

VERGILIAN BIBLIOGRAPHY

Author(s): A. G. McKay

Source: Vergilius (1959-), 1980, No. 26 (1980), pp. 56-73

Published by: The Vergilian Society

Stable URL: <https://www.jstor.org/stable/41591842>

---

JSTOR is a not-for-profit service that helps scholars, researchers, and students discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content in a trusted digital archive. We use information technology and tools to increase productivity and facilitate new forms of scholarship. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org

Your use of the JSTOR archive indicates your acceptance of the Terms & Conditions of Use, available at <https://about.jstor.org/terms>

JSTOR

The Vergilian Society is collaborating with JSTOR to digitize, preserve and extend access to Vergilius (1959-)

VERGILIAN BIBLIOGRAPHY

The present survey of Vergilian scholarship is the eighteenth in the Vergilius series. Classical World 68:1 (1974), published in association with the Vergilian Society, Inc., contains my 'Recent Work on Vergil: A Bibliographical Survey, 1964-73'. The survey has been reprinted in The Classical World Bibliography of Vergil (Walter Donlan, ed.), Garland Publishing, Inc. (New York & London, 1978). Subsequent surveys have appeared in Vergilius 19 (1973), 20 (1974), 21 (1975), 22 (1976), 23 (1977), 24 (1978) and 25 (1979).

Several noteworthy collections are contained in the 1979-80 Bibliography. One, edited by Raymond Chevallier, and entitled Présence de Virgile: Actes du Colloque des 9, 11, 12 Décembre, 1976 (Paris 1978), appears repeatedly and is abbreviated throughout as Présence. A. J. Boyles' thematic number of Ramus 8:1 (1979) is entitled Vergil's Ascræan Song: Ramus Essays on the Georgics; it appears repeatedly and is abbreviated throughout as Virgil's Ascræan Song. Four noteworthy bibliographies are awaiting publication in the already monumental ANRW: 'A Bibliography of Virgil's Eclogues' by Ward W. Briggs, Jr.; and three additional bibliographies, all compiled by Werner Suerbaum (Munich): 'Eine systematische Arbeitsbibliographie mit besonderer Berücksichtigung der Aeneis'; 'Spezialbibliographie zu Vergils Georgica'; and 'Von der Vita Vergiliana über die Accessus Vergiliani zum Zauberer Vergilianus: Probleme – Perspektiven – Analysen'. The ANRW bibliographies differ in their chronological limits: Briggs continues his bibliography of the Eclogues to 1977; Suerbaum closes his listings with 1975. Classical World will publish my cumulative 'Recent Work on Vergil, 1974-1982' during the Bimillennium in 1982.

Off prints of articles and bibliographic notices for inclusion in the annual Vergilius review are always welcomed by the editor. Address correspondence to Professor A. G. McKay, Department of Classics, McMaster University, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada L8S 4M2.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

1. Janice M. Benario, 'Index to Vergilius I-XXV,' Vergilius 25 (1979) 87-95.
2. R. Chevallier, 'Les Avatars d'Énée depuis la dernière guerre mondiale,' Présence (Paris 1978) 559-77.
3. E. Coleiro, An Introduction to Vergil's Bucolics with a Critical Edition of the Text (Amsterdam 1979) 357-441.
4. G. Cupaiuolo, 'Notiziario bibliografica,' BStudLat 9 (1979), s. v. Vergilius, Vergiliana.
5. Miguel Dolç, 'Presencia de Virgilio en España,' Présence 541-57.
6. Walter Donlan (ed.), The Classical World Bibliography of Vergil. (New York, London 1978). Rev: W. R. Johnson, CW 73 (1979) 201.
7. A. G. McKay, 'Vergilian Bibliography (1978-79),' Vergilius 25 (1979) 46-60.
8. V. Pöschl, 'Virgil 4. Fortsetzung, I. Teil: Eklogen,' AAHG 32 (1979) cols. 1-20.

Janice Benario's index to Vergilius signals her noteworthy role as Editor of Vergilius (1960-62, 1974-79). Chevallier's essay contains 183 bibliographical notices. Coleiro's impressive volume on the Bucolics offers listings up to 1978; Ward Briggs' contribution to ANRW, within its chronological limits, will be the best available for study of the Eclogues.

TEXTS, EDITIONS, AND TRANSLATIONS

9. Paul Alpers. The Singer of the Eclogues: A Study of Virgilian Pastoral (with a new translation of the Eclogues) (Berkeley, Los Angeles 1979).

10. Jacques Delille. Les Géorgiques (text, preface, French version), with etchings by Aristide Maillol (reprint of 1950 edition) (Geneva 1976).

11. Ambrosio Diez Escanciano, 'Virgilio, Eneida. Traducción y notas: Libro X,' Perficat 101 (1977) (Estudios Clásicos. Textos y Estudios 8).

12. C. Eggenberger, 'Die Miniaturen des Vergilius Romanus, Codex Vat. Lat. 3867,' ByzZ 70 (1977) 58-90.

13. A. García Calvo, Virgilio. Biografía, bibliografía, traducción rítmica de las Bucolicas, libro IV de las Geórgicas, libro VI de la Eneida. Apéndice para la lectura del libro IV de las Geórgicas. (Madrid 1976).

14. D. Hagedorn, 'Ein erkannter Vergilvers auf papyrus,' ZPE 34 (1979) 108.

15. Denise Joly, 'Présence des Bucoliques à Pompéi, Présence 93-104.

16. W. D. Lebek, 'Ein lateinisches Epigramm aus Pompei (vellem essem gemma, etc.) und Ovids Gedicht vom Siegelring (Am. 2, 15),' ZPE 23 (1976) 21-40.

17. Enrica Malcovati, 'La nuova edizione dell'Eneide di Ettore Paratore con traduzione di Luca Canali,' Athenaeum 56 (1978) 381-3.

18. C. Nordenfalk (ed.), Vergilius Aureus. Codex Vaticanus Latinus 3256 der Bibliotheca apostolica Vaticana und Codex Latinus fol. 416 der Staatsbibliothek Preussischer Kulturbesitz (Graz 1976).

Paul Alpers' verse translation of the Eclogues is everything one might expect from a Professor of English, contemporary and lucid, more attractive than Boyles' recent version (Melbourne 1976). The Delille reprint is artistically attractive. Eggenberger's analysis of the Vergilius Romanus miniatures is iconographical and stylistic; the script is dated between A.D. 590 and 610. Joly retraces well-worn paths with useful comments. Lebek examines Aen. 1.683ff. in a discussion of epigrammatic lines at Pompeii.

APPENDIX VERGILIANA

19. Madeleine Bonjour, 'Le thème virgilien de la Terre-Mère et ses Avatars dans le Culex,' Présence 81-92.

20. R. O. A. M. Lyne, Ciris: A Poem Attributed to Vergil (Cambridge 1978). Rev: A. A. Barrett, Vergilius 25 (1979) 68-70; W. R. Johnson, CP 75 (1980) 176-7; D. O. Ross, Jr., CW 73 (1979-80) 255-6; Richard F. Thomas, Phoenix 33 (1979) 180-84.

21. J. Richmond, 'Catalepton 9,' Museum philologum Londiniense 3 (1978) 189-201.

22. Miguel Rodríguez-Pantoja, 'El Moretum, estudio lingüístico y literario,' Habis 8 (1977) 117-48.

Lyne's Ciris has won enthusiastic response from reviewers and serves as a model for comparable exercises. Much work remains to be done on the influence of the Appendix on later authors.

ECLOGUES: GENERAL STUDIES

23. A. J. Boyle, The Eclogues of Virgil (Melbourne 1976). Rev: Jeffrey M. Duban Vergilius 25 (1979) 67-8; W. R. Nethercut, AJP 100 (1979) 441-4.

24. Robert Coleman (ed.), Virgil: Eclogues (Cambridge 1977). Rev: J. P. Elder, AJP 100 (1979) 580-84.

25. José González Vázquez, 'Indignus Amor: El tema del amor en las Bucólicas de Virgilio: su interpretación a través de las imágenes,' Emerita 47 (1979) 319-30.

26. Rudolf Kettmann. Bukolik und Georgik. Studien zu ihrer Affinität bei Vergil und später (Heidelberg 1977). Rev: Charles Fantazzi, CW 73 (1979) 48.

27. Charles Francis Robinson, Daphnis to Aeneas: The Evolution of Heroic Characterization in Virgil's Works, Diss., Rutgers, 1977. DA 38 (1978) 6699A-6700A.

28. A. Thill, 'Quellenforschung des Bucoliques,' REL 54 (1976) 194-213.

29. John Van Sickle, The Design of Virgil's Eclogues (Roma 1978). Rev: Jeffrey M. Duban, Vergilius 25 (1979) 62-7; R. G. M. Nisbet, JRS 69 (1979) 231; Eckart Schäfer, Gymnasium 87 (1980) 103-5; Peter L. Smith, Phoenix 34 (1980) 95-7.

30. R. D. Williams (ed.), Virgil: The Eclogues and Georgics (New York 1979).

Paul Alpers' fresh reading of the bucolic poems accents the way the aesthetic concerns and pleasures of the poems derive from emotional, ethical, and social realities. His interpretations of the poems apply to later works in the same genre and to issues of poetics in general. Coleiro's life work (487 pages) contains general considerations, critical essays on the several eclogues (3, 2, 5, 7, 9 & 1, 6, 4, 8, and 10), and text with apparatus criticus. The apparatus will excite greatest interest and comment. Division into three sections enables Monsignor Coleiro to deal with readings from the main MSS which demand serious attention and study; to record MSS readings which are more or less obvious mistakes but which aid in the reconstruction of the history of the text; and finally, to furnish evidence of ancient testimonia and of scholarship throughout the ages to our own time. Coleiro provides an unusual bird's-eye view of the history of the scholarship of the text of the Bucolics. Thill suggests that Tityrus is indebted to Theocritus' Komatas (Idyll 7). Deryck Williams' new text of the Eclogues and Georgics is marked by acute scholarship, uncanny sensitivity to sound and metre, and astute 'timely' judgment. Scholars and teachers will be forever in his debt: Macmillan has found a worthy successor to the inimitable Page.

ECLOGUES: INDIVIDUAL POEMS

31. M. Smets, 'Bucolica, een poetische ecologie,' Kleio 5 (1975) 111-5.

32. F. P. M. Francissen, 'De natuur verbloemd? De locus amoenus en de overige landschapstypen in Vergilius' tweede Ecloga,' Hermeneus 49 (1977)

75-88.

33. Ian M. LeM. Du Quesnay, 'From Polyphemus to Corydon: Virgil, Eclogue 2 and the Idylls of Theocritus,' Creative Imitation and Latin Literature, David West and Tony Woodman (edd.) (Cambridge 1979) 35-69.

34. Michel Manson, 'L'enfant et l'Age d'Or. La IV<sup>e</sup> Églogue de Virgile,' Présence 49-62.

35. W. R. Nethercut, 'The "Cradle of Flowers" in B. 4. 23,' Vergilius 25 (1979) 32-6.

36. R. Turcan, 'César et Dionysos (Buc. 5),' Hommage à mémoire de Jérôme Carcopino (R. Tomasson, ed.) (Paris 1977) 317-25.

37. Rory B. Egan, 'Satis est potuisse videri,' CW 73 (1980) 379-83.

38. Richard F. Thomas, 'Theocritus, Calvus, and Eclogue 6,' CP 74 (1979) 337-9.

39. G. Benzer, Einige Ansätze strukturalistischen Interpretierens. Mit. Beitr. zu Vergil, Ecl. VII; Horaz, iamb. II und c. I, 9; Tibull I, 6 (Diss. Innsbruck, 1976).

Du Quesnay provides a paradigm of scholarship in his study of creative imitation in Eclogue 2. For him, as for his enlightened reader, the 'constant interplay between model and imitation becomes a source of intellectual and aesthetic pleasure' (p. 68). The relationship with Idyll 11 is virtually omnipresent, with Idyll 3 and other sources percolating alongside with lesser impetus. Manson points to the Augustan concern with children, evident in Catullian epithalamia and in Vergil's enigmatic Fourth Eclogue. Nethercut counters Duckworth (TAPA 89. 1958. 1-8) who transposed verse 23 to follow verse 20 and argues for the preservation of verses 18-25. Turcan refers to Servius, ad Buc. 5.29 to account for the identification of Caesar with Daphnis in Ecl. 5. The ambiguity of Ecl. 6.24 is interpreted by Egan as satis est quod potui videri. Thomas' article underscores Vergil's interest in word play.

GEORGICS: GENERAL STUDIES

40. Aya Betensky, 'The Farmer's Battles,' Virgil's Ascraean Song, 108-119.

41. A. J. Boyle, 'In Medio Caesar: Paradox and Politics in Virgil's Georgics,' Virgil's Ascraean Song, 65-86.

42. Peter Conner, 'The Georgics as Description: Aspects and Qualifications,' Virgil's Ascraean Song, 34-58.

43. A. Cossarini, 'Le Georgiche di Virgilio: ideologia della proprietà,' Giornale filologico ferrarese 2 (1979) 3-20.

44. P. J. Davis, 'Vergil's Georgics and the Pastoral Ideal,' Virgil's Ascraean Song, 22-33.

45. Patricia A. Johnston, Vergil's Agricultural Golden Age: A Study of the Georgics. (Leiden 1980). (Mnemosyne Suppl. 60).

46. Gretchen Kromer, 'The Didactic Tradition in Vergil's Georgics,' Virgil's Ascraean Song, 7-21.

47. Gary B. Miles, Virgil's Georgics: A New Interpretation (Berkeley 1980).

48. Frances Muecke, 'Poetic Self-Consciousness in Georgics II,' Virgil's Ascraean Song, 87-107.

49. Michael O'Loughlin, The Garlands of Repose. The Literary Celebration of Civic and Retired Leisure. The Traditions of Homer and Vergil, Horace, and Montaigne. (Chicago & London 1978). Rev: Charles Fantazzi, CW 73 (1979-80) 254; T. G. Rosenmeyer, Phoenix 33 (1979) 184-6.

50. Michael C. J. Putnam. Virgil's Poem of the Earth: Studies in the Georgics. (Princeton 1979). Rev: W. S. Anderson CO 57 (1980) 116; Palmer Bovie, Vergilius 25 (1979) 73-4.

51. Dorothea Wender, 'From Hesiod to Homer by way of Rome,' Virgil's Ascraean Song 59-64.

Betensky examines the imagery of war in the Georgics where warfare against nature is both a metaphorical ideal and an intrusive reality. Her final remarks concern the farmer's life as the lone continuity, threatened yet surviving, but always on the brink between Golden Age and disaster. Boyle is concerned with the poem's politico-historical frame. Ambivalence, veering towards pessimism, is pervasive and tragic. Human impotence, vulnerability, dissolution and failure; brutishness, pitilessness, injustice (or amorality) are endemic aspects of the mortal world. There are darker tones to the Laudes Italiae. Boyle's essay, contained in the Ramus Collection which he has edited, is a 'bravura' exercise aimed at discovering the nature and meaning of the enigmatic Georgics. Peter Connor argues that Vergil uses description to work on the reader's imagination with the goal of creating a knowledge which is not mere knowing but fresh attitudes. Vergil's most mature examination of otium, for P. J. Davis, is to be found in the Georgics. Patricia Johnston's study of the agricultural golden age, inter alia, shows how the bees of G. 4 become the realization of the nova progenies of E. 4. Vergil's deliberate contrast between Aristaeus and Orpheus marks the displacement of the pastoral by the agricultural ideal. The healing role of Apollo assists the passage to this more complex stage of civilization. Gretchen Kromer discusses the didactic convention and the assumptions underlying its use exemplified for Vergil by Lucretius' De Rerum Natura. She studies the didactic language in the Georgics with emphasis on the poet's narrative or rhetorical stance and argues that Vergil used the convention to examine and question the basic assumptions of the genre. Gary Miles views the Georgics as a case-study of efforts by contemporary Romans to respond to chaotic late Republican times, when idealizations of country life and 'reactionary' attempts to recover the agrarian past were abroad. Miles' perceptive study treats the poem as a series of meditations on several visions of agrarian life. Frances Muecke's study of G. 2 is an insightful study of the self-conscious aspects of Vergil's didactic poem. She provides detailed analyses of such passages in the Georgics. The poem finds its moral and poetic justification in transforming Lucretius' search for individual happiness into a search for the well-being of society. O'Loughlin sees the Georgics as more than a hymn to the work ethic. Vergil's poem is a celebration of labor as a necessary concomitant of festive otium. Dorothea Wender's essay relates the Georgics to its literary predecessors and provides a list (p. 60) of literary borrowings or reminiscences in the Georgics as basis for her brief discussion. The progress is from Hesiodic tradition to Epicureanism (G. 1, 2), thence to the tough-minded impersonal view of Homer (G. 3, 4).

GEORGICS: INDIVIDUAL BOOKS

52. Guido Bonelli, Labor et rus. Il sentimento poetico nei primi due libri delle Georgiche (continuazione e fine), RSC 26 (1978) 496-522.

52A. Judith Mae Cole, Vergil and His Sources: Georgics 1. 311-464. Diss., Brown University, 1979. DA 40 (1980) 6262A.

53. Antonio La Penna, 'Nominis commutatio riflessiva (Virgilio, Ge. 2.247 e una nota di Housman),' RFIC 107 (1979) 5-10.

54. René Martin, 'Statut, fonction et sens du livre II des Géorgiques,' Vita Latina 76 (1979) 2-15.

55. Ward W. Briggs, Jr., 'Amatory Impulses in Georgics III and the Aeneid,' Twenty-Seventh Annual Interstate Foreign Language Conference: Selected Proceedings (M. Laurentino-Suarez, Eduardo Zayas-Bazán, edd.) (1979) 7-14.

56. David West, 'Two Plagues: Virgil, Georgics 3.478-566 and Lucretius 6.1090-1286,' Creative Imitation (33) 71-88.

57. Giovanni Barra, 'La figura di Orfeo nel IV libro delle Georgiche,' Vichiana 4 (1975) 193-9.

58. Aya Betensky, 'The Bees and the Cyclops in the Fourth Georgic,' Vergilius 25 (1979) 26-31.

Ward Briggs offers a succinct, perceptive resumé of amor in G. 3, and the Aeneid. West's contribution analyses the Vergilian plague in light of Lucretius' horror in Athens. Lucretius shows more concern for accurate description of observable phenomena, following Thucydides; Vergil, though indebted to Lucretius, exhibits characteristic traits: rhetorical elaboration, emotion, anthropomorphism, religious asides, and moralizing. His tendency is to write for effect and lose sight of the truth! Betensky examines G. 4.149-227 and studies aspects in which bees and Cyclopes reflect one another: birth, habitat, autonomy, immortality, products, and control of violence. A series of antitheses summarizes the comparison of bees and Cyclopes: bees/Cyclopes = above earth/ below earth; mobile/stationary; autonomous/dependent; mortal/immortal; honey/thunderbolts; special farming/ special technology. 'The logic of daily life, preoccupied with prescribing techniques and enumerating species, gives way to the logic of mythology, which compares the essence of things.' They inhabit different worlds but they can co-exist in a standoff. An armistice exists between the incongruous worlds of farming and war as long as forces which can destroy are directed towards creation, while Jupiter acts as foreman on the celestial assembly line!

AENEID: GENERAL STUDIES

59. Michael von Albrecht, Römische Poesie: Texte und Interpretation (Heidelberg 1977). Rev: Barbara K. Gold, AJP 100 (1979) 449-51; Richard F. Thomas, CP 75 (1980) 167-70.

60. W. P. Basson, 'Vergils se Seining van de Romeinse Geskiedenis,' Acta Classica 22 (1979) 73-90 (English abstract, 88-90).

61. Ward W. Briggs, Jr., Narrative and Simile from the Georgics in the Aeneid (Leiden 1980) (Mnemosyne Suppl. 58).

62. C. Brooks, 'The Heroic Impulse in the Odyssey,' CW 70 (1977) 455-6.

63. Roger Girod, 'Virgile et l'histoire dans l'Énéide,' Présence, 17-33.

64. W. R. Johnson, Darkness Visible. A Study of Vergil's Aeneid. (Berkeley 1979). (Paperback). Rev: N. Horsfall, JRS 69 (1979) 233; H. H. Huxley, EMC 23 (1979) 110; Gordon Williams, CP 75 (1980) 164-7.

65. Patrick Kragelund, Dream and Prediction in the Aeneid (Copenhagen 1976). Rev: N. Horsfall, JRS 69 (1979) 233-4.

66. M. Owen Lee, Fathers and Sons in Virgil's Aeneid (Albany 1979). Rev: Janice M. Benario, CO 57 (1980) 117.

67. Roger Lesueur, 'Civitas et patria. Unité ou dualité du message virgilien dans l'Énéide?', Présence, 35-47.

68. Sara Mack, Patterns of Time in Vergil (Hamden 1978). Rev: Justin Glenn, AJP 100 (1979) 585-6; Philip Holt, CO 57 (1980) 116-7; W. R. Johnson, CP 75 (1980) 174-5; M. C. J. Putnam, CW 73 (1979) 41.

69. Paul-M. Martin, 'L'image et la fonction du roi-tyran dans l'Énéide,' Présence, 63-72.

70. Viktor Pöschl, 'Virgile et la tragédie,' Présence, 73-9.

71. Harry C. Rutledge, 'The Gift-motif in the Aeneid,' Vergil at Sarasota (Gilbert Lawall, ed.) (Amherst, Mass. 1979) 17-23.

72. P.-H. Schrijvers, 'La valeur de la pitié chez Virgile (dans l'Énéide) et chez quelques-uns de ses interprètes,' Présence, 483-95.

Basson deals with Vergil's conception of history and examines A. 6.752-892; A. 1.257-96, and A. 8.626-731. Ward Briggs explores a hitherto ill-defined area of association involving the Georgics and the epic, and provides new insights into the nature of the Vergilian simile. Brooks counters Quinn's isolation of the heroic impulse to the Aeneid and finds its presence in Homeric epic. Lee's study centers on 'the unavailing fathers and dutiful sons' and on Vergil's melancholy vision of 'a failed humanity and a flawed universe.' The pattern of father-son relationships emerges as a dominant shaping force in the epic. The giving of gifts, or a reminder of gifts already given, occurs in each book of the poem. Rutledge examines the gift-motif as a significant part of the ambiguity and irony with which the whole epic is suffused. Schrijvers explores, with Lee, a basic motif of the epic.

AENEID: INDIVIDUAL BOOKS

73. T. E. Kinsey, 'The song of Iopas,' Emerita 47 (1979) 77-86.

74. D. M. Gaunt, 'The creation-theme in epic poetry,' Comp. Lit. 24 (1977) 213-20.

75. G. Stégen, Le Livre I de l'Énéide (Namur 1975). Rev: R. E. H. Westendorp, Mnemosyne 31 (1978) 437-41.

76. Elliot Wirshbo, 'On Mistranslating Vergil, Aeneid 1.203,' CW 73 (1979) 177-8.

77. D. Cogny, 'Un motif rhétorique à Rome, la tête coupée sur le sable (et le sort de Palinure chez Virgile),' ABPO 81 (1974) 647-51.

78. E. J. Kenney, 'Iudicium Transferendi: Virgil, Aeneid 2.469-505 and its antecedents,' Creative Imitation (33), 103-20.

79. M. Organ, 'Fallait-il qu'Hécube intervint Virgile, Aen. II.518-25,' LEC 47 (1979) 11-26.

80. L. Zurli, 'Dira fames (Verg. Aen. III 256),' GIF 8 (1977) 176-80.

81. Steven Farron, 'The Aeneas-Dido Episode as an Attack on Aeneas'

Mission and Rome,' G&R 27 (1980) 34-47.

82. Peter Gruen, 'Facta Impia and Dido's Soliloquy (Aen. 4.590-629),' CB 56 (1980) 65-9.

83. Philip Heuzé, 'Longum Elissae dolorem,' Aion. Le temps chez les Romains (R. Chevallier, ed.). Caesarodunum X bis (Paris 1976) 93-7.

84. Philip Heuzé, 'Sur trois vers de Virgile. Réflexion sur les variations du texte traduit,' Présence, 507-14.

85. Philip Holt, 'Aeneid V: Past and Future,' CJ 75 (1979-80) 110-21.

86. Roland G. Austin, P. Vergili Maronis liber sextus (Oxford 1977). Rev: N. Horsfall, JRS 69 (1979) 231-2; Emily A. McDermott, AJP 100 (1979) 444-6; R. D. Williams, CR 29 (1979) 33-5.

87. J. Bollók, 'Die Tartaros-Szene in der Aeneis,' AUB 4 (1976) 47-61.

88. Frederick E. Brenk, 'Most Beautiful Horror: Baroque Touches in Vergil's Underworld,' CW 73 (1979) 1-7.

89. René Martin, 'Le défi virgilien ou Comment traduire Virgile?,' Présence, 515-26.

90. C. I. Fordyce, P. Vergili Maronis Aeneidos Libri vii-viii (Oxford 1977). Rev: G. Binder, Gymnasium 87 (1980) 105-6; N. Horsfall, CR 29 (1979) 219-23 (deals only with Aen. vii).

91. Pierre Grimal, 'Le Virgile des Écoliers,' Présence, 527-32.

92. K. W. Gransden, Virgil, Aeneid Book VIII (Cambridge 1976). Rev: N. Horsfall, JRS 69 (1979) 232-3.

93. C. Monteleone, 'Eneide 7, 37. L'invocazione ad Erato come segnale,' AC 46 (1977) 184-91.

94. R. Schilling, 'Penatibus et Magnis Dis (Virgile, Énéide 3, 12 et 8, 679),' Miscellanea di Studi Classici in onore di Eugenio Manni (Roma 1979).

The song of Iopas, according to Kinsey, contains no symbolism, although it plays an important role in the development of the Aeneas-Dido relationship. There is also no attempt to arouse Roman prejudice against the Carthaginians. Gaunt examines the bardic song of Iopas which, in his view, fits the occasion, and suits the grandeur of the epic. The Cognys find a rhetorical association for the motif of the severed-head on the river bank or shore-line. Kenney's critical study of the similes in Aen. 2.469-505 introduces Homer, Nicander, Lucretius, and the Georgics. He also explores the encircling structures of 469-500 and the problem of ambiguity attaching to limen and postes in 500-505. Zurli treats the Celaeno prophecy (A. 3.253-7). Farron argues that Vergil deliberately portrays Aeneas' mission as brutal and destructive in Aen. 4. Heuzé compares the agony of Dido and Camilla and comments on the composition of the epic. Breaks with the oriental past and progress towards a Roman future are, for Holt, the main theme of the Fifth Aeneid. Bollók finds the inspiration for A. 6 in an Orphic Catabasis which is indebted to the Egyptian Book of the Dead. Vergil may have discovered his model in Epicurean polemics against popular beliefs. Martin examines A. 6.440-444, and 450-66. Grimal studies A. 8.345-6, 347, 313. Monteleone is concerned with the invocation to the Muse at the start of the Iliadic section of the epic. Erato introduces the impending epithalamium (Aeneas & Lavinia) and follows neoteric patterns. Schilling is concerned with the Kabeiroi of Samothrace.

AENEID: CHARACTERS

95. A. Barchiesi, 'Palinurus, Caieta,' Maia 31 (1979) 3-11.
96. M. Berényi-Révész, 'Le prince "démocratique" de l'Énéide,' AUB 4 (1976) 31-46.
97. E. Della Corte, 'L'action de Junon dans l'Énéide,' BAGB (1980) 49-58.
98. Gregory Elftmann, 'Aeneas in his Prime: Distinctions in Age and the Loneliness of Adulthood in Vergil's Aeneid,' Arethusa 12 (1979) 175-202.
99. Margaret Mary Wall Ross, The Role of Ascanius in the Aeneid. Diss. Vanderbilt, 1977. DA 39 (1978) 862A.
100. Andrée Thill, 'Hector dans l'Énéide ou la succession homérique,' BAGB (1980) 36-48.
101. Carl Trahmann, 'The Tirocinium of Ascanius,' Humanitas (Ohio Classical Conference) 5:1 (1980) 6-19.
102. D. P. van den Berg, 'Aeneas se toespraak in Boek IV van die Aeneis,' Akroterion 22:2 (1977) 10-12.
103. Grace Starry West, 'Vergil's Helpful Sisters: Anna and Juturna in the Aeneid,' Vergilius 25 (1979) 10-19; & Vergil at Sarasota (Gilbert Lawall, ed.) (Amherst, Mass. 1979) 33-44.
104. M. Willumsen, 'Dido ambigua bilinguisque: For en nogten vurdering af Vergils Didofigur,' MT 34-5 (1979) 72-5.

Barchiesi finds analogies between the Palinurus and Caieta accounts. Berényi-Révész finds clementia wanting in Vergil's hero. Fides and amicitia are the bonds of association between Aeneas and his companions. Their harmonious links (marked by the use of laeti) characterise the later unanimity between princeps, senate, and people. Elftmann notes the division between youth and old age in the epic; Vergil's interest in the lifetime and age of individuals is remarkable. Ross and Trahmann are both concerned with Ascanius who emerges as a pattern and ideal, a standard by which others may measure and direct their conduct. Thill argues that the Roman national virtues of virtus, fides, and pietas were present in Homer's Hector. Van den Berg examines the character of Aeneas in his speech (A. 4.333-61). West treats the tragic careers of Anna and Juturna and finds the latter's tragedy more poignant. Pöschl's suggestion that the Aeneid is an epic of love where the deepest tragedy is that people 'loved too much' should properly include Anna and Juturna whose careers are bound to one another through verbal parallels and plot similarities.

TROJAN LEGEND

- 105 J. -Chr. Billigmeier, 'Troy, Taruiša, and the Etruscans,' TALANTA (Proc. Dutch Archaeol. and Hist. Soc.) 8-9 (1977) 5-10.

AENEID: GEOGRAPHY, ART, AND ARCHAEOLOGY

106. Herbert W. Benario, 'Vergil in Britannia Provincia,' Vergil at Sarasota (Gilbert Lawall, ed.) (Amherst, Mass. 1979) 1-4.
107. Stephen Casey, 'A Visit to Cumae,' EMC 23:3 (1979) 98-9.
108. Louis Foucher, 'Les Phéniciens et la geste d'Élissa,' Présence, 1-15.
109. W. Fuchs, 'Die Bildesgeschichte der Flucht des Aeneas,' ANRW 1.4 (1973) 615ff. (plates 49-58).

110. Mario Geymonat, 'Paesaggio drammatico ed esperienza biografica nella "Sila" virgiliana,' Storia e Cultura del Mezzogiorno: studi in memoria di Umberto Caldora (Cosenza-Roma 1979) 9-20.

111. G. Hafner, 'Aeneas und Anchises?,' DAI Archäologischer Anzeiger (1979) 24-7 (4 plates).

112. Heather Hallenberg, 'The Lake of the Avernus and its Elusive Mystery,' Muse (Annual, Mus. of Art and Archaeology, University of Missouri, Columbia) 12 (1978) 49-59.

113. Louise Adams Holland, Lucretius and the Transpadanes (Princeton 1979).

114. N. Horsfall, 'Stesichorus at Bovillae?,' JHS 99 (1979) 26-48.

115. N. Horsfall, 'The Iconography of Aeneas' Flight: A Practical Detail,' Antike Kunst 22 (1979) 104-5.

116. Kenneth Francis Kitchell, Jr., Topographical Cretica: "Topoi" of Classical Crete with Testimonia. Diss., Loyola (Chicago) 1977. DA 38 (1977) 2100A.

117. E. Langmuir, 'Arma virumque . . . Nicolo dell'Abate's Aeneid Gabinetto for Scandiano,' JWI 39 (1976) 151-70.

118. Henri Lavagne, 'Le combat de Darès et Entelle (Énéide, V, 362-472) sur une mosaïque de Villelaure (Vaucluse),' Présence, 133-46.

119. S. Mazzarino, 'La Legge Cumana (- - -) et iis qui in terri(torio) e altri problemi di storia di Cumae,' Acta Antiqua 25 (1977) 447-66.

120. B. Pasquier, 'Iconographie virgilienne dans l'édition d'Ogilvius,' L'influence de la Grèce et de Rome sur l'occident moderne; Actes du Colloque. R. Chevallier (ed.) Caesarodunum XII bis (Paris 1977) 163-72.

121. B. Stenoit, 'La "tömbe" d'Énée: littérature et archéologie,' LEC 45 (1977) 375-6.

122. Richard Felstead Thomas, Ethnography and the landscapes of Augustan Poetry. Diss., University of Michigan, 1977. DA 38 (1977) 3466A-3467A.

123. Hector Williams, 'New Representations of the Battle of Actium' (abstract), AJA 84 (1980) 240.

123A. Susan Woodford and Margot Loudon, 'Two Trojan Themes: The Iconography of Ajax Carrying the Body of Achilles and of Aeneas Carrying Anchises in Black Figure Vase Painting,' AJA 84 (1980) 25-40.

Benario's paper is reprinted from Vergilius 24 (1978). Foucher is concerned with the historicity of A. 1. Horsfall (114) is concerned with the Tabulae Iliacae, and (115) with a Black-figure kalpis, at Montreal, which pictures a figure carrying a receptacle for dowries associated oddly with the passage to exile. Langmuir finds that dell'Abate's frescoes correspond with the Aeneid text so closely that the Modenese painter must have had a scholarly informant (Sebastiano Corrado?), possibly a protégé of Pietro Bembo, owner of the Vatican Vergil. Mazzarino (pp. 453-8) deals with the origins of the oracle at Cumae. Pasquier examines two engravings in the illustrated text of Vergil (London 1663): the magic scene in A. 4.507-11, and the removal of Pallas' swordbelt by Turnus (A. 10.495-502). Williams examines a Roman lamp with the representation of a polyreme with soldiers and with a figure in the form of a centaur hurling a huge rock. The Augustan relief recalls Propertius 4, 6 and the Centaur in A. 10.195. Louise Adams

Holland's remarkable study includes Vergil in its intriguing compass. She shows that Lucretius came from the same area of Northern Italy – the Transpadane – as Catullus and Vergil. She examines language-attitudes and peculiarities of the period, the historical relations between poets from the provinces and the urban audience in Rome, and the personal and political connections of literary figures of the period. She also argues that the original dedication of De Rerum Natura was to Julius Caesar.

RELIGION AND PHILOSOPHY

124. William Sadler Bonds, Joy and Desire in the 'Aeneid': Stoicism in Vergil's Treatment of Emotion. Diss., University of Pennsylvania, 1978. DA 39 (1979) 6110A.

125. Pierre Grimal, 'Vergilius Maro and Dogones,' VL 66 (1977) 4-7.

126. Walter Pötscher, Vergil und die göttlichen Mächte: Aspekte seiner Weltanschauung (New York 1977) (Spudasmata, Band 35).

127. Graves H. Thompson, 'Aeneid sans Gods,' Vergil at Sarasota (Gilbert Lawall, ed.) (Amherst, Mass. 1979) 24-32.

128. Agathe Thornton, The Living Universe: Gods and Men in Virgil's Aeneid (Leiden 1976). Rev: N. Horsfall, JRS 69 (1979) 234; M. C. J. Putnam, CW 73 (1979) 40-41; G. B. Townsend, CR 29 (1979) 35-7.

Grimal finds analogies between the funerary rites of A. 5 and those still in use among the Dogons. He argues that the funeral masks may have Ethiopian prototypes. Thompson argues that the gods of the epic are entirely unnecessary for the unfolding of the story (so too, with Berlioz' Les Troyens).

ROME AND AUGUSTUS

129. M. Caltabiano, 'La morte del console Marcello nella tradizione storiografica' CISA 3 (1975) 65-81.

130. Pierre Grimal, 'Le temps d'Auguste. Maturité poétique de Rome,' Rome et nous. Manuel d'initiation à la littérature et la civilisation latines. Dix-huit études. (P. Serbat, ed.) (Paris 1977) 133-48.

Caltabiano argues that Augustus tried to erase negative aspects of the tradition attaching to Marcellus. Coelius Antipater (and Livy) recounted the impiety of the consul (and the defection of the Etruscans). Vergil, Propertius, and Valerius Maximus reflect a revised tradition attaching to M. Claudius Marcellus.

VERGIL AND OTHER AUGUSTAN POETS

131. R. D. Anderson, P. J. Parsons, and R. G. M. Nisbet, 'Elegiacs by Gallus from Qasr Ibrim,' JRS 69 (1979) 125-55. (3 plates).

132. P. Boyancé, 'L'inspiration de la seizième Epode,' Mélanges offerts à Léopold Sedar Senghor. Langues, littérature, histoire anciennes (Dakar 1977) 27-35.

133. J. Ferguson, 'Some verbal effects in Ovid's Metamorphoses,' MusAfr 4 (1975) 17-26.

134. A. H. Griffin, 'Ovid's Metamorphoses,' G&R 24 (1977) 57-70.

135. Edwin A. Judge, 'Veni, Vidi, Vici, and the Inscription of Cornelius Gallus,' Akten des VI. International Kongress für Griechische und Lateinische

Epigraphik München 1972 (München 1973) 571-3

136. Guy Lee, 'The Gallan Elegiacs,' LCM 5.2 (1980) 45-6

137. Ciro Monteleone, 'Esegesi Ovidiana dell'ecloga seconda di Virgilio,' RhM 122 (1979) 88-90.

138. M. C. J. Putnam, 'Propertius 3.22,' ICS 2 (1977) 240-54.

139. Kenneth Quinn, Texts and Contexts. The Roman Writers and their Audience. (Boston, London 1979).

140. Eleanor S. Rutledge, 'Vergil and Ovid on the Tiber,' CJ 75 (1980) 301-04.

141. Charles F. Saylor, 'Horace, C. 1.2 and Vergil's Storm (Aen. 1.81ff.),' Vergilius 25 (1979) 20-25.

142. Dorothy Burr Thompson, 'The Tazza Farnese Reconsidered,' Das ptolemäische Ägypten. Akten des internationalen Symposions 27.-29. September 1976 in Berlin. Herwig Maehler, Volker Michael Strocka (edd.) (Mainz 1977) 113-22.

143. J. Van Sickle, 'Gallus and Callimachus: parallel texts,' LCM 5.5 (1980) 109.

The shadowy figure of Cornelius Gallus has come into sharper focus lately. The fragmentary elegiacs discovered at Qasr Ibrim have been submitted to searching analysis by several scholars (131) and Vergil's links with the careerist poet have claimed some attention (op. cit., 148-55). Judge's article introduces the inscription at Philae (ILS 8995), the Vatican obelisk, and the Cleveland portrait (?) (cf. G. Grimm, JDAI 85 [1970] 158-70). Dorothy Thompson's search for an historical background for the Tazza Farnese in Naples leads to Actium. The spirit and detail of Vergil's description are similar; there is no place for rejoicing, only lamentation (cf. A. 8.707ff., and 680). Thompson suggests Gallan (and Octavian) associations and speculates that Vergil may have seen a comparable tableau in the triumphal procession. Lee suggests that the fragmentary elegiacs may be seen as parts of one complex poem rather than as separate epigrams, and Van Sickle compares the P. Qasr Ibrim lines with Callimachus Epigram 15(Pf.) where he detects comparable arrangement of words and other parallels. Boyancé argues that Horace Epode 16 preceded Vergil Ecl. 4. Saylor suggests that the storm of Horace c. 1, 2 may have found inspiration in the storm of Aeneid 1 (or Georgic 1). Ferguson detects word play, imitation of Catullus and Vergil, golden lines, rhyme, rhythms, and effects reminiscent of Vergil in Ovid's Metamorphoses. Griffin argues that Ovid's Metamorphoses, though less well organised than Vergil's epic, offers an equally valid interpretation of reality. Putnam argues that Propertius measured his thought in 3.22 against Georgic 2 (Laudes Italiae) and that the moral dilemmas of the Aeneid may have been equally important to Ovid. Rutledge finds similarities between Fasti 5.637-62, and Aeneid 8.31-67.

STYLE, LANGUAGE, AND METRE

144. J. David Bishop, 'Vergilian semper "at any time" and et "even",' CW 73 (1979) 175-6.

145. Ward W. Briggs, Jr., 'Eurydice, Venus, and Creusa: A Note on Structure,' Vergilius 25 (1979) 43-5

146. Robert J. Edgeworth, 'Epithets for Honey,' Vergilius 25 (1979) 41-2.
147. Robert J. Edgeworth, 'Associative Use of Color in the Aeneid,' CW 73 (1979) 167-70.
148. E. L. Harrison, 'Snakes and Buskins, (Aen. 1.314ff.),' Eranos 77 (1979) 51-6 (contra. Richmond, Vergilius 23 (1977) # 117).
149. T. E. Kinsey, 'The meaning of interea in Virgil's Aeneid,' Glotta 57 (1979) 259-65.
150. G. Ravenna, 'L'ekphrasis poetica di opere d'arte in latino. Temi e problemi,' QIFL 3 (1974) 1-52.
151. A. Richter-Thill, 'Aspects italiqes dans les descriptions de la nature chez Ennius et Virgile,' BFLM 4 (1971-2) 3-11.
152. B. Sanchez Muñoz, 'La hendiadis en Virgilio,' Eclás 20 (1976) 45-7.
153. Robert Schmiel, 'A Vergilian Formula,' Vergilius 25 (1979) 37-40.
154. J. Shea, 'Lucretius, lightning, and Lipari,' CP 72 (1977) 136-8.
155. Phillip L. Thomas, 'Red and White: A Roman Color Symbol,' RhM 122 (1979) 310-16.
156. A. J. Vaccaro, 'Irregularidades y curiosidades en el hexámetro de las Eglogas,' Eclás 20 (1976) 9-44.

Ward Briggs' note shows how Vergil adapts part of the structure of a passage which is distinctively epic in tone, the loss of Eurydice (G. 4. 481-527), and uses it twice in passages describing Aeneas' interviews with Venus, and with Creusa, in Aeneid 2. Deliberate variation of obvious repetition is characteristic of Vergil. Edgeworth notes that Vergil never mentions the colour of honey but refers eight times to its liquid state. He understood what chloros meant (liquid, moist) and sought to reflect that meaning in his choice of words. Harrison's retort to Richmond's discussion of Vergil's use of symbols is concerned most with A. 1.314ff, Aeneas' encounter with Venus disguised as Artemis-Diana. Richter-Thill notes that Vergil accents relations between earthly creatures and the world that envelops them. Schmiel examines the resonances of Catullus 101 (Multas per gentes et multa per aequora vectus) in Vergil. Usages occur in contexts of travel, death, and human loss. Shea notes analogies between Lucretius 6.172-203, and Aen. 2.52-6, and 8.407-53. Vergil borrows and interprets the Lucretian passage within the framework of the Aeolus myth. Thomas suggests that white and red flowers normally presage death (poppies, lilies, etc). Jointly, or individually, the two colours indicate present or imminent death.

INTERPRETATION AND TEXT CRITICISM

157. G. S. Romaniello, Interpolazioni e contraddizioni nel testo dell'Eneide (Roma 1975). Rev: Von Albrecht, Gymnasium 84 (1977) 63-5; Kenney, Gnomon 49 (1977) 624-5

VERGIL AND EARLIER WRITERS

158. Marcella Carvelli, 'Alcune considerazioni sulla saga di Diomede fino a Fabio Pittore,' BStudLat 7 (1977) 307-15.
159. Ignazio Cazzaniga, 'Osservazioni critico-testuali ad alcuni passi delle Georgiche nicandree,' ASNP 9 (1979) 59-77.
160. A. M. Crabbe, 'Ignoscenda quidem . . . Catullus 64 and the Fourth

Georgic, 'CQ 27 (1977) 342-51.

161. C. A. Disandro, 'Virgilio y su mundo poetico,' Semanas de estudios romanos 1 (1977) (A. Etchegaray Cruz, ed.) (Valparaiso 1977).

162. E. L. Harrison, 'Virgil and the Tradition,' PCA 76 (1979) 28-9.

163. D. A. Russell, 'De imitatione,' Creative Imitation, (33) 1-16.

164. M. Smets, 'Wanneer Vergilius Homerus imiteert,' Kleio 7 (1977) 173-6.

165. R. G. Tanner, 'The Evolution of Roman Epic,' PACA 12 (1973) 15-23.

Crabbe shows that words and images in the Aristaeus episode (G. 4) are influenced by Catullus' Peleus and Thetis. Harrison reminds us that Homer was a Greek, and that Vergil was a 'Trojan' who sought to 'put the record straight'. Vergil reacts to the Iliad on several occasions, and seeks to vindicate Apollo. Russell provides the introductory essay to the West & Woodman collection. The article treats Valerius Probus' remarks on Odyssey 6.102ff and Virgil's simile (Aen. 1.498ff). Other commentators are introduced (Gallus, Macrobius). Favorinus of Arles found links between Aen. 3.570ff and Pindar, Pyth. 1.21ff. The ancient process of detection and comment favours the factual, stylistic, polemical approach. Their criteria of realism, moral appropriateness, and grammatical accuracy are superficial and unhelpful. Caveant imitatores! Smets compares Odyssey 12.403-6 and Aen. 3.192-5.

ANCIENT AUTHORS AFTER VERGIL

166. L. Baldini Moscardi, 'Osservazioni sul' episodio magico del VI libro della Farsaglia, 'SIFC 48 (1976) 140-99.

167. B. Baldwin, 'Verses in the Historia Augusta, 'BICS 25 (1978) 50-57.

168. E. Borszák, 'Lucain entre Virgile et Tacite,' BAGB (1980) 59-73.

169. Jean-Pierre Callu, 'Impius Aeneas? Échos virgiliens du Bas-Empire,' Présence, 161-74.

170. T. Cupaiuolo, Itinerario della poesia latina nel I secolo dell'Impero (Napoli 1978). Rev: M. von Albrecht, Gymnasium 87 (1980) 109-11.

171. Jean Doignon, 'Les images virgiliennes d'Apollon et le vrai soleil d'Augustin à Cassiciacum,' Présence, 175-83.

172. Antonino Grillo, 'La presenza di Virgilio in Sedulio poeta parafrastico,' Présence, 185-94.

173. E. Narducci, 'Allusività e autodemistificazione. Lucano vii, 254-63,' Maia 28 (1976) 127-8.

174. F. Quadlbauer, 'Lukan in schema des ordo naturalis-artificialis. Ein Beitrag zur Geschichte der Lukanbewertung in lateinischen Mittelalter,' GB 7 (1977) 67-105.

175. Gerhard Radke, 'Die Deutung der 4. Ekloge Vergils durch Kaiser Konstantin,' Présence, 147-59.

176. H. Szelest, 'Vergil in den Adnotationes super Lucanum, 'Eos 66 (1978) 61-72.

177. Anne-Marie Taisne, 'Virgile, modèle de Stace, peintre animalier,' Présence, 105-131.

178. Gordon Williams, Change and Decline: Roman Literature in the Early Empire (Berkeley 1978) (Sather Lectures, no. 45).

Baldini Moscadi assesses Pharsalia 6 as a response to Aeneid 6. Scaeva is a negative version of the pious Aeneas, and Lucan's book ends with a scene of necromancy, the antithesis of Vergil's underworld account. Baldwin finds Vergilianisms in the Historia Augusta. Szelest treats Vergil as a source for Lucan.

ANCIENT LIVES

179. Teiras Oksala, 'Warum wollte Vergil die Aeneis verbrennen?,' Arctos 12 (1978) 89-100.

ANCIENT AND MEDIAEVAL COMMENTARIES

180. E. G. Schreiber, Thomas E. Maresca (edd.), Commentary on the First Six Books of Virgil's Aeneid by Bernardus Silvestris (Lincoln, Nebraska 1980).

181. A. M. Tempesti, 'Quinto Terenzio Scauro, grammatico adrianeo,' SRIL 1 (1977) 175-220.

Q. Terentius Scaurus commented on Vergil, Plautus and Horace. His interests were largely prosodic and metric. Schreiber and Maresca provide the first English translation of Bernardus Silvestris' Commentary on Aeneid 1-6. The translation is based on the authoritative text provided by Julian Ward Jones and Elizabeth Frances Jones.

VERGIL AND LATER AGES

182. L. Alfonsi, 'Considerazioni sul virgilianesimo del Waltharius,' Studi filol. lett. e stor. in mem. di Guido Favati (G. Varanini, P. Pinagli edd.) (Padova 1977) 3-14.

183. André Arcellashi, 'Pagnol traducteur de Virgile présent parmi nous,' Présence, 469-82.

184. Jean Batany, 'Le "Bonheur des Paysans" des Géorgiques au Bas Moyen Age,' Présence, 233-48.

185. E. Cadoni, 'Le citazioni virgiliane del De compendiosa doctrina,' Studi Noniani 4. Pubbl. Ist. di Filol. class. e mediev. 51 (Genova 1977) 51-195.

186. D. D. Carnicelli, 'The Widow and the Phoenix: Dido, Carthage, and Tunis in The Tempest,' Harvard Library Bulletin 27 (1979) 389-433.

187. Jean Céard, 'Virgile, un grand homme soupçonné de magie,' Présence, 265-78.

188. Raymond Chevallier, 'Lecture de Virgile par un scientifique du XVIII<sup>e</sup> siècle: J. de Lalande dans son Voyage d'un Français en Italie fait dans les années 1765 à 1766, Venise, 1769,' Présence, 393-410.

189. Vincent J. Cleary, 'Charles and the Chocolate Factory and Aeneid 6: A Comparative Study,' CB 56 (1979) 17-23.

190. M. & Mme. Pierre Cogny, 'Tapinose et auxèse dans deux traductions de l'Énéide,' Présence, 367-76.

191. F. E. Consolino, 'L'Appello al lettore nell'epitaffio della tarda latinità,' Maia 28 (1976) 129-43.

192. A. Cossarini, 'Aspetti di Virgilio in Columella,' Prometheus 3 (1977) 225-40.

193. P. Courcelle, 'Littérature latine d'époque chrétienne,' AEHE (Sect. 4)

(1975-6) 397-403.

194. P. Courcelle, 'Littérature latine,' ACF 77 (1977-78) 663-72.

195. J. Doignon, 'Le placitum eschatologique attribué aux Stoïciens par Lactance (Institutiones divinae 7, 20). Un exemple de contamination de modèles littéraires,' RPh 51 (1977) 43-55.

196. Gertrude C. Drake, Clarence A. Forbes (edd.), The Christiad. By Marco Girolamo Vida. (Carbondale, Illinois 1978).

197. B. T. Ebeling-Koning, Style and Structure in Ekkehard's Waltharius. Diss., Columbia University, 1977. DA 38 (1977) 2759A.

198. Daniel Mark Epstein, 'Ode to Virgil,' Kenyon Review 1:4 (1979) 12-5.

199. M. Feo, 'Inquietudini filologiche del Petrarca. Il luogo della discesa agli Inferi (Storia di una citazione),' IMU 17 (1974) 115-83.

200. René Frénaux, 'Montaigne et Virgile,' Présence, 333-46.

201. W. H. Friedrich, 'Zu Ausonius,' W. H. Friedrich. Dauer in Wechsel. Aufsätze. (C. J. Classen, U. Schindel, edd.) (Göttingen 1977) 269.

202. G. Gasparotto, 'Sull'ordine di alcuni frammenti delle Historiae sallustianae: (Verg. Aen. III.396-402; 410-432) & Isid. Etymol. XIII, 18, 5-6; XIV, 6, 34),' AAPat 83:3 (1970-71) 67-92.

203. Martine Gorrichon, 'A. Dunoyer de Segonzac illustrateur des Géorgiques,' Présence, 425-42.

204. Jean Marie Goulemot, 'L'effet Virgile dans les Mémoires de Jamerey Duval,' Présence, 383-91.

205. G. Guttilla, 'Motivi virgiliani e calpurniani nel Cap. III dell'Agricola,' ALGP 3 (11-13) 1974-76 (1977) 272-88.

206. Philippe Heuzé, 'Berlioz, lecteur de Virgile d'après les deux premiers actes des Troyens,' Présence, 365-73.

207. Louis Holtz, 'La Survie de Virgile dans le Haut Moyen Age,' Présence, 209-22.

208. W. Huebner, 'Das Sternbild der Waage bei den römischen Dichtern,' A&A 23 (1977) 50-63.

209. Jozef Ijsewijn, 'Vivès et Virgile,' Présence, 313-321.

210. Georges Kouskoff, 'Présence de Virgile dans l'oeuvre d'Andreas Fricius Modrevius,' Présence, 323-331.

211. Arthur Michael Haycock Laing, Pastoral Paradox: Studies in Theocritus, Virgil, Barclay, and Spenser. Diss., University of Toronto, 1979. DA 40 (1980) 4607A.

212. G. Lenoir, 'La Fontaine et Virgile. Étude sur les sources de la Fable Le songe d'un habitant du Mogol (xi. 4),' Présence, 377-82.

213. Michael D. McGaha, 'Cervantes and Virgil: A New Look at an Old Problem,' CLS 16 (1979) 96-109.

214. Germain Marc'Hadour, 'Virgile dans l'Angleterre de Thomas More,' Présence, 305-12.

215. James Angus Ogilvy, Visions of God: Accommodation and the Reader in the Epics of Homer, Virgil, Vida and Milton. Diss., University of Toronto, 1978. DA 40 (1979) 239A.

216. Ellen Zetzel Lambert, Placing Sorrow: A Study of the Pastoral Elegy Convention from Theocritus to Milton (Chapel Hill 1976). Rev: Richard Jenkyns, CR 29 (1979) 159.

217. Antonio La Penna, 'Fra Tersite e Drance: note sulla fortuna di un personaggio virgiliano,' Présence, 347-65.

218. Jean-Claude Margolin, 'Érasme, lecteur et exégète de Virgile,' Présence, 289-304.

219. Alain Michel, 'Sur quelques vers de la "Manto": Politien lecteur de Virgile,' Présence, 279-87.

220. J. Mosdorf, 'Qua ratione Vergilii fabula de Aeneae ac Didonis amore a poetis et scriptoribus posteriorum temporum tractata sit,' Meander 32 (1977) 96-106.

221. A. V. Nazzaro, 'Sui versus ad fratrem corripiendum di papa Damaso,' Koinonia 1 (1977) 195-203.

222. Fred J. Nichols, An Anthology of Neo Latin Poetry (New Haven 1979).

223. R. Palla, 'Aeterna in saecula in Giovenco, Praefatio 17,' SCO 26 (1977) 277-82.

224. L. Paoletti, 'Virgilio e Boccaccio,' Présence, 249-63.

225. E. Pasoli, 'Volta e la classicità,' Quad. del Giorn. di Fisica 2, 3 (1976) 17-28.

226. A. Pieri, Lucrezio in Macrobio. Adattamenti al testo virgiliano. Bibl. di cultura contemp. 126 (Messina 1977). Rev: Piscitelli Carpino, BStudLat 7 (1977) 361-2.

227. D. Poirion, 'De l'Énéide à l'Énéas. Mythologie et moralisation,' CCM 19 (1976) 213-29.

228. Jean Préaux, 'Du Culex de Virgile à son pastiche par Thierry de Saint-Trond,' Présence, 195-208.

229. D. L. Quint, The source as a Renaissance metaphor. Imitations of the Fourth Georgic in Renaissance Literature. Diss., Yale University, 1976. DA 38 (1977) 249A.

230. Meyer Reinhold, 'Lowell and Classical Myths,' Helios 8:1 (1980) 1-18.

231. M. L. Ricci, 'Note al centone Versus ad gratiam Domini attribuito a Pomponio (719a Riese),' AFMB 14, 1974-5, 1975-6 (1977) 103-21.

232. Wolfgang E. H. Rudat, 'Another Look at the Limits of Allusion: Pope's Rape of the Lock and the Virgilian Tradition,' DUJ (Dec. 1978) 27-34.

233. Wolfgang E. H. Rudat, 'Shakespeare and Virgil Parodied: The Rape of Lucrece in the light of Pope's Rape of the Lock,' Eighteenth-Century Life 2 (1976) 98-102.

234. M. Sarrabezolles, 'Hermann Broch, der Tod des Vergil ou l'Énéide en Autriche à l'époque de l'Anschluss. Une psychanalyse vraisemblable du génie de Virgile,' Présence, 443-55.

235. Ch.-M. Ternes, 'Le dialogue entre le Prince et le Poète dans der Tod des Vergil,' Présence, 457-68.

236. Graves Haydon Thompson, 'A Note on Flaubert and Vergil,' CO 57 (1979) 31.

237. A. -M. Tupet, 'La survie d'un thème virgilien: La Fama,' Présence, 497-505.

238. Simone Viarre, 'L'Interprétation de l'Énéide' à propos d'un commentaire du douzième siècle,' Présence, 223-32.

239. Mark Preston Weadon, The English Virgil: Dryden's Aeneis as an Augustan Epic. Diss., University of Michigan, 1979. DA 40 (1979) 878A-879A.

240. Howard D. Weibrot, Augustus Caesar in 'Augustan' England. (Princeton 1978). Rev: C. R. Kropf, Vergilius 25 (1979) 70-71.

241. Susan Ford Wiltshire, 'Aeneas in America,' Vergilius 25 (1979) 2-9.

Mediaeval, Renaissance, Eighteenth Century and modern uses and translations of Vergil are prime subject-matter in the Caesarodunum volume edited by Chevallier. Cadoni's article treating De compendiosa doctrina advances variant readings for Vergil's works. Courcelle (194) probes the Christian interpretation of A. 7.338 mille nocendi artes and (195) the literary posterity of A. 2.1-338. Franchey d'Espèrey treats the wounding of Silvia's stag as archetype for comparable incidents in Statius, Valerius Flaccus, and Silius Italicus. Doignon finds reminiscences of Vergil and Seneca in Lactantius. Drake and Forbes establish that Vida's Christiad was token of the piety of the High Renaissance, the metamorphosis of the Vulgate into a Vergilian counterpart, a marriage of Classical and Biblical styles and forms. Ebeling-Koning studies the influence of Vergil and Prudentius on Waltharius. Epstein's verses on Virgil are noteworthy. Feo's article sheds light on Petrarch's doubts about the Homeric and Vergilian Hades. Friedrich examines Servius ad Aen. 12.605 and Mosella 316. Huebner studies G. 1.33-5 and Claudian. McGaha notes that Cervantes' Don Quixote eliminated the flaws which diminished the credibility of Vergil's epic: the reliance on magic, and divine machinery. Cervantes Christianized the Roman doctrine of fate and created a 'modern' hero, not the plaster saint which mediaeval and Renaissance commentators had made of Aeneas. Nazzaro argues that Pope Damasius used Vergil's Eclogue less in sympathy than in conflict. The ideology and literary values of Vergil were adverse to Christian notions. Volta used Lucretian and Vergilian tags in editing his scientific treatises, according to Pasoli. Poirion underscores the ideological transformation of Vergil in the Roman d'Énéas. Allegory eased the adaptation to new political, social, and aesthetic conditions. Reinhold examines Robert Lowell's distortion of Vergil's Second Aeneid; he assigns the role of Aeneas to Ulysses as narrator of the fall of Troy. Magna pars fui, says Vergil's hero; 'He had his part' says Lowell of Ulysses! Ricci studies a Vergilian cento from the standpoint of theme, structure, genre, meaning, and text. Rudat's essays highlight the destruction of the epic poem and the epic hero. Thompson notices a classical allusion (Quos ego . . .) in Chapter One of Flaubert's Madame Bovary. Susan Wiltshire explores the myth of Old Troy in the American tradition: novels by Jo Reinhard Smith and Laura Krey, and works by Allen Tate and Robert Penn Warren. Homecomings are paramount: 'the homecoming is a problematic one . . . and as perilous as life — but it is this journey that defines Vergil's poem as the epic of civilization'.

McMaster University
Hamilton, Canada

A. G. McKay