

VERGILIAN BIBLIOGRAPHY XIX 1980-81

Author(s): A. G. McKay

Source: Vergilius (1959-), 1981, No. 27 (1981), pp. 57-71

Published by: The Vergilian Society

Stable URL: <https://www.jstor.org/stable/41591861>

---

JSTOR is a not-for-profit service that helps scholars, researchers, and students discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content in a trusted digital archive. We use information technology and tools to increase productivity and facilitate new forms of scholarship. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org

Your use of the JSTOR archive indicates your acceptance of the Terms & Conditions of Use, available at <https://about.jstor.org/terms>

JSTOR

The Vergilian Society is collaborating with JSTOR to digitize, preserve and extend access to Vergilius (1959-)

VERGILIAN BIBLIOGRAPHY XIX 1980-81

The present survey of Vergilian scholarship is the nineteenth in the Vergilius series. Classical World 68:1 (1974), published in association with the Vergilian Society, Inc., contains my 'Recent Work on Vergil: A Bibliographical Survey, 1964-73.' The survey was reprinted in The Classical World Bibliography of Vergil (Walter Donlan, ed.), Garland Publishing, Inc. (New York & London 1978). Subsequent surveys have appeared in Vergilius 19 (1973), 20 (1974), 21 (1975), 22 (1976), 23 (1977), 24 (1978), 25 (1979) and 26 (1980).

Several noteworthy collections are contained in the 1980-81 Bibliography. Arethusa marked the bimillennium of Vergil's death with a special issue containing an Introduction by M. C. J. Putnam (7-15), a modern bibliography (179-86), and eleven articles. Aufstieg und Niedergang der römischen Welt (Berlin 1979, 1980) made its impressive bibliographies available to an appreciative readership during the year. Special celebrations of the Bimillennium in Italy (19-24 September 1981), the Vergilian Society's colloquium at Cumae (19-23 July 1982), and other conventions in Mainz and Prague (to mention only a few) promise to release cascades of appreciation for the Master Poet during the ensuing year.

Gratitude is owing to the Mills Memorial Library of McMaster University, to the Robarts Library of the University of Toronto, to the Firestone Library of Princeton University, and to the collections and courtesies of the Library of the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton. Offprints of articles and bibliographic notices for inclusion in the annual Vergilius review arrive throughout the year as a largesse which is enormously welcome and helpful. Please address correspondence to Professor A. G. McKay, Department of Classics, McMaster University, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada L8S 4M2.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

1. 'Virgil: 2000 Years,' Arethusa 14:1 (1981) 179-86.
2. W. W. Briggs, Jr., 'A Bibliography of Virgil's Eclogues (1927-1977),' ANRW II.31.2 (1981) 1265-1357.
3. A. G. McKay, 'Vergilian Bibliography,' Vergilius 26 (1980) 56-73.
4. J. Richmond, 'Recent Work on the "Appendix Vergiliana" (1950-1975),' ANRW II.31.2 (1981) 1112-1154.
5. W. Suerbaum, 'Hundert Jahre Vergil-Forschung: Eine systematische Arbeitsbibliographie mit besonderer Berücksichtigung der Aeneis,' ANRW II.31.1 (1980) 3-358.
6. W. Suerbaum, 'Spezialbibliographie zu Vergils Georgica,' ANRW II.31.1 (1980) 395-499.
7. W. Suerbaum, 'Von der Vita Vergiliana über die Accessus Vergiliani zum Zauberer Virgilius, Probleme-Perspektiven-Analysen,' ANRW II.31.2 (1981) 1156-1262.
8. J. Wikarjak, 'De Aeneidos libris in Polonum translatis,' (Polish, Latin abstract) SPhP 3 (1977) 91-173.

EDITIONS AND TRANSLATIONS

9. Guy Lee, Virgil's Eclogues. The Latin text with a Verse translation and brief notes. (Liverpool Latin Texts: Classical and Medieval) (Liverpool 1980).

Mandelbaum's verse translation, probably most popular in the college circuit, has been reissued with a new preface and illustrations by B. Moser (1981).

Guy Lee's verse translation of the Bucolics contains a helpful introduction, notes, and variant readings.

APPENDIX VERGILIANA

10. R.O.A.M. Lyne, Ciris: A Poem attributed to Virgil (Cambridge 1978). Rev: John Henderson, CR 30 (1980) 200-204.

ECLOGUES: GENERAL STUDIES

11. Paul Alpers, The Singer of the Eclogues (Berkeley 1979). Rev: M.C.J. Putnam, Vergilius 26 (1980) 74-77; J.E.G. Zetzel, CJ 76 (1981) 364-6.

12. T. M. Klein, 'The Greek Shepherd in Vergil, Gide, Genet, and Barthes,' Helios 6 (1978) 1-32.

13. John Van Sickle, The Design of Virgil's Bucolics (Roma 1978). Rev: I. M. LeM. DuQuesnay, LCM 5:10 (1980) 245-50.

14. John Van Sickle, 'Bucolic variatio and single-minded reading,' LCM 6:7 (1981) 189-91.

15. John Van Sickle, 'Reading Vergil's Eclogue Book,' ANRW II.31.1 (1980) 576-603.

16. John Van Sickle, 'The Bookroll and Some Conventions of the Poetic Book,' Arethusa 13 (1980) 5-42.

Alpers' version of the pastoral poems continues to win supporters. Van Sickle has adopted a combative position vis-à-vis unfavourable criticism and has challenged DuQuesnay's reflective critique in the Liverpool monthly. Van Sickle's argument, that the Eclogues form an integrated design, together with his arguments regarding the composition and arrangement of Roman poetry books, attains a high-water mark in Vergilian criticism.

ECLOGUES: INDIVIDUAL POEMS

17. M. Geymonat, 'Verg. Buc. II 24,' Museum Criticum 13-14 (1978-79) 371-6.

18. W. Kraus, 'Vergils vierte Ekloge: Ein kritisches Hypomnema,' ANRW II.31.1 (1980) 604-45.

19. St. Benko, 'Virgil's Fourth Eclogue in Christian Interpretation,' ANRW II.31.1 (1980) 646-705.

20. I. M. LeM. DuQuesnay, 'Virgil's Fifth Eclogue: The Song of Mopsus and the new Daphnis,' PVS 16 (1976-7) 18-41.

21. John Van Sickle, 'Commentaria in Maronem Commenticia: A Case History of Bucolics Misread,' Arethusa 14 (1981) 17-33. (Appendix: The Indivisibility of the Eighth Eclogue and the Achronicity of the Bucolics, ibid., 33-4.)

22. Rolf Westman, 'Zur Apotheose des Daphnis bei Vergil,' Arctos 14 (1980) 115-25.

Geymonat notes that the allusive obscurity of Ecl. 2.24 associates Actaeo with Actaeon. Kraus provides a commentary on Ecl. 4.1-63, an excursus on 62, and a perspective of recent scholarship (641-4). Benko's contribution provides a Latin text and English translation, commentary, and interpretations of the Messianic Eclogue. The article is noteworthy for its assembly of modern interpretations (682-7) and bibliography (702-5). DuQuesnay's address is characteristically perceptive and instructive. Van Sickle traces the debate about the dedicatee of Ecl. 8, and opts for Octavian over Pollio, with reasons for the apostrophe relating to Octavian in the evolution of the Eclogue-book. Westman favours lumen over limen (Ecl. 5.56. candidus insuetum miratur limen Olympi).

GEORGICS: GENERAL STUDIES

23. N. Balmer, 'Strutture retorico-poetiche delle Georgiche di Virgilio: la collocazione delle parole,' ScrPhil 1 (1977) 49-104.

24. A. J. Boyle, (ed.), Virgil's Ascræan Song. RAMUS Essays on the Georgics. (Berwick 1979). Rev: Jasper Griffin, CR 31 (1981) 28-31.

25. P. J. Davis, 'Unity and Meaning in Vergil's Georgics,' Studies in Latin Literature and Roman History II (ed. Carl Deroux) (Brussels 1980) (Collection Latomus 168) 138-56.

26. Patricia A. Johnston, Vergil's Agricultural Golden Age. A Study of the Georgics (Leiden 1980). Rev: Jasper Griffin, CR 31 (1981) 25-7.

27. J. Kolendo, 'L'invention et la propagation de l'araire à avant-train dans l'agriculture romaine (Polish, French abstract),' Kwart. Hist. Kult. materialje (1977) 489-93.

28. Gary B. Miles, Virgil's Georgics: A New Interpretation (Berkeley 1980). Rev: Jasper Griffin, CR 31 (1981) 23-5.

29. T. Oksala, Studien zum Verständnis der Einheit und der Bedeutung von Vergils Georgica (Helsinki 1978). Rev: Jasper Griffin, CR 30 (1980) 198-200.

30. Karl-Heinz Pridik, 'Vergil's "Georgica": Darstellung und Interpretation des Aufbaus,' ANRW II.31.1 (1980) 500-48.

31. Michael C. J. Putnam, Virgil's Poem of the Earth: Studies in the Georgics (Princeton 1979). Rev: Jasper Griffin, CR 31 (1981) 31-7; W. R. Johnson, CW 74 (1980) 41.

Davis studies the Georgics as a poetical examination of the philosophical ideals of otium and labor and finds the central issues of the poem embodied in the Aristaeus epyllion.

GEORGICS: INDIVIDUAL BOOKS

32. P. Grimal, 'La vigne et l'olivier: Réflexions sur le chant II des "Géorgiques",' BAGB (June 1980) 171-85.

33. Eleanor Winsor Leach, 'Georgics 2 and the Poem,' Arethusa 14 (1981) 35-48.

34. W. R. Johnson, 'The Broken World: Virgil and his Augustus,' Arethusa 14 (1981) 49-56.

35. R. Martin, 'Statut, fonction, et sens du Livre II des Géorgiques,' Vita Latina 76 (1979) 2-15.

36. E. L. Harrison, 'Virgil's Plague: a new view of the relationship between the Georgics and the Aeneid,' PVS 16 (1976-7) 9-17.
37. Jenny Strauss Clay, 'The Old Man in the Garden: Georgic 4. 116-148,' Arethusa 14 (1981) 57-65.
38. Alessandro Perutelli, 'L'episodio di Aristeo nelle Georgiche: struttura e tecnica narrativa,' MD 4 (1980) 59-76.
39. Heinrich Naumann, 'Laudes Galli. Zur Angeblichen Umarbeitung der Georgica,' Sileno 4 (1978) 7-21.

Eleanor Leach examines the close of Geo. 2 and finds in fortunatus (493) an allusion to M. Terentius Varro. She supposes that Varro's De Re Rustica and the Menippean Satires coloured Vergil's thoughts. She differentiates between voluptas of Geo. 2 and utilitas of Geo. 1, and comments on the alternation of optimism and pessimism in the poet's search for the ideal in the Georgic-book. Johnson remarks on the confidence Vergil injects into his vision of Octavian in Geo. 3. The 'garden calm' denotes the cooperation between man and nature and provides a positive conception of humanity in a perfect(ible) setting; the epic later reveals a fragmented world in dynamic conflict. Harrison's study of the plague is masterly. Clay studies contrasts and balances in the Georgics, particularly in the vignette of the Tarentine gardener. The self-contained gardener is in contrast with the bees who are group-oriented; there is a forecast of the Aeneid with its confrontation of human wants and political pressures.

THE AENEID: GENERAL STUDIES

40. W. S. Anderson, 'Vergil, the Best in the World for the Tragical-Comical-Historical-Pastoral,' Vergilius 26 (1980) 10-17.
41. Ward W. Briggs, Jr., Narrative and Simile from the Georgics in the Aeneid (Leiden 1980). Rev: Jasper Griffin, CR 31 (1981) 27-8.
42. Raymond J. Clark, Catabasis: Vergil and the Wisdom Tradition (Amsterdam 1978). Rev: Karl Galinsky, Vergilius 26 (1980) 80-81; D. E. Hill, Phoenix 35 (1981) 98-100; Charles Segal, AJP 102 (1981) 237-9.
43. Gian Biagio Conte, Il genere e i suoi confini. Cinque studi sulla poesia di Virgilio (Torino 1980).
44. G. K. Galinsky, 'Vergil's Romanitas and his Adaptation of Greek Heroes,' ANRW II.31.2 (1981) 985-1010.
45. Edward L. Harrison, 'The Structure of the Aeneid: Observations on the Links between the Books,' ANRW II.31.1 (1980) 359-93.
46. W. R. Johnson, Darkness Visible. A Study of Vergil's Aeneid. Rev: A. Dalzell, Phoenix 32 (1978) 361-3; K. W. Gransden, CR 28 (1978) 247-9; R. J. Hornsby, CJ 73 (1978) 355-7; D. H. Porter, Arion (1976) 493-506.
47. M. Owen Lee, Fathers and Sons in Virgil's Aeneid (Albany 1979). Rev: A.G. McKay, Vergilius 26 (1980) 77-9; R. Boughner, CJ 76 (1980) 178-9; W. R. Johnson, Phoenix 35 (1981) 97-8.
48. Robert Lowell, 'Epics,' NY Review of Books 27:2 (21 Feb. 1980).
49. Sara Mack, Patterns of Time in Vergil (Hamden 1978). Rev: A. G. McKay, Phoenix 34 (1980) 379.
50. Adolf Primmer, 'Zu Thema und Erzählstruktur der Aeneis,' WS 14 (1980) 83-101.

51. Rudolf Rieks, Pathos und Struktur: Die antike Affektenlehre und die Affektdarstellung als ein Termprinzip von Vergils Aeneis (München 1976).

52. S. L. Rosenquist, Transformations in the allusive force of references to Cretan myths. Euripides, Catullus, and Vergil. Diss. University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 1978. Summary: DA 39 (1978) 3559A-3560A.

53. Charles Segal, 'Art and the Hero: Participation, Detachment, and Narrative Point of View in Aeneid I,' Arethusa 14 (1981) 67-83.

54. A. Wlosok, 'Vater und Vaterverstellungen in der römischen Kultur,' Das Vaterbild in Abendland. Rom, früher Christentum, Mittelalter, Neuzeit, Gegenwart (H. Tellenbach, G. Fruehsorge, et al. edd.) (Stuttgart 1978) 192-200.

Anderson underscores the interaction of generic aspects as a novelty in epic composition. He detects happy (comical) notes in the Dido episode which heighten the resonance and emotional impact of the pathetic aspects. Galinsky examines the main currents of recent criticism of the epic. His concern is with Vergil's adaptation of Achilles, Odysseus, and Hercules in Aeneas. Harrison's compact study of the structure of the epic is required reading. Lowell's contribution, however meagre, notes that Aeneas 'exemplifies the grit, torture, and sacrifice that made Rome's unification of the Mediterranean possible. Aeneas puzzles . . . (he is) a force more than a person.' Primmer analyses Books 7-12 as horrida bella (Aen. 7.41). Segal's article studies the epic journey as passage into the art of the past, a journey into the artist's past. The Tiber passage in Aen. 8 is progression back to Arcadian purity, to Arcadian vision, and the aspiration of youth, a return to origins. There is a tension between the Orphic and Aristean visions of life and art. Violence, pain, and sacrifice are complements to significant action (city foundation, epic composition). There is a characteristic tension throughout between aesthetic distances and emotional involvements. Wlosok treats the pater familias figure, a parallel study to Owen Lee's recent work (#47).

THE AENEID: INDIVIDUAL BOOKS

55. M. Oka, 'On the proemium of the Aeneid,' (Japanese, English abstract) JCS 26 (1978) 1-22.

56. Oliver Phillips, 'Aeole, Namque Tibi,' Vergilius 26 (1980) 18-26.

57. John P. Lynch, 'Laocoön and Sinon: Virgil, Aeneid 2.40-198,' G&R 37 (1980) 170-9.

58. Sara Mack, 'Vergil, Aeneid 2, 250-2,' CQ 30 (1980) 153-8.

59. Victor A. Estevez, 'Aeneid II 624-631 and the Helen and Venus Episodes,' CJ 76 (1981) 318-35.

60. C. Zintzen, Die Laokoonepisode bei Vergil. (1979).

61. P. J. Quetglas Nicolau, 'La tecnica narrativa de Virgilio,' Helmantica (1978) 161-4.

62. M. C. J. Putnam, 'The Third Book of the Aeneid: From Homer to Rome,' Ramus 9:1 (1980) 1-21.

63. Giulio Puccioni, 'Elementi arcaici nel terzo libro dell'Eneide virgiliana,' Orpheus N.S. 1 (1980) 251-68.

64. G. Nenci, 'Drepani . . . inlaetabilis ora (Verg. Aen. III. 707-708),' Scritti storico-epigrafici in memoria di Marcello Zambelli (Lidio Gasperini,

- ed.) (Roma 1978) Vol. I, 257-60.
65. Steele Commager, 'Fateful Words: Some Conversations in Aeneid 4,' Arethusa 14 (1980) 101-14.
  66. T. E. Kinsey, 'Virgil, Aeneid IV, 88-90,' Maia 3 (1979) 267.
  67. Richard C. Monti, The Dido Episode and the Aeneid: Roman Social and Political Values in the Epic. (Mnemosyne, Suppl. 66) (Leiden 1981).
  68. William S. Anderson, 'Servius and the "Comic Style",' Arethusa 14 (1981) 115-25.
  69. Noel Robertson, 'Heracles' Catabasis,' RhM 108 (1980) 274-300.
  70. C. Weber, 'Gallus' Grynium and Vergil's Cumae,' ARCM 1 (1978) 45-76.
  71. Cynthia King, 'Dolor in the Aeneid: Unspeakable and Unshowable,' CO 56 (1979) 106.
  72. J. Gijssels, 'Lenibat dictis animum lacrimasque ciebat (Verg. Aen. VI.468),' (Dutch, English abstract) Lampas 11 (1978) 212-7.
  73. Yolande Grisé, 'Du sort des suicidés [aux enfers],' BAGB (October 1980) 295-304.
  74. Serge Lewuillon, 'La piété d'Énée et Caton le censeur. Un problème d'idéologie et de propagande impériales,' Latomus 38 (1979) 125-46.
  75. Thomas M. Falkner, 'Hector and Deiphobus: An Interpretation of Aeneid 6.494-547,' CB 57 (1981) 33-7.
  76. Roland G. Austin, P. Vergili Maronis liber sextus (Oxford 1977). Rev: Carlson, CF 32 (1978) 264-6; R. A. Hornsby, CW 76 (1980) 75-6; T. Oksala, Arctos 12 (1978) 177-8; M. Pulbrook, Hermathena 128 (1980) 53-4.
  77. Agnes Kirsopp Michels, 'The Insomnium of Aeneas,' CQ 31 (1981) 140-6.
  78. Grace Starry West, 'Caeneus and Dido,' TAPA 110 (1980) 315-24.
  79. Grace Starry West, 'The Significance of Vergil's Eriphyle (Aeneid 6, 445-446),' Vergilius 26 (1980) 52-4.
  80. C. J. Fordyce, P. Vergili Maronis Aeneidos Libri VII-VIII (Oxford 1977). Rev: Martin Pulbrook, Hermathena 128 (1980) 54-5; Donald H. Mills, CQ 56 (1979) 88-9; R. A. Hornsby, CJ 76 (1980) 73-5.
  81. V. J. Rosivach, 'Latinus' genealogy and the palace of Picus (Aeneid 7, 45-9, 170-191),' CQ 30 (1980) 140-52.
  82. R. Lesueur, 'Latinus ou la paternité manquée (Énéide, VII-XII),' REL 57 1979 (1980) 231-53.
  83. Eugene Vance, 'Sylvia's Pet Stag: Wildness and Domesticity in Virgil's Aeneid,' Arethusa 14 (1981) 127-138.
  84. E. Zaffagno, 'Nomi di Rutuli nell'Eneide,' AALig 29, 1972 (1973) 304-13.
  85. R. Senfter, 'Vergil, Aen. 8.589-91. Konnotationsraum und Funktionalisierung eines Vergleichs,' MD 2 (1979) 171-4.
  86. Nicholas Horsfall, 'From History to Legend: M. Manlius and the Geese,' CJ 76 (1981) 298-311.
  87. K. W. Gransden, Virgil, Aeneid Book VIII (Cambridge 1976). Rev: Binder, Gymnasium 85 (1978) 538-40; J. Griffin, CR 27 (1978) 33-5; R. A. Hornsby, CJ 73 (1978) 258-9; McDermott, AJP 99 (1978) 513-6.
  88. R. B. Egan, 'Euryalus' Mother and Aeneid 9-12,' Studies in Latin

Literature and Roman History II (Carl Deroux, ed.) (Brussels 1980) (Collection Latomus 168) 157-76.

89. A. I. Nemirovskij, 'The catalogue of Etruscan ships in the Aeneid,' (Russian, English abstract) Vestnik Drevnej Istorii (Moscow) 143 (1978) 142-8.

90. Maria Alessio, Sed proelia virgo . . . Heroism and Death in Aeneid Eleven. MA thesis, McMaster University. (Hamilton, Ont. 1981).

91. Paul G. Brewster, 'The strange practice of firewalking,' Expedition 19:3 (1977) 43-47.

92. J. -L. Voisin, 'Le suicide d'Amata,' REL 57, 1979 (1980) 254-66.

93. Mark P. Weadon, 'A Note on Aeneid 12.766,' CB 57 (1981) 70-71.

Oka denies the authenticity of ille ego qui quondam. Phillips examines three viewpoints in Aeolus' narrative and finds a layered significance to the episode. Lynch argues that 'by introducing and reporting the story of Troy's fall on the level of human interaction, Aeneas is able to claim a military standoff and moral superiority while admitting defeat' (177). Estevez accents the bold conception of the Helen episode as providing a stronger case for Aeneas' flight from Troy. Quetglas Nicolau offers an analysis of Aen. 3; Putnam provides cumulative and characteristic criticism of the same book. Puccioni's scrutiny of the language of Aen. 3 yields suggestive results. Nenci associates inlaetabilis with Anchises' demise. Commager probes the importance of fari and fatum in the epic (especially in Aen. 4); there is a characteristic antagonism in the usage, between fated history and inept human passion. But Vergil makes his readers aware of both human and divine viewpoints, both particular and abstract, without subscribing to either. Kinsey understands the Sibylline utterance as forecasting that Aeneas (like Achilles) will suffer the loss of his Patroclus (Pallas); Dorica castra (Trojans in their camp) will endure another Achilles; Aeneas is allotted fatefully to Latium (= dative). Monti's monograph studies the political character of the Dido episode, the implications of its terminology for contemporary political life. Anderson studies the slender style (appropriate to amatory comedy) of Aen. 4 and argues that it vivifies the tragic love of the queen for Aeneas. Robertson's article expands Clark's study (#42). King studies Daedalus as an element in Vergil's 'epic of the unspeakable'. Gijssels notes that creatures in Hades are still capable of human contacts. Lewuillon senses not Cato Uticensis but Cato Censor in Aen. 8.670. Parallels between the vision of Hector and the Deiphobus episode concern Falkner. Michels argues that Vergil did not intend Aeneas to recall Anchises' sermonizings which neither increase his confidence nor affect the progress of the story. Anchises serves to remind Vergil's readers that Rome's destiny will be the final result of Aeneas' labores. West suggests that the Caeneus transformations reflect Dido's nature and the disharmony in her experience. Eriphyle, West argues, serves to underline the connection between her cruel son, Alcmaeon, and Cupid's actions against Dido. Rosivach's legendary prosopography and the implications of Picus is exhaustive. LeSueur detects vertical structure and antithetical perspectives in the contrasting and conflicting company of Dido, Aeneas, and Anchises, and of Lavinia, Turnus, and Latinus. Historical realities lie behind the confrontations. Vance studies the dichotomy between nature and culture in the epic.

The Silvia episode is paradigmatic; the killing of the stag disrupts the Saturnian merger of man and nature; it signals the brutalization of the civilized. Horsfall's article sheds light on the shield decoration. Egan argues that the lament of Euryalus' mother, through similarity and contrast, helps to prepare the reader for Vergil's treatment of character and event in Aen. 9-12. There is an unsettling paradox in Vergilian pietas. Nemirovskij provides Aegean, Etruscan, and Italic background to the Etruscan captains, and associates Cupavo with Slavic kupala. Alessio studies burial rites, the characterization of Camilla, and historical and political intimations in Aen. 11. Brewster's article illustrates the Apolline cult of Soracte. Voisin studies Amata's death by hanging, and argues for a tradition which antedates Fabius Pictor. Weadon treats the wild olive introduced before the climactic duel between Turnus and Aeneas; its forebear lies in the oleaster tree with bitter leaves (Geo. 2.314), a wild, sterile witness to the ultimate action.

THE AENEID: CHARACTERS

94. J. O. deG. Hanson, 'Creusa, Dido, Lavinia and Aeneas,' MusAfr 5 (1976) 65-72.

95. Antonio La Penna, 'Mezenzio: una tragedia della tirannia e del titanismo antico,' Maia NS 1 (1980) 3-30.

96. William C. McDermott, 'Drances-Cicero,' Vergilius 26 (1980) 34-8.

97. M. D. Northrup, 'Like dreams that delude the sleeping senses. Aeneas' moral failure and Vergil's imagery of the insubstantial,' Ramus 6 (1978) 26-37.

98. Christine G. Perkell, 'On Creusa, Dido, and the quality of victory in Virgil's Aeneid,' Women's Studies 8 (1981) 201-23.

99. Michael C. J. Putnam, 'Pius Aeneas and the metamorphosis of Lausus,' Arethusa 14 (1981) 139-56.

100. Kenneth J. Reckford, 'Helen in Aeneid 2 and 5,' Arethusa 14 (1981) 85-99.

101. André Sauvage, 'Les éléments du prestige, le fonctionnement et la nature du pouvoir d'Énée,' REL 57, 1979 (1980) 204-30.

102. Hans-Peter Stahl, 'Aeneas — An "Unheroic" Hero?' Arethusa 14 (1981) 157-77.

103. Ruth W. Todd, 'Lavinia Blushed,' Vergilius 26 (1980) 27-33.

Hanson studies the character of Aeneas in his relationship with three women who are regarded at one time or another as his wife, and argues for a progressive dehumanization in his characterization. La Penna's study of Mezentius is fresh and expansive. McDermott accepts Cicero as model for Drances and suggests that Vergil may not have approved of Cicero's politics and statecraft, seeing him as a corrupt exemplar of ideals incompatible with the Augustan order. Northrup studies Aen. 10.636-42 and finds continuity in Aeneas' final behaviour. Putnam's article scrutinizes Vergil's narrative after Aeneas kills Lausus (Aen. 10) and changes from blindness to insight; the insightful counterpoint to moments of anger is a hallmark of the poem from Aen. 2 to Aen. 12. Reckford explores the Euripidean background to the Helen episode and shows how violence and passion are foils to pietas, humanitas and clarity of vision in Aeneas' makeup and career. His goodness is as brittle as the sword which shatters in the final engagement with Turnus. Sauvage points up the solitary nature of Aeneas; there is communion (pietas) between the leader and his people but distance too. Stahl sees the final scene of the epic as a confirmation of Aeneas' heroism and as prelude to future glories. The irrational conduct of the hero in Aen. 2 and 10 is mark of his Achilles-like courage. Aeneas is prototype of Augustus; pietas, not inclementia, lies behind Turnus' sacrifice. Todd seeks to win respect for Lavinia as something more than a symbol or passive instrument.

THE AENEID: THE LEGENDS

104. Ronald Gary Basto, The Roman Foundation Legend and the Fragments of the Greek Historians: An Inquiry into the Development of the Legend. Diss. Cornell University. Summary, DA 41 (1980) 1576A-1577A.

105. Adele Joan Haft, The Myth that Crete Became: The Thematic Significance of Crete and Cretan Topoi in Homer's Odyssey and Vergil's Aeneid. Diss., Princeton University. Summary, DA 41 (1981) 4389A.

THE AENEID: GEOGRAPHY AND ARCHAEOLOGY

106. A. Grandazzi, 'Virgile et le Latium archaïque,' BAGB (1979) 301-11.

107. M. Landmann, 'Vulcano; paese dei Ciclopi: Lipari; paese dei Feaci,' Rivista storica dell'Antichità 8 (1978) 161-9.

108. Giusto Monaco, 'La Sicilia nel viaggio di Enea,' Kokalos 22-23 (1976-7) 1-9.

109. Dionizy Pietrusinski, 'Éléments astraux dans l'apothéose d'Octavien Auguste chez Virgile et Horace,' Eos 68 (1980) 267-83.

110. J. Préaux 'Les sept premiers vers de l'Énéide et les découvertes de Lavinium,' D'Eschyle à nos jours. Leçons d'archéologie, de littérature, de philologie classiques (G. Cambier, ed.) (Bruxelles 1978) 73-96.

111. Robert Schilling, 'Le culte de l'Indiges à Lavinium,' REL 57, 1979 (1980) 49-68.

112. Kenneth Wellesley, 'Virgilian Places,' Vindex Humanitatis: Essays in Honour of J. H. Bishop (Bruce Marshall, ed.) (Armidale 1980).

The recent excavations at Lavinium have excited interest in the details of Aeneas' encounter and destiny by the Numicus river. Préaux, for example, argues that Vergil was conscious of the implications and realities of the metropolis roles of Lavinium and Alba Longa. Schilling studies the Agonalia, an archaic calendar festival for Indiges, as part of the origins of Lavinium which was associated with the Sun god prior to Aeneas.

RELIGION AND PHILOSOPHY

113. P. Boyancé, 'La religion des "Géorgiques" à la lumière des travaux récents (avec des additions bibliographiques par P. Grimal),' ANRW II.31.1 (1980) 549-73.

114. D. M. Halperin, 'Men's Fate in the Aeneid,' Virginia Quarterly Review 53 (1977) 58-72.

115. A. Negri, 'Teodicea del lavoro, etica del dolore, e filosofia della cultura in Virgilio,' GIF 30 (1978) 47-56.

116. Raymond V. Schoder, S.J., 'Vergil's Humane Message,' Thought 55

(1980) 65-80.

117. Agathe Thornton, The Living Universe: Gods and Men in Virgil's Aeneid (Leiden 1976). Rev. J. R. Fears, CP 76 (1981) 241-3.

118. Beert C. Verstraete, 'The Implications of the Epicurean and Lucretian Theory of Dreams for Falsa Insomnia in Aeneid 6.896,' CW 74 (1980) 7-10.

119. C. H. Wilson, 'Jupiter and the Fates in the Aeneid,' CQ 29 (1979) 361-71.

Boyance's posthumous article treats human suffering, man's relation with the world, and Vergil's attitude to national religion. Halperin, Negri, and Schoder offer personal insights into Vergil's basic conceptions of man and his destiny. Wilson provides useful guidance for study of a perennial question.

ROME AND AUGUSTUS

120. Woldemar Görler, 'Ex verbis communibus KAKOZELIA: Die augusteischen 'Klassiker' und die griechischen Theoretiker des Klassizismus,' Le classicisme à Rome aux 1<sup>ers</sup> siècles avant et après J. -C. (Entretiens sur l'Antiquité classique Tome XXV) (Fondation Hardt, Vandoeuvre 1979) 175-211.

121. A. J. Marshall, 'Library resources and creative writing at Rome,' Phoenix 30 (1976) 252-64.

122. Viktor Pöschl, 'Virgil und Augustus,' ANRW II.31.2 (1981) 707-27.

123. Rudolf Rieks, 'Vergils Dichtung als Zeugnis und Deutung der römischen Geschichte,' ANRW II.31.1 (1981) 728-868.

124. Arthur F. Stocker, 'Vergil in the service of Augustus,' Vergilius 26 (1980) 1-9.

Görler's contribution treats criticism of Vergil's style in his age. Marshall sheds light on the availability of books, book-stores and the state-library in Vergil's time. Pöschl's article is basic to an appreciation of the poet's relationship with the Emperor. Rieks' monumental article provides a comprehensive, provocative view of Vergil's links with Roman history; allegory, symbolism, typology, aetiology, eschatology, ideology, and propaganda are grist for his mill. Stocker's article treats Aeneas as Homeric hero and as prototype of Rome's new princeps.

VERGIL AND OTHER AUGUSTAN POETS

125. David E. Belmont, 'The Vergilius of Horace, Ode 4.12,' TAPA 110 (1980) 1-20.

126. G. Giangrande, 'An alleged fragment of Gallus,' Quaderni Urbinati di Cultura classica 5 (1980) 141-53.

127. M. Grondona, 'Gli epigrammi di Tibullo e il congedo delle elegie,' Latomus 36 (1977) 3-29.

128. Nicholas Horsfall, 'Doctus Sermones Utriusque Linguae,' EMC 23:3 (1979) 85-95.

129. R. H. Rodgers, 'Varro and Virgil in the Geoponica,' GRBS 19 (1978) 277-85.

130. J. Warden, 'Another would-be Amazon. Propertius 4, 4, 71-2,' Hermes 106 (1978) 177-87.

131. K. W. Weeber, 'Properz IV, 1, 1-70 und das 8 Buch der Aeneis,' Latomus 37 (1978) 489-506.

132. K. W. Weeber, Das 4. Properz-Buch. Interpretationen zu seiner Eigenart und seiner Stellung im Gesamtwerk (Bochum Bamberg 1977), Rev: Pinotti, GIF 30 (1978) 331-4.

133. J. C. Yardley, 'Gallus in Eclogue 10: Quotation or Adaptation?', Vergilius 26 (1980) 48-51.

Belmont highlights allusions to Vergil's poetry, especially the Bucolics and Georgics; in Horace's poetry. Odes 4.12 marks a leavetaking from Vergil and a personal homage to the animae dimidium meae. Grondona points to likenesses between Vergil and Propertius. Horsfall is concerned with bilingualism in Rome and its implications. Warden underscores echoes of Vergilian Dido as both Amazon and Maenad in Propertius' Tarpeia. Weeber shows that Aen. 8 influenced the conception and design of Propertius 4.1; his monograph accents Vergilian elements in the content and style of Book 4 entire. Yardley detects an allusion to an erotic propempticon of Gallus to Lycoris in Ecl. 10; paraphrases occur at vv. 44-5 and 50-51.

STYLE, LANGUAGE, METRE

134. Anna Cejrowska, 'Porownania w Eneidzie (De comparationibus in Aeneide intextis) (Polish, Latin abstract) Symbolae Philologorum Posnaniensium 4 (1979) 79-97.

135. P. Fortassier, 'L'hypermètre dans l'hexamètre dactylique latin,' REL 57, 1979 (1980) 383-414.

136. Christine Marie Kalke, The Language of Power and Submission in Vergil's Aeneid. Diss. Brown University. DA 41 (1981) 5088A.

137. Sara Mack, "'The Single Supplie': Some Observations on Zeugma with particular reference to Vergil,' Ramus 9 (1980) 101-11.

138. R. Rieks, 'Die Gleichnisse Vergils,' ANRW II.31.2 (1981) 1011-1110. (Bibliographie 1096-1100; Stellenregister 1101-1110).

139. U. Sangmeister, 'Die Ankündigung direkter Rede im "nationalen" Epos der Römer,' Beitr. zur klass. Philol. 86 (Meisenheim 1978).

140. C. P. Segal, 'The Magic of Orpheus and the Ambiguities of Language,' Ramus 7 (1978) 106-42.

141. William J. Switala, 'A Comparison of the Incidence of Alliteration in Vergil, Horace, and Propertius,' CB 57 (1980-81) 59-61.

142. Gordon Williams, Figures of Thought in Roman Poetry (New Haven & London 1980).

Cejrowska studies similes in the Aeneid as indicators of Vergil's unique genius. Fortassier argues for Vergil's innovative departures with hypermetric lines. Mack treats zeugma as a serious verse device in Vergil's epic and Ovid's Metamorphoses. Riek's article on the Vergilian simile provides a detailed examination, an overview (1093-6) and helpful bibliography (1096-1100). Sangmeister studies direct speech in Vergilian epic.

INTERPRETATION AND TEXT CRITICISM

143. J. Cressey, 'Opera in Vergil,' LCM 6:5 (1981) 139.

144. A. Hudson-Williams, 'Some passages in Virgil's Eclogues,' CQ 30 (1980) 124-32.

145. Georg Luck, 'Textual Criticism Today,' AJP 102 (1981) 164-94.

Cressey regards operum (Aen. 1.455-6) not as genitive plural of opus but as short genitive plural of opera (= laborer), viz., 'the work of artificers and the toil of navvies.' The redundancy of operumque laborem vanishes with this interpretation. Hudson-Williams explores several critical passages in the Bucolics. Georg Luck provides a survey of textual criticism over the past decade, the history of texts, and related matters.

VERGIL AND EARLIER WRITERS

146. Elizabeth Block, 'Failure to Thrive: The Theme of Parents and Children in the Aeneid, and its Iliadic models,' Ramus 9:2 (1980) 128-49.

147. W. W. Briggs, Jr., 'Virgil and the Hellenistic Epic,' ANRW II.31.2 (1981) 948-984.

148. P. Garrara, 'Un' eco antimachea in Verg. Aen. VI. 280 (ferreique Eumenidum thalami),' Prometheus 6 (1980) 271-3.

149. Justin Glenn, 'Odyssean Echoes in Aen. 10.880-882,' AJP 102 (1981) 43-9.

150. F. T. Griffiths, 'The Structure and Style of the "Short Epics" of Catullus and Virgil,' Studies in Latin Literature and History II (Carl Deroux, ed.) (Brussels, 1980) 123-37.

151. Georg Nicolaus Knauer, 'Vergil und Homer,' ANRW II.31.2 (1981) 870-918.

152. E. Christian Kopff, 'Vergil and the Cyclic Epics,' ANRW II.31.2 (1981) 919-47.

153. T. Krischer, 'Unhomeric scene-patterns in Vergil,' Papers, Liverpool Latin Seminar I (1978) 143-154.

154. Guy Lee, 'Imitation and the Poetry of Vergil,' G&R 28 (1981) 10-22.

155. R. Lesueur, 'L'épisode de Phinée dans les Argonautiques de Valérius Flaccus,' Pallas 25 (1978) 41-58.

156. Manfred Lossau, 'Elpenor und Palinurus,' WS 14 (1980) 124-58.

157. E. Pianezzola, 'Versaue iuvenum/ terga fatigamus hasta (Verg. Aen. 9.609ff): simbolo ideologico e tradizione poetica,' Studi in onore di Anthos Ardizzone. (Enrico Livrea, G. Aurelio Privitera, edd.) (Roma 1978) Vol. I. 691-99.

158. A. Thill, 'Hector dans l'Énéide ou la succession homérique,' BAGB (March 1980) 36-48.

159. Thomas Van Nortwick, 'Aeneas, Turnus, and Achilles,' TAPA 110 (1980) 303-14.

160. R. D. Williams, 'Virgil and Homer,' Vindex Humanitatis: Essays in Honour of John Huntly Bishop (Bruce Marshall, ed.) (Armidale 1980) 170-76.

Block concentrates on epic episodes where children play a major role; symbolic of the future, their lives are nevertheless abbreviated. Vergil deliberately establishes tension between the future as subject of the epic and the future within the poem. Conflict and irresolution as inescapable aspects of the human condition lie at the heart of the epic experience. Briggs' study of Vergil's relationship to Hellenistic epic is astonishingly thorough in brief compass; he provides a helpful bibliography (981-3). Carrara interprets thalami (Aen. 6.280) as 'dwellings'. Glenn finds subtle parallels between Mezentius and Polyphemus (Odys. 9.277-8; and Aen. 10.880); dona (Aen. 10.882) recalls Polyphemus' deadly gifts to Odysseus. Griffiths is concerned with literary influence: Catullus' Peleus and Thetis, and Geo. 4.315-558 (Aristaeus). Knauer enlarges his earlier study (GRBS 5 [1964] 62-84) of Vergil's transformation of Homeric episodes, similes and the like. Kopff treats the Cyclic epics as sources and models for Vergil, but the Roman poet challenges and renews the entire epic tradition surrounding the Trojan War. A useful bibliography is appended (945-7). Lee's article on imitation includes Ecl. 2.21-24; 8.37-40; Geo. 2.490-2; Aen. 6.305-8; 8.22-5; 12.896-900, 908-11. Lesueur compares Aen. 3.208-69 with Ap. Rhod. 2.178ff, and Val. Flacc. 4.433ff. Pianezzola highlights a topos (soldier/peasant), also reflected in the Laudes Italiae, in Aen. 9.609ff. Vergil's model derives from Ap. Rhod., Argon. 3.1278ff. Van Nortwick treats patterns of allusions to the Homeric Iliad and studies Homeric precedents for the characters of Aeneas and Turnus. Williams offers a model exposition of links between Homer and Vergil.

ANCIENT AUTHORS AFTER VERGIL

161. Vinzenz Buchheit, 'Cyprian-Seneca und die Laudes Agricolae Vergili,' RhM 122 (1979) 348-59.

162. Anna Lydia Motto and John R. Clark, 'Philosophy and Poetry: Seneca and Vergil,' CO 56 (1978) 3-5.

163. F. Fontaine, 'La conversion du Christianisme à la culture antique: la lecture chrétienne de l'univers bucolique de Virgile,' BAGB (1978) 50-75.

164. J. P. Hermann, 'Psychomachia 423-6 and Aeneid 5.468-70,' CB 54 (1978) 88-9.

165. Robert Kaster, 'Macrobius and Servius,' HSCP 84 (1980) 219-62.

166. E. Narducci, 'Lucano e l'anti-mito di Roma,' DArch 8 (1974-5) 438-74.

167. James J. O'Donnell, 'Augustine's Classical Readings,' Recherches Augustiniennes 15 (1980) 144-75 (166-71, Vergil).

168. G. Rauner-Hafner, 'Die Vergilinterpretation des Fulgentius. Bemerkungen zu Gliederung und Absicht der Expositio Vergilianae continentiae,' MLatJb 13 (1978) 7-49.

169. David N. Wigt, 'Toward a Date for the Greek Fourth Eclogue,' CJ 76 (1981) 336-41.

Buchheit studies Seneca Epist. 94 in connection with Vergil's Second Georgic. Hermann examines Prudentius' account of Luxuria's conflict with Sobrietas and argues that the injuries inflicted are a brutal, gruesome outgrowth of a counterpart in Aen. 5. Kaster's article contains repeated references to Vergil's works. Narducci shows that Lucan, like Vergil, sought a metaphysical cause in historical events; the myth of a malign Destiny would explain Rome's ultimate downfall. Fulgentius, as Rauner-Hafner demonstrates, was skilful allegorizer of well-known Vergilian episodes. Wigt favours a date after the first third of the 4th century for the Greek Fourth Eclogue.

ANCIENT LIVES

170. E. Poehlmann, 'Die zwei Musen des Vergil. Zum Vergilmosaik von

Hadrumetum,' AA (1978) 102-6.

171. E. Rawson, 'The identity problems of Q. Cornificius,' CQ 28 (1978) 188-201.

172. Paul Veyne, 'L'histoire agraire et la biographie de Virgile dans les Bucoliques I et IX,' RPh 54 (1980) 233-57.

Poehlmann argues that the Hadrumetum (Sousse) mosaic derives from an Augustan original. The juxtaposition of the poet with Clio and Melpomene reflects Hellenistic and Imperial theories of poetry's relationship to history and tragedy. Rawson's article suggests that Q. Cornificius, involved with the Catullian circle, may have been a friend of Vergil who would have favoured his De Etymis Deorum.

MANUSCRIPTS

173. B. Bolz, 'De Gnesnensibus schedis Vergilianis adhuc ignotis,' (Polish, Latin abstract) SPhP 3 (1977) 41-60.

174. B. Bolz, W. Zurowska-Gorecka, 'Vergilii Georgicorum schedae Gnesnenses,' SPhP 3 (1977) 73-89.

175. Jeanne E. Krochalis, 'A Humanist Experiment: Princeton's New Vergil Roll,' Princeton University Library Chronicle 42:3 (1981) 182-5.

176. W. Zurowska-Gorecka, 'De vetustis glossis polonicis in gnesnensibus schedis vergilianis adhibitis,' (Polish, Latin abstract) SPhP 3 (1977) 61-72.

Bolz examines a manuscript of the Georgics at Gniezno, supplies a text and an abbreviated commentary, along with a close study of the final verses of Geo. 1. Krochalis explores a recently acquired partial Aeneid manuscript at Princeton's Firestone Library. It is the only extant Vergil ms. written not in book form but on a roll of unusual dimensions: 2¼ inches across, 8½ feet long! The ms. (ca. 1400-1425) is the work of an Italian scribe experimenting with a new script (there are Gothic survivals) and an old format.

VERGIL AND LATER AGES

177. A. K. Bate, 'The Use and Misuse of Virgil in Mediaeval Latin Epic,' PVS 16 (1976-7) 1-8.

178. Sydney P. Cravens and Edward V. George, 'Garcilaso's Salicio and Vergil's Eighth Eclogue,' Hispania 64 (1981) 209-14.

179. J. Cressey, 'Dido and Francesca da Rimini,' LCM 6:4 (1981) 100-102.

180. E. L. Harrison, 'Virgil, Sebastian Brant, and Maximilian I,' Modern Language Review 76 (1981) 99-115.

181. Eleanor W. Leach, 'Parthenian caverns. Remapping of an imaginative topography,' JHI 39 (1978) 539-60.

182. Michael Murrin, The Allegorical Epic. Essays in its Rise and Decline (Chicago 1980).

183. P. M. Ogem Ogbang, 'Virgil, Chaucer and the Dido Episode: a comparative study of Aeneid iv and the House of Fame,' MusAfr 5 (1976) 73-81.

184. V. Peri, 'BIRGILIOS = sapientissimus. Riflessi culturali latino-greci nell'agiografia bizantina,' Italia Medioevale e Umanistica 19 (1976) 1-40.

185. David A. Richardson, 'Humanistic Intent in Surrey's Aeneid,' English Literary Renaissance 6 (1976) 204-19.

186. Albert L. Rossi, "'A L'Ultimo Suo': Paradiso XXX and its Vergilian context,' Studies in Medieval and Renaissance History 4 (1981).

187. Harry C. Rutledge, 'Vergil's Dido in Modern Literature,' Classical and Modern Literature 1:4 (1981) 267-73.

188. Earl G. Schreiber and Thomas E. Maresca, Commentary on the First Six Books of Virgil's Aeneid by Bernardus Silvestris (Lincoln and London 1979). Rev: Julian Ward Jones, Jr., Vergilius 26 (1980) 81-3.

189. Carole Anne Taylor, 'Wordsworth's "Laodamia" and the Sixth Book of the Aeneid,' Vergilius 26 (1980) 39-47.

190. Gayle Edward Wilson, 'A "Noble" Comparison in Dryden's "Heroic Stanzas",' CB 57 (1981) 71-3.

Harrison reviews Brant's Latin poetry and developing use of Vergil. Leach examines Panofsky's interpretation of Vergil's Arcadia in the Eclogues. The Arcadia of Ecl. 10.31-34 is not a reflection of the whole world of the poems. Jacopo Sannazaro provided a more vivid topography during the Renaissance. Murrin adduces impressive evidence in his chapter on Landino's Vergil commentary to support the view that the Aeneid adopts the philosophical position of Academic scepticism (cf. Cicero, Academica, De Natura Deorum, Tusculan Disputations). Peri explores echoes of Vergil in Byzantine works; Virgilius appears to have been a rather common name during the era. Rutledge studies Emma Bovary, Milly Theale and Blanche DuBois in connection with Vergil's tragic queen. Affinity to Dido gives them personal magnitude and tragic greatness. Wordsworth frames 'Laodamia' within his reading of Aeneid 6; he also provides a translation of most of Aeneid 1-3.

McMaster University
August, 1981

A. G. McKay