positions, violent and novel, which contribute to the theme and impact of A. 6. Its central theme is 'in the midst of life we are in death.' Falkner finds correspondence between the Hector-vision (A. 2.) and the Deiphobus encounter. The death of Deiphobus is transformed into a microcosm of Troy's fall; his death is a symbolic reenactment of the fall of the city. Kinsey defends the identification of Averno (A. 6. 201) with the Underworld rather than the lake. So, 'the descent to the underworld is easy.' Lewuillon favours Cato the Censor as the model of piety, not Cato Uticensis! Saint-Denis translates A. 8. 693: 'telles sont les masses dont les hommes pressent les poupes chargées de tours.' Rabel studies the words and actions of Turnus, Nisus, and Euryalus against the background of Iliad 12 and gains richer appreciation of the unity and special Iliadic nature of A. 9. Köves-Zulauf completes his study of Camilla, adducing new evidence and associations to help appreciate V's masterly portrayal of the virgo bellatrix.

AENEID: CHARACTERS

107. A. Barchiesi, 'Il lamento di Giuturna,' Mat. discuss. anal. testi class. 1 (1978) 99-121.

108. Paul F. Burke, Jr., 'Drances Infensus: A Study in Vergilian Character Portrayal,' TAPA 108 (1978) 15-20.

109. Katherine Callen King, Achilles in Classical Poetry: Homer through Vergil. (Doctoral Dissertation, Princeton University, 1978.) DA 39:10 (1979) 6110A.

110. M. D. Northrup, 'Like dreams that delude the sleeping senses,' Ramus 7 (1978) 26-37.

111. Gabriele Thome, Gestalt und Funktion des Mezentius bei Vergil — mit einem Ausblick auf die Schlusszene der Aeneis (Frankfurt am Main, Bern, Las Vegas 1979) (Europäische Hochschulschriften, Reihe XV: Klassische Philologie und Literatur, Bd. 14).

Burke shows that Drances, the cynical, repellent political manipulator, is a Vergilian invention. A complex system of Homeric parallels and reminiscences induces the reader to assess the Drances-Turnus quarrel along multiple lines. Drances' main function is to point up the tragic qualities of Turnus' position. Northrup finds Vergil's imagery of the insubstantial to be symptomatic and revealing of Aeneas' moral failure.

THE TROJAN LEGEND

112. Jean Gagé, 'Bases de migration "dardanienne" et escales "troyennes" dans la mer ionienne,' REL 55, 1977 (1978) 84-112.

113. R. Scuderi, 'Il mito eneico in età augustea: aspetti filoetruschi e filoellenici,' Aevum 52 (1978) 88-99.

Gagé examines the multiple associations of Tyrrhus, Latinus' shepherd and father of Silvia. Tyrrhus seems to be a remnant of the Tyrrhei, from Epirus and Acarnania, confused with the Tyrrhenoi (Etruscans) after their proto-historic migrations. Scuderi accents Aeneas' Etruscan associations and ascribes V's tencency in this regard to deep-seated philoetruscan attitudes during the Augustan age.

AENEID: GEOGRAPHY, ART, AND ARCHAEOLOGY

114. A. A. Barrett, 'Knowledge of the Literary Classics in Roman Britain,' Britannia IX (1978) 307-13.

115. Herbert W. Benario, 'Vergil in Britannia Provincia,' Vergilius 24 (1978) 56-9.
 116. Herbert W. Benario, 'Vergil and the River Tiber,' Vergilius 24 (1978) 4-14.
 117. J. Delz, 'Vergil und die Bildende Kunst,' Didactica Class. Gand. 17-18 (1977-78) 62-76.
 118. Peter Green, 'The Flight-Plan of Daedalus,' EMC 23 (1979) 30-5.
 119. Ettore Paratore, 'Virgilio e Cuma,' Atti del Conv. intern. I campi flegrei nell'archeologia e nella storia (Roma 1977) 9-39.
 120. J. Préaux, 'Les sept premiers vers de l'Énéide et les découvertes de Lavinium,' D'Eschyle à nos jours (Bruxelles 1978) 73-96.
 121. Bertha Tilly, 'Some Excursions into Vergil's Faliscan Country: Capena and Lucus Feroniae,' Vergilius 24 (1978) 45-55.
 122. Ferdinando Castagnoli, 'Topografia dei Campi Flegrei,' Atti del Conv. intern. (cf. 119) 41-79.
- Barrett provides a catalogue of allusions in Roman Britain to Vergil's epic: Silchester; coins of Carausius; Low Ham, Somerset; Oxford, Kent; Frampton, Dorset; and Lullingstone, Kent. The triclinium in the last (ca. AD 330) exhibits a mosaic picture of the abduction of Europa with an inscribed couplet referring to A. 1. The couplet, in Barrett's view, also bespeaks knowledge of Ovid in fourth century Britain. Benario also offers evidence of a fairly detailed acquaintance with Vergil's text among the local gentry. Benario's article on the Tiber explores V's use of water imagery with frequent associations of terror and hopelessness; storm and the concomitant darkness are besetting problems in the epic. Tiber is the instrument of change of fortune, a change which forecasts the future and foretokens eventual success. Two Appendices list appearances of Tiber in 7-12 and examine V's words for water. Green suggests that originally Icarus was probably associated with Icaria-by-Marathon, and that Daedalus' landing at Cyme was originally on the Euboean coastline, looking towards Scyros. Paratore's article deals with the Cumaean locales (temple, grotto), Sibylline associations, and Avernus as portal to Hades. Paratore is more interested in legendary and cult matters than in topography and existing monuments. Préaux brings the somewhat contentious finds at Lavinium into the context of the prelude to the epic. Tilly explores the Ager Capenas (A. 7. 695-7) and Lucus Feroniae. She concludes that V's mention of the Capenos lucos 'was in concert with the revivifying of ancient Italic cults so dear to Augustus, with the existence of the annual fair and the wide repute of Feronia . . . the colony was already established and living in his time.' (53) Ferdinando Castagnoli treats the Campi Phlegraei in expert fashion, with emphasis on earlier accounts and illustrators (Sangallo, Paoli et al.). Air photographs, revised maps, and succinct background commentary shed light on the Portus Julius, Puteoli, Baiae, Misenum, and Cumae.
- RELIGION AND PHILOSOPHY
123. William Sadler Bonds, Joy and Desire in the Aeneid: Stoicism in Vergil's Treatment of Emotion. (Doctoral Dissertation, University of Pennsylvania, 1978). DA 39:10 (1979) 6110A.
 124. A. Negri, "'Teodicea del lavoro'", "Etica del dolore" e filosofia della cultura in Virgilio,' GIF 9 (1978) 47-56.

125. James Angus Ogilvy, Visions of God: Accommodation and the Reader in the Epics of Homer, Virgil, Vida and Milton. (Doctoral Dissertation, University of Toronto, 1978). DA 40:1 (1979) 239A.

126. Geraldine T. Thomas, 'Religious Background for Virgil's Bee Symbol in the Georgics,' Vergilius 24 (1978) 32-36.

127. Agathe Thornton, The Living Universe: Gods and Men in Virgil's Aeneid (London 1977). Rev: G. B. Townend, CR 29 (1979) 35-7.

Thomas examines the sources and possible meaning of the bougonia, attempts an explanation of the interrelation of the bougonia and Aristaeus sections of G. 4, and looks at the whole bee symbol for possible religious interpretations and for better understanding of the poem.

ROME AND AUGUSTUS

128. Vinzenz Buchheit, 'Würdigung des Dichterfreundes und Dichterpatrions bei Catul und Vergil,' Philologus 121 (1977) 66-82.

129. M. L. Clarke, 'Poets and Patrons at Rome,' G&R 25 (1978) 46-54.

Both Buchheit and Clarke are concerned with amicitia and patronage. Buchheit's canvas is more extensive and perhaps less critical of the institution than Clarke's who regrets poets' dependence, hyperbole, and prostitution sometimes exceeding the conventions. When Augustus, as a new constellation in the zodiac, requires accommodation by Scorpio, Clarke regards the Vergilian conceit as fertile invention but as prostitution of judgment!

VERGIL AND OTHER AUGUSTAN POETS

130. Donato Gagliardi, 'Sul tema dell' Amor Ruris in Vergilio e in Orazio,' ACVBG 355-357.

131. Giovanni Garuti, 'Virgilio, Orazio e la scuola del Grammaticus,' ACVBG 369-80.

132. Eleanor Winsor Leach, 'Vergil, Horace, Tibullus: three collections of Ten,' Ramus 7 (1978) 79-105.

133. Ciro Monteleone, 'Cornelio Gallo tra Ila e le Driadi (Virgilio, Propertius a una controversia letteraria),' Latomus 38 (1979) 28-53.

134. Ernst A. Schmidt, 'Das horazische Sabinum als Dichterlandschaft,' Antike und Abendland 23 (1977) 97-112.

135. Karl-Wilhelm Weeber, 'Properz IV. 1, 7-70 und das 8. Buch der Aeneis,' Latomus 37 (1978) 489-506.

Gagliardi deals with G. 2. 485-6 and Horace, Ep. 1, 10, 6-7. Leach examines Vergil's Eclogues, Horace's Sermones I, and Tibullus' Elegies I as noteworthy collections of ten poems. Monteleone finds correspondences between Propertius 1, 20 and the Bucolics. Schmidt's article is a masterly essay on poetic landscape and the reverberations of the Sabine Farm in Horace's poetry.

STYLE, LANGUAGE, AND METRE

136. N. Balmer, 'Strutture retorico-politiche delle Georgiche di Virgilio. La collocazione delle parole,' Scripta philologa 1 (1977) 94-104.

137. Mario Bonaria, 'Appunti per uno studio sui rapporti l'esametro delle Georgiche virgiliane con l'esametro ellenistico,' ACVBG 179-202.

138. A. J. Boyle, 'Virgil's Pastoral Echo,' Ramus 6 (1977) 121-31.

139. Giovanni Castelli, 'Note sulla poetica di Virgilio georgico,' ACVBG 249-85.

140. Antonio De Rosalia, 'Strutture allitterative nelle Georgiche,' ACVBG 315-44.
 141. R. J. Edgeworth, 'What color is "Ferrugineus"?' Glotta 56 (1978) 297-305.
 142. Philippe Heuzé, 'Approches des images dans l'Énéide,' BAGB 2 (1979) 205-14.
 143. Tilman Krischer, 'UnHomeric Scene-Patterns in Vergil,' ARCA (Classical and Medieval Texts, Papers and Monographs 3) (Papers of the Liverpool Latin Seminar, Second Volume, 1979) 143-54.
 144. R. Lesueur, 'L'Énéide de Virgile. Étude sur la composition rythmique d'une épopée (Toulouse 1975).
 145. Gigliola Maggiulli, 'L'aesculus e la quercus in Virgilio,' ACVBG 421-9.
 146. A. Michel, 'Y a-t-il un art poétique de Virgile?' Acta Antiqua 33 (1975) 209-20.
 147. Wilhelm Ott, Rücklaufiger Index Zu Vergil (Tübingen 1974). Rev: K. W. Gransden, CR 27 (1977) 182-4.
 148. P. J. Quetglas Nicolau, 'La tecnica narrativa de Virgilio,' Helmantica 28 (1978) 161-5.
 149. Hermann Raabe, Plurima Mortis Imago: Vergleichende Interpretationen zur Bildsprache Vergils (München 1974). Rev: David West, CR 27 (1977) 275-6.
 150. Marisa Squillante Saccone, 'Appunti sull'uso dell'epiteto nell'Eneide di Virgilio,' BollStudLat 8 (1978) 3-27.
 151. J. G. Vasquez, La imagen en la poesia de Virgilio. Su funcion. Estudio estilístico y literario (Granada 1976).
 152. A. J. Vaccaro, 'Uso del adjetivo calificativo en los "Eglogas" de Virgilio,' Argos 1 (Revista de la Asociación Argentina di Estudios Clasicos, Buenos Aires).
- Boyle detects indications of resonances and reverberations in V's poetic language, along with echoes of the literary tradition (Hesiod, Callimachus, Catullus, Lucretius, etc.). Maggiulli is concerned with silviculture at G. 2. 14-6 and elsewhere.
- COMPUTER STUDIES
153. International Organization for Ancient Languages Analysis Review (1978: 4) 33-36.
- The Revue lists Vergil, Aeneis 1-6; Eclogae; and Georgica. Address requests for information to: Laboratoire d'Analyse Statistique des Langues Anciennes, 110 Boulevard de la Sauvenière, 4000, Liège, Belgium.
- VERGIL AND EARLIER WRITERS
154. Nigel B. Crowther, 'Cantores Euphorionis; a reassessment,' LCM 4 (1979) 123-5.
 155. Robert Godel, 'Virgile, Naevius et les Aborigènes,' MH 35 (1978) 273-82.
 156. James N. O'Sullivan, 'An Unnoticed Reminiscence of Homer in Vergil,' AJP 98 (1977) 1-2.
 157. James B. Pearce, 'Denial and Envy as Means of Gift Value Enhancement in the Pastorals of Theocritus and Virgil,' CB 55 (1979) 54-6.
 158. Stephen Lawrence Ronquist, Transformations in the allusive force of references to Cretan myth: Euripides, Catullus, and Vergil. (Doctoral dissertation, University of Minnesota, 1978). DA 39:6 (1978) 3559A-3560A.

159. R. R. Schlunk, The Homeric Scholia and the Aeneid (Ann Arbor, Mich., 1974). Rev: A. Barchiesi, RFIC 105 (1977) 349-55.

160. Robin R. Schlunk, 'Vergil and his Greek Teachers: The Aeneid and Homeric Scholia,' Humanitas 4:1 (1979) 5-16.

161. S. V. Tracy, 'Catullan Echoes in Aeneid 6. 333-6,' AJP 98 (1977) 20-3.

Crowther, inter alia, suggests that Vergil may be a cantor. O'Sullivan detects structural and verbal echoes between Odyssey 9, 526ff and Aeneid 9, 481. Pearce shows that V. is indebted to Theocritus for the conventional behaviour attaching to gifts. Eclogue 2, 31-44, reveals the various aspects of the theme extended and is the culminating example of the practice. Schlunk deals with the Dolonia (Iliad 10) and the Nisus-Euryalus episode (A. 9) to show how V. used and considered ancient commentaries in adapting the Homeric episode to his Night Episode. There are links between Asios (Iliad) and Nisus (Aeneid): both are paradigms of death through disobedience and self-confidence. Tracy detects Cat. 101 and 46 in Aeneid 6. 333-6. The double borrowing reflects conflicting emotions in Aeneas: the finality of death and loss, and the joyful return of spring. Aen. 6. 692 reveals another reference to Cat. 101 in a book closely associated with death, separation, and farewell.

ANCIENT AUTHORS AFTER VERGIL

162. Renato Badalì, 'Virgilio Georg. 1, 466-88 e Lucano Phars. 1, 522-83,' ACVBG 121-31.

163. Marinella Tartari Chersoni, 'Lucano e la tradizione epica virgiliana: ripresa e contrapposizione nel libro VI del Bellum Civile,' BollStudLat 9 (1979) 25-39.

164. S. Franchet d'Espérey, 'Variations épiques sur un thème animalier,' REL 55, 1977 (1978) 157-72.

165. Jacques Fontaine, 'La conversion du christianisme à la culture antique: la lecture chrétienne de l'univers bucolique de Virgile,' BAGB 27:1 (1978) 50-75.

166. Severin Koster, 'Maximus poetarum (Sen. Dial. 10, 2.2),' RhM 121 (1978) 303-10.

167. Ilona Opelt, 'Vergil bei Marius Victorinus,' Philologus 122 (1978) 224-36.

168. J. N. O'Sullivan, 'Parody and Sense in Juvenal 3. 198-202,' AJP 99 (1978) 456-8.

169. Elio Pasoli, 'A proposito del giudizio di Seneca sulle Georgiche,' ACVBG 461-9.

170. Maria Lisa Ricci, 'Motivi arcadici in alcuni centoni virgiliani cristiani,' ACVBG 489-96.

171. R. H. Rodgers, 'Varro and Virgil in the Geoponica,' GRBS 19 (1978) 277-85.

172. J. R. G. Wright, 'How Bad a Poet was Calpurnius Siculus,' PCA 75 (1978) 23-4.

D'Espérey treats later versions of the killing of the stag by Ascanius which appear in different guises responding to changes in taste. The repertoire ranges from pastoral (Vergil, Ovid), to exotic (Statius, Valerius Flaccus), to violence and horror (Statius), to Silius Italicus' neo-classicism. Fontaine examines the 'spiritual' aspects of the Bucolics which were read and imitated by Christians (Jerome, Ambrose, Augustine, Prudentius) in their writings, and by mural artists in catacombs and elsewhere. Opelt's Marius Victorinus "war Lehrer der Rhetorik, neuplatonischer Philosoph und schliesslich Bekämpfer der arianischen Häresie"; his writings are frequently charged with Vergilian reminiscences.

O'Sullivan accepts that iam belongs to tertia and that the insula (where Ucalegon dwelt) had more than three storeys; that trepidatur ab means 'the scare starts from', and that Ucalegon (Care-not) suggested the parody to Juvenal. Ultimus ardebit parodies proximus ardet, and ultimus is spātia, not temporal. Wright assesses Calpurnius Ecl. 4, with Vergil, E. 1 and judges that V. breathed unique life into the conventions, whereas Calpurnius evidences no sure poetic taste and writes from less emotionally urgent reasons.

ANCIENT LIVES

173. H. D. Jocelyn, 'Vergilius Cacozelus (Donatus, Vita Vergili 44),' ARCA (Classical and Medieval Texts, Papers and Monographs 3) (Papers of the Liverpool Latin Seminar, Second Volume, 1979) 66-142.

174. William R. Nethercut, 'Vergil's Horoscope: A Correction,' Vergilius 24 (1978) 60-61.

175. D. Rendić-Miočević, 'O imenu Vergilijeva rodnog mjesta (Sur le nom du lieu natal de Virgile),' Živa Antika 27 (1977) 151-9.

Nethercut refers to his earlier article (CO (1976) 51-4) and notes that the constellation occupied by the Moon on 15 October, 70 BC was Aries. The intrusion of Saturn, the so-called 'evil' aspect, into the Full Moon patterns is common to Julius Caesar, Cicero, Augustus, Ovid, and Horace, and was a galvanizing force in their natal charts. Rendić-Miočević deals with problems attaching to the place-name Andes.

VERGIL AND LATER AGES

176. Barbara Jane Bono, 'Sunt hic etiam . . . mentem mortalia tangunt' Aen. 1. 161-162). Renaissance Transvaluations: From Vergilian Epic to Shakespearan Heroic Drama. (Doctoral dissertation, Brown University, 1978). DA 39:9 (1979) 5520A.

177. J. Brueker, Jr., 'A Parody of the Aeneid by Christopher Longstreth Ward,' Humanitas (Ohio Classical Conference) 3:4 (1978) 21-3.

178. Luciano Canfora, 'Wilamowitz e le celebrazioni virgiliane del bimilenario,' ACVBG 221-3.

179. H. Cooper, Pastoral: mediaeval into Renaissance (Ipswich 1978).

180. Jonathan Foster, 'Petarch's Africa: Ennian and Vergilian Influences,' ARCA (Classical and Medieval Texts, Papers and Monographs 3) (Papers of the Liverpool Latin Seminar, Second Volume, 1979) 277-98.

181. J. Karl Franson, 'An Antenor-Aeneas Conspiracy in Shakespeare's Troilus and Cressida,' Studies in the Humanities (Indiana, Penna.) 7 (1978) 43-7.

182. Giovanni Casparotto, 'La lettera del Petrarca a Virgilio (Famil. XXIV

- 11), 'ACVBG 381-400.
183. J. Granarolo, 'Du classicisme libéral de Sainte-Beuve à l'idéal virgilien de T. S. Eliot,' Présence de Virgile (Paris 1978) 533-40.
184. H. Huxley, 'Lacrimae Vergilianae,' Latinitas 26 (1978) 262.
185. Herbert H. Huxley, 'Muomachia: Fabula Caudarum,' Vergilius 24 (1978) 94.
186. Stephen T. Kelly, 'Virgil and Milton: The Attempt at Natural Com-solation,' Comparative Lit 30 (1978) 193-208.
187. E. Z. Lambert, Placing Sorrow: a study of the pastoral elegy con-vention from Theocritus to Milton (Chapel Hill 1976).
188. Ettore Paratore, 'Virgile et Giovanni Pascoli,' Présence de Virgile (Paris 1978) 411-424.
189. D. Pietrusinski, 'Quo modo Pius XII Papa in vitae agricolarum laudibus praecipue Publium Vergilium Maronem secutus sit,' Latinitas 26 (1978) 311-16.
190. C. M. Scollen, 'Octavien de Saint-Gelais; Translation of the Aeneid: Poetry or Propaganda,' Bibl. hum. renaiss. 39 (1977) 253-61.
191. James H. Sims, 'The Epic Narrator Voice in Camoens and Milton,' Revue du Littérature Comparée 51 (1977) 374-84.
192. Ulrich Töns, 'Sannazaros Arkadia. Wirkung und Wandlung der vergil-ischen Ekloge,' Antike und Abendland 23 (1977) 143-61.
193. J. Voisine, 'Racine et Shakespeare, ou la renaissance de l'opéra anglais (Dido and Aeneas),' Revue de Littérature Comparée 51 (1976) 49ff.
194. Oliver Henry Whitehead, Teleology and the function of Discourse in the Epics of Homer, Virgil, Dante, and Milton. (Doctoral Disseration, Univer-sity of Toronto, 1978). DA 39:7 (1979) 4229A.
- Brueker's amusing verse is extracted from Christopher Longstreth Ward's Sir Galahad and Other Rimes: Passkeys to the Classics (New York 1936). Franson remarks that in Shakespeare's time the story of the Trojan War was well known (cf. R. A. Folkes, 'Troilus and Cressida Reconsidered,' University of Toronto Quarterly 32 (1963) 142-54). Huxley's verses are charged with Vergilian borrowings. Kelly notes that Lycidas faces the same problems that appear in E. 5 and 10: the intrusion of brutal and irrational forces into Arcadia, and the death of the promising young shepherd. Vergil's phrases are part and parcel of Miltonic style.

Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, N.J.,
McMaster University, Hamilton, Ontario

A. G. McKay

VERGIL AT SARASOTA: PAPERS BY GRAVES H. THOMPSON, GRACE S. WEST, HARRY C. RUTLEDGE, HERBERT W. BENARIO, AND VIN-CENT J. CLEARY. Edited by Gilbert Lawall.

NECN Publications, Department of Classics, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003. 44 pages. $1.50. This booklet contains papers delivered at the Vergil session at the CAMWS, SS meeting in Sarasota, Florida, October, 1978, to which has been added the Vergil bibliography published by Vincent Cleary in Vergilius and The Classical Jour-nal. The papers and the bibliography should be of special interest and use to those teaching Vergil in secondary schools, colleges, and universities.