

VERGILIAN BIBLIOGRAPHY / 1984-85

Author(s): Alexander G. McKay

Source: Vergilius (1959-), 1985, No. 31 (1985), pp. 62-80

Published by: The Vergilian Society

Stable URL: <https://www.jstor.org/stable/41591917>

JSTOR is a not-for-profit service that helps scholars, researchers, and students discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content in a trusted digital archive. We use information technology and tools to increase productivity and facilitate new forms of scholarship. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org

Your use of the JSTOR archive indicates your acceptance of the Terms & Conditions of Use, available at <https://about.jstor.org/terms>

JSTOR

The Vergilian Society is collaborating with JSTOR to digitize, preserve and extend access to Vergilius (1959-)

VERGILIAN BIBLIOGRAPHY / 1984-85
In Memoriam – CHARLES T. MURPHY – 1985

The present survey of Vergilian scholarship is the twenty-third in the VERGILIUS series. Classical World 68:1 (1974), published in association with The Vergilian Society, Inc., contains my 'Recent Work on Vergil: A Bibliographical Survey, 1964-73.' The survey was reprinted in The Classical World Bibliography of Vergil (Walter Donlan, ed.), Garland Publishing, Inc. (New York and London 1978). Subsequent reviews have appeared in Vergilius 19 (1973), 20 (1974), 21 (1975), 22 (1976), 23 (1977), 24 (1978), 25 (1979), 26 (1980), 27 (1981), 28 (1982), 29 (1983), and 30 (1984).

This compilation owes much to the assistance and cooperation of Mills Memorial Library of McMaster University, the Robarts Library of the University of Toronto, the Library of the British School at Rome, and the Library of the American Academy in Rome. Offprints of articles and titles for inclusion in the annual VERGILIUS bibliography were generously provided by readers, and scholars are once again invited to send material and suggestions to the editor of Vergilian Bibliography, c/o Department of Classics, McMaster University, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada L8S 4M2.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

1. Juliette Ernst, Viktor Poeschl, William C. West (eds.), L'Année Philologique 53 (1982) [Paris 1984].
2. Alexander G. McKay, 'Vergilian Bibliography 1983-84,' Vergilius 30 (1984) 44-60.

VERGILIAN BIMILLENARY PUBLICATIONS

3. Istit. di Filol. Class. e Med., Genova, Virgilio e noi (Pubbl. dell' Istit. di Filol. Class. e Med. N. 74) [Genova 1982].
4. Lecturae Vergilianae III. L'Eneide (Marcello Gigante, ed.) [Napoli 1983]. Abbrev.: LECTURAE VERGILIANAE.
5. Virgil and His Influence: Bimillennial Studies (Charles Martindale, ed.) [Bristol 1984]. 'Introduction' (Charles Martindale) 1-24. Abbrev: SUSSEX STUDIES.
6. 2000 Jahre Vergil. Ein Symposium (V. Pöschl, ed.) Wolfenbütteler Forschungen 24 (1983). Abbrev: WOLFENBÜTTELER FORSCHUNGEN.
7. Symposium Vergilianum (Ibolya Tar, ed.) [Acta Universitatis de Attila Jozsef Nominatae = Acta Antiqua et Archaeologica, Tomas XXV] (Szeged, Hungary 1984). Abbrev: SYMPOSIUM VERGILIANUM HUNGARIA
8. Virgilio nel Bimillenario (Sandalion 6-7) [Sassari 1983-4]. Università di Sassari, Convegno di Studi, 1982. Abbrev.: SANDALION.
9. Vergilian Bimillenary Lectures 1982 (Alexander G. McKay, ed.), [Vergilius Supplementary Volume 2, 1984]. Abbrev.: VERGILIUS SUPPLEMENTARY VOLUME 2.

Bimillenary volumes continue to crowd into the lists; pious and profuse, sometimes diffuse, their number is legion. The Genovese collection concentrates on Vergil's relationship with the present; the Neapolitan collection of individual addresses on the separate books provides a large-scale commentary on the present state of criticism of the epic as a whole. The lecture series given at the University of Sussex (Autumn 1981), with Martindale's introduction, is particularly welcome for its keen-sighted exploration of the reception and influence of Vergil in Western culture. The Wolfenbüttel Symposium, organised by Viktor Pöschl, treads confidently in some hitherto unexplored areas of research. The Hungarian and Sardinian lectures tend to retrace familiar avenues; the Vergilian Society's Symposium, held at the Society's Villa Vergiliana, appropriately, in the summer of 1982, appeared in 1984 with a reflective preface by President William P. Nethercut (i-xii).

EDITIONS AND TRANSLATIONS

10. Marc Chouet, Virgile, L'Énéide. Traduction rythmée avec douze hors-texte de Daniel Bobillier (Genève 1984).
11. Robert Fitzgerald, The Aeneid (London 1984). rev: Fred Robertson, G&R 32 (1985) 87; Michael C. J. Putnam, Vergilius 30 (1984) 64-7.
12. William Frost, 'Dryden's Virgil,' Comparative Literature 36 (1984) 193-208.
13. Anne Haward, Virgil: Selections from Aeneid VI, with a further selection from the English translation of C. Day Lewis (Cambridge 1983).
14. Guy Lee, Virgil: The Eclogues (Penguin, Harmondsworth 1984).
15. Jaume Medina, 'La Bucólica IV de Virgili, traduida per Carles Riba,' Faventia 5 (1983) 85-7.
16. A. Meschini, 'Per il Virgilio greco: le "Bucoliche" tradotte da D. Halsworth,' Orpheus 5 (1984) 110-38.
17. Ettore Paratore, Luca Canali, Virgilio, Eneide, con introduzione e commento, traduzione, voll. I-VI (Milano 1978-83). Rev: Paola Pittalis, SANDALION 296-300.
18. Gianpiero Rosati, 'Punta di vista narrativo e antichi esegeti di Virgilio,' ASNP 9 (1979) 539-62.
19. R. D. Williams (ed.), Virgil: The Eclogues and Georgics (Basingstoke and London; New York 1979). Rev: Ward W. Briggs, Jr., CJ 80 (1985) 171-3.

APPENDIX VERGILIANA

20. Zs. Hoffmann, 'Die Dirae als carmen magicum,' Acta antiqua Acad. scient. Hung. 29 (1981) 327-36.
 21. Duncan F. Kennedy, 'Culex 62ff.,' PCPS 209 (1983) 48-53.
- Kennedy treats the formal digression on the blessings of a goatherd's life, a eulogy provided by the poet herdsman.

ECLOGUES: GENERAL STUDIES

22. Diona Filimon, 'Caracteristici ale comunicării in Bucolice,' Studii Clasice 23 (1985) 51-63.

23. László Havas, 'Zum politischen Hintergrund der Vergilianischen Bukolik,' SYMPOSIUM VERGILIANUM HUNGARIA 97-105.

24. E. J. Kenney, 'Virgil and the Elegiac Sensibility,' ICS 8 (1983) 44-59.

25. Nita Krevans, The poet as editor: Callimachus, Virgil, Horace, Propertius and the development of the poetic book. (Diss., Princeton 1984). DA 45 (November 1984) 1390A.

26. Ettore Paratore, 'Las "Bucólicas", fundamento de la poesia de Virgilio,' Virgilio en el bimilenario de su muerte (Hugo F. Bauza, ed.) [Buenos Aires 1982] 103-27.

27. James R. G. Wright, 'Virgil's Pastoral Programme: Theocritus, Callimachus, and Eclogue 1,' PCPS 209 (1983) 107-58.

Filimon's article provides a German summary for those who do not read Romanian. Havas makes yet another vain effort to detect political realities within the Bucolics. Kenney's helpful article treats Eclogues 2 and 8 with attention to their elegiac character and their relevance to the process of literary creation. Wright detects a programme of pastoral poetry which is specifically Roman with indebtedness to Theocritus, Callimachus and Hesiod.

ECLOGUES: INDIVIDUAL POEMS

28. Alberto J. Vaccaro, 'Un problema de identificación. Títero y su relaciones. Pastor y poeta,' Virgilio en el bimilenario de su muerte (Hugo F. Bauza, ed.) [Buenos Aires 1982] 143-51.

29. J. Perret, 'L'exaltation de Daphnis,' Hommages à Jean Cousin. Rencontres avec l'antiquité classique (Michel Woronoff, ed.) [Paris 1983] 123-32.

30. A. Thill, 'L'epyllion de Pasiphae (Virg., Buc. VI, 45-60),' Hommages à Jean Cousin (cf. 29) 145-57.

31. J. Lanowski, 'Bukoliczna scena czarów' (Wergilego Ekloga VIII, jej źródła i echa), Meander 39 (1984) 151-60.

32. G. Zanker, 'A Hesiodic reminiscence in Virgil, E. 9.11-13,' CQ 35 (1985) 235.

33. D. F. Kennedy, 'Shades of Meaning: Virgil, Eclogue 10.75-77,' LCM 8 (1983) 124.

34. Santos M. Protomartir Vaquero, 'Virgilio, Bucólica 10. Estudio estilístico,' Helmantica 35 (1984) 197-208.

Zanker probes the Bucolics for Hesiodic echoes, from the Works and Days (202-12) and Theogony (22-35). Particularly helpful is the alignment of Eclogue 9 with the farmer poet's sermon to the kings, a protest on behalf of the common folk.

GEORGICS: GENERAL STUDIES

35. Sebastián Mariner Bigorra, 'La omisión de la horticultura en las "Geórgicas": planificación política o sentimental?,' Virgilio en el bimilenario de su muerte (Hugo F. Bauza, ed.) [Buenos Aires 1982] 71-82.

36. Patricia A. Johnston, Vergil's Agricultural Golden Age: A Study of the Georgics (Leiden 1980). Rev: Giovanni Garbugino, SANDALION 289-91.

37. Susan Ford Wiltshire, 'Omnibus est labor: Vergil and the work of the Classics,' CJ 80 (1984) 1-7.

GEORGICS: INDIVIDUAL BOOKS

38. William Wendell Batstone, Georgics I: Studies in Meaning and Criticism (Diss., California, Berkeley 1984). DA 45 (March 1985) 2864A.

39. E. Maróti, 'Studien zu dem Proömium von Vergils Georgica,' Acta antiqua Acad. scient. Hung. 29 (1981) 315-25.

40. Egon Maróti, 'Teneram ab radice ferens, Silvane, cupressum,' Acta antiqua Acad. scient. Hung. 29 (1981) 321-35.

41. G. Puccioni, 'Esegesi virgiliana (a proposito del I libro delle Georgiche),' Civiltà class. e cristiana 4 (1983) 15-42.

42. Ruth S. Scodel & Richard F. Thomas, 'Virgil and the Euphrates,' AJP 105 (1984) 359.

43. Joseph Farrell, 'Vergil's Sources and the Meaning of Ascraeum carmen (Georgics 2.176),' APA Abstracts (Annual Meeting 1984) [Roger S. Bagnall, ed.] (Chico, Calif. 1984) 10.

44. Luciano Landolfi, 'Georg. II 39-46: struttura composita di una Anrede a Mecenate,' Sileno 9 (1983) 189-96.

45. Bartolomé Segura Ramos, 'Composición del Libro II de la Geórgicas de Virgilio,' Faventia 5 (1983) 79-83.

46. M. W. Dickie, 'Invidia infelix: Vergil, Georgics 3.37-39,' ICS 8 (1983) 65-79.

47. E. Flintoff, 'The Noric Cattle Plague,' QUCC 13 (1983) 85-111.

48. Miroslav Marcovich, 'Vergil, Georgica 3.280-283,' Ziva Antika 33 (1983) 133.

49. Giancarlo Mazzoli, 'Georg. III 66-68: esegesi e fortuna antica d'una sententia virgiliana,' SANDALION 119-32.

50. A. Abramowiczówna, 'Epyllion w "Georgikach",' Meander 38 (1983) 369-76.

51. Howard Jacobson, 'Aristaeus, Orpheus, and the Laudes Galli,' AJP 105 (1984) 271-300.

52. W. R. Johnson, 'Vergil's Bees: The Ancient Roman's View of Rome,' Roman Images (ed. Annabel Patterson) [Selected Papers from the English Institute, 1982; N. S. no. 8] (Baltimore & London 1984) 1-22.

53. Yvan Nadeau, 'The Lover and the Statesman: a study in apiculture (Virgil, Georgics 4.281-558,' Poetry and Politics in the Age of Augustus (Tony Woodman & David West, eds.) [Cambridge 1984] 59-82.

Scodel and Thomas refer the appearances of Euphrates (G. 1.509; 4.561; and A. 8.726) to a Callimachean model (Hymn 2.108). Farrell's APA address suggests that Ascraeum carmen signals Vergil's release from Hesiodic (and Callimachean) models as he moves towards Homeric ones. Landolfi offers a global study of the apostrophe and the topos of one hundred mouths (G. 2.42-4; A. 6.625-7, etc.). Dickie's masterly study of invida infelix assembles literary evidence and artistic representations of invidia/phthonos in a searching study of the ramifications of G. 3.37-9. Flintoff rejects the 'imaginary' character of the plague at the close of Georgics 3 and underscores the plausible geography and the resemblance to classic anthrax. Marcovich treats hippomanes from several viewpoints. Jacobson is concerned with the chronological relationship between the Orpheus narrative in G. 4 and the underworld episode in A. 6. He favours an early composition of A. 6 in the larger design of the epic. Johnson provides a subtle polemic that encapsulates the Roman view of Rome from Cato to Vergil. The editor hails it as the preface to a new project. Nadeau argues, on the basis of thematic and verbal similarities to the epic, that the Aristeus epyllion conceals an 'allegory for Augustus, Antony and Cleopatra, and Actium' (p. 59). Many, like Horsfall (#155) will remain 'unrepentantly unconvinced.'

AENEID: GENERAL STUDIES

54. Hugo F. Bauza, 'Sentido y vigencia de la poesia virgiliana,' Virgilio en el bimilenario de su muerte (Hugo F. Bauza, ed.) [Buenos Aires 1982] 15-24.

55. Elizabeth Block, 'Narrative Judgment and Audience Response in Homer and Vergil,' APA Abstracts (Annual Meeting 1984) [Chico, Calif. 1984] (Roger S. Bagnall, ed.) 80.

56. Elizabeth Block, The effects of divine manifestation on the reader's perspective in Vergil's Aeneid. (Monographs in Classical Studies, New York 1981).

57. Agustín García Calvo, 'Los titeres de la epopeya,' Virgilio en el bimilenario de su muerte (Hugo F. Bauza, ed.) [Buenos Aires 1982] 39-46.

58. Vincent J. Cleary, 'Aeneidea: Important work on the Aeneid (1976-83) for Secondary School Teachers,' Vergilius 30 (1984) 32-7.

59. Eduardo Coleiro, Tematica e struttura dell' Eneide di Virgilio (Amsterdam 1983).

60. E. Coleiro, 'Struttura e tematica dell' Eneide di Virgilio,' Atti della Accademia Roveretana degli Agiati. Contrib. della classe di scienza umane, di lett. ed arti, ser. 6, 22, 232 (1982) 33-48.

61. G. B. Conte, Virgilio, il genere e i suoi confini (Roma 1984).

62. Daniel Gillis, Eros and Death in the Aeneid (Rome 1983). Rev: Vincent J. Cleary, Vergilius 30 (1984) 68-70.

63. H. J. Glücklich, Interpretationen und Unterrichtsvorschläge zu Vergils "Aeneis" (Consilia. Lehrerkommentare, 6) [1984].

64. E. W. Gransden, Virgil's Iliad: An Essay on Epic Narrative (Cambridge 1984).

65. István Hahn, 'Trojanitas, Latinitas, Tuscitas, Graecitas in der Aeneis,' SYMPOSIUM VERGILIANUM HUNGARIA 43-74.

66. John Arthur Hanson, 'Vergil,' Ancient Writers: Greece and Rome. Vol. II, Lucretius to Ammianus Marcellinus (T. James Luce, ed.) [New York 1982] 669-701.

67. John Robert Harris, A Critical Prologue to the Epic Genre: Homer, Vergil, and the Ulster Cycle (Diss., Texas, Austin, 1984). DA 45 (January 1985) 2092A.

68. R. & M. Lloyd, 'Acrostichis Duplex,' Vergilius 30 (1984) 62-3, 84.

69. Pietro Magno, Virgilio e la civiltà mediterranea (Roma 1983).

70. Pietro Meloni, 'Attualità di Virgilio: il canto, il viaggio, il futuro,' SANDALION 103-17.

71. L. Miori, 'Virgilio nel bimillenario della morte. La sensibilità e la visione della vita,' Atti dell'Accad. Roveretana degli Agiati (cf. 60) 5-31.

72. Béla Németh, 'Vergil-Interpretationen,' SYMPOSIUM VERGILIANUM HUNGARIA 107-18.

73. E. Paratore, 'Virgilio cantore di Roma o delle umane sorti?,' Virgilio e noi (#3) 9-30.

74. Viktor Pöschl, 'Das Befremdende in der Aeneis,' WOLFENBUTTELER FORSCHUNGEN 175-88.

75. Walter Schmid, Vergil-Probleme (Göppinger akademische Beiträge 120) [Göppingen 1983]. Rev: N. Horsfall CR 35 (1985) 186.

76. Ibolya Tar, 'Der pax-Gedanke in Vergils Aeneis,' SYMPOSIUM VERGILIANUM HUNGARIA 137-44.

77. M. M. Willcock, 'Battle Scenes in the Aeneid,' PCPS 209 (1983) 87-99.

78. Gordon Williams, Technique and Ideas in the Aeneid (New Haven 1983). Rev: Michael C. J. Putnam, AJP 105 (1984) 228-31.

79. R. D. Williams, 'The Aeneid,' Cambridge History of Classical Literature II (E. J. Kenney and W. V. Clausen, eds.) 333-69.

80. R. D. Williams, 'The Poetic Intention of Virgil's Aeneid,' SUSSEX STUDIES, 25-35.

81. Susan Ford Wiltshire, 'Self-Distancing in the Aeneid,' Vergilius 30 (1984) 25-31.

82. Susan Ford Wiltshire, 'Vergil's Aeneid: Poetry and the Public Realm,' VERGILIUS SUPPLEMENTARY VOL. 2, 118-44.

Block's address to APA points the contrast between the subjective and objective characteristics of Vergilian and Homeric narrative; Vergil's emotional reactions and judgmental vocabulary lead to doubt and ambiguity in the audience's minds. Monsignor Coleiro's comprehensive examination of epic theme and structure emphasizes Vergil's sensitivity to the achievements of Augustus, and his awareness of the progress of Roman history. Coleiro has been a staunch champion of the allegorical nature of the poet's works in the past. Gransden's distinguished study examines in detail Vergil's use of Homer's Iliad in an effort to reinstate the value and importance of A. 7-12 for contemporary readers. The last six books are exemplary in their sustained power and grandeur. Gransden succeeds admirably in providing modern readers with a sense of what Homer's Iliad meant to Vergil and his contemporaries. Pietro Magno's book reviews the poet's career and the advances in contemporary literary criticism. Németh examines A. 4.356; E. 8.11f., G. 4.345f., and A. 12.519f. Pöschl's address, as always, sheds light on a neglected aspect of Vergilian style. Schmid's volume probes problems and cruxes with vigour and determination. Vergil is credited with the authorship of Culex, Catalepton, and Moretum, along with ille ego, and Mantua me genuit. The Eclogues are studied for structure, cryptograms and the like. Acrostichs, mesostichs and telestichs are part and parcel of Latin poetry, but the 'clues' can lead to unlikely assertions: e.g., that the Aeneid was dedicated to Antonius Sosius! Schmid offers a wealth of information and suggestion for the wary. Willcock's study of battle conventions, the presentation of a warrior's aristeia, and the identification of minor warriors is highly serviceable and enlightening. Deryck Williams' Sussex lecture interprets the main themes of the epic and concludes that the poem is an exploration of contrasting viewpoints of human life. T. R. Glover's phrase, 'There is a wavering about the poem' seems particularly apt in light of modern criticism of the epic. Wiltshire's article detects a tension between public and private realms in the Aeneid that is maintained and eased by the capacity of some characters to act in the public realm at a distance from the self. Courage, truthfulness (devotion and piety) help to preserve the public realm; self-distancing is an essential virtue. Her bimillenary address constructs an intellectual framework for a reading of Vergil in our time.

AENEID: INDIVIDUAL BOOKS

83. Anthony Camps, 'Lettura del primo libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 15-30.

84. E. A. Fredricksmeyer, 'On the Opening of the Aeneid,' Vergilius 30 (1984) 10-19.

85. Nicolas P. Gross, 'Gaza and Vergil's Aeneid,' Augustan Age 4 (1985) 26-30.

86. E. L. Harrison, 'Vergil's Mercury,' VERGILIUS SUPPLEMENTARY VOLUME 2, 1-47.

87. Peter E. Knox, 'A note on Aeneid 1.613,' CP 79 (1984) 304-5.

88. John Sarkissian, 'The idea of Imperium in Aeneid 1.50-296,' Augustan Age 4 (1985) 51-6.

89. K. W. Gransden, 'The Fall of Troy,' PCA 81 (1984) 19-21.

90. K. W. Gransden, 'The Fall of Troy,' G&R 32 (1985) 60-72.

91. P. R. Hardie, 'The Sacrifice of Iphigeneia: An Example of 'Distribution' of a Lucretian Theme in Virgil,' CQ 34 (1984) 406-12.

92. Armando Salvatore, 'Lettura del secondo libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 33-97.

93. C. Zintzen, Die Laocoon Episode bei Vergil (Mainz 1983).

94. L. Preston Day, 'Deceptum errore: Images of Crete in the Aeneid,' Classical Texts and their Tradition. Studies in honour of C. R. Trahman (David F. Bright, Edwin S. Ramage, eds.) [Chico, Calif. 1984] 25-40.

95. Italo Lana, 'Lettura del terzo libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 101-28.

96. R. G. Basto, 'The swords of Aeneid 4,' AJP 105 (1984) 333-8.

97. S. Farron, 'The Sentimentality, Romanticism and Emotionalism of the Ancient Greeks and Romans with Specific Reference to Aeneid 4,' Acta Classica 26 (1983) 83-94.

98. S. Farron, 'Dido 'Aversa' in Aeneid IV, 362 and VI, 465-71,' Acta Classica 27 (1984) 83-90.

99. John Moles, 'Brutus and Dido Revisited,' LCM 9 (December 1984) 156.

100. Richard C. Monti, The Dido Episode and the "Aeneid": Roman Social and Political Values in the Epic (Leiden 1981). Rev: Michael C. J. Putnam, CP 79 (1984) 72-6.

101. Sámuel Szádeczky-Kardoss, 'Picti Agathyrsi (Vergilius, Aeneis 4, 146),' SYMPOSIUM VERGILIANUM HUNGARIA 119-25.

102. Antonio Traglia, 'Lettura del quarto libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 131-62.

103. F. E. Brenk, S.J., 'Unum pro multis caput, Myth, History, and Symbolic Imagery in Vergil's Palinurus Incident,' Latomus 43 (1984) 776-801.

104. W. H. Friedrich, Libyco cursu. Über Anfang und Schluss des 5 Buches der Aeneis. (Nachricht der Ak. der Wiss. in Göttingen, 1982).

105. Giusto Monaco, 'Lecture del quinto libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 165-83.

106. G. Monaco, 'Agonismo virgiliano,' Virgilio e noi (#3) 31-49.

107. Salvatore D'Elia, 'Lettura del sesto libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 187-231.

108. Harold C. Gotoff, 'The difficulty of the Ascent from Avernus,' CP 80 (1985) 35-40.

109. Jacques Perret, 'L'Ordre de succession des vers dans l'Énéide, 6, 602-620,' RPh 58 (1984) 19-33.

110. Michael C. J. Putnam, 'Romulus Tropaeophorus (Aeneid 6.779-90),' CQ 35 (1985) 237-40.

111. Robert Schilling, 'Tradición e innovación en el canto VI de la "Eneida" de Virgilio,' Virgilio en el bimilenario de su muerte (Hugo F. Bauza, ed.) [Buenos Aires 1982] 129-42.

112. James Tatum, 'Allusion and Interpretation in Aeneid 6.440-76,' AJP 105 (1984) 434-52.

113. R. D. Williams, 'Virgil's Underworld,' Omnibus 7 (March 1984) 5-7.

114. Ernst A. Fredricksmeyer, 'Structural Perspectives in Aeneid VII,' CJ 80 (1985) 228-37.

115. R. Parker, 'A note on Aeneid 7, 649-653,' LCM 8 (1983) 160.

116. Aldo Settaioli, 'Lettura del settimo libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 235-67.

117. S. J. Harrison, 'Evander, Jupiter and Arcadia,' CQ 34 (1984) 487-8.

118. Alain Michel, 'Lettura dell'ottavo libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 271-98.

119. Antonio La Penna, 'Lettura del nono libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 301-40.

120. Alessandro Barchiesi, 'Lettura del decimo libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 343-64.

121. W. P. Basson, 'A note on Aen. 10.846-50,' Acta Classica 27 (1984) 133-6.

122. R. R. Schlunk, 'The wrath of Aeneas: two myths in Aeneid X,' Trabman, Classical Texts (#94) 223-9.

123. Giulio Puccioni, 'Lettura dell'undicesimo libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 367-87.

124. Roger A. Hornsby, 'Maior nascitur ordo,' Mnemosyne: Classical Studies in Memory of Karl K. Hulley (Harold D. Evjen, ed.) [Chico, Calif. 1984] 103-20.

125. T. E. Kinsey, 'Was there a treaty between the Trojans and the Latins?,' SIFC 77 (1984) 240-42.

126. Luis A. Losada, 'Discludere morsus roboris: A Note on Vergilian Diction,' Vergilius 30 (1984) 38-40.

127. Francesco Giancotti, 'Lettura del dodicesimo libro dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 391-524.

Camps' lecture on Aeneid I is a perceptive study of the design and content. Fredricksmeyer's article attacks the poem's primary historical meaning in the propositio (1-7) and invocatio (8-11) where thematic and programmatic attitudes and values are sounded. The thematic issues are (1) the principle of teleology, and (2) the problem of theodicy. Both motifs in combination are, as Fredericksmeyer reminds us, unprecedented in classical literature. Gross explores the transformations of gaza from A. 1.119 and 2.763-4, to 5.40 (gaza . . . agresti). Harrison's bimillenary lecture explores the adventitious appearances of Mercury in the epic. Knox detects a recasting of aspects of the Argonautica and the Odyssey in obstupuit primo aspectu Sidonia Dido. Sarkissian assesses the storm of Aeneid 1 as a reflection of the political atmosphere of the late Republic; Aeolus is seen as a trespassing magistrate, guilty of violating imperium. The sequel, the sedition simile, and Jupiter's prophecy of Rome's Augustan domination (257-96), strengthens the political 'reading.' Gransden's articles on Troy's fall explore language and style, adaptation from the cyclic Little Iliad, the non-Vergilian character of the Helen episode, and analogies between Sinon and Iago. Hardie traces repeated applications of motifs from the Lucretian sacrifice of Iphigenia in the Sinon episode (A. 2.57-198), the Death of Laocoon (A. 2.199-231), and the omen attaching to Julius (A. 2.679-91). Zintzen's monograph enriches the understanding of the Laocoon episode. Basto's study of weaponry in A. 4 provides fresh insights into the Dido and Aeneas episode. Farron demonstrates that Vergil's contemporaries were much more sentimental, romantic, and emotional than people today. She also treats the startling oxymoron "she has been watching him without looking at him" (R. D. Williams, ad. loc.). Farron rejects 'hostile' (A. 6.469 underscores her refusal to interact - 'with her back towards him'), and explores the connotations of aversa as an extreme instance of Vergilian ambiguity and compression, initially incomprehensible.

Moles returns to A. 4.124-5 and the irrelevant problem of 'who seduced whom in the cave.' Dux femina facti (A. 1.364) is banished as parallel; Dido dux et Troianus offers a post-positive usage; Aeneas is described as dux Troianus because Juno aspires to the union of Dido and Aeneas as guarantee of the union of their respective peoples (cf. 4.99-104). Brenk's assessment of the Palinurus incident is bold and persuasive. Monaco's article on spectator response in the funeral games of Anchises suggests future lines of inquiry. D'Elia's lecture on the Sixth Book treats, inter alia, the topography of the Phlegraean Fields and the penumbral character of the entire book. Gotoff's impressionistic reading of Aeneid 6 assesses the passage through the gate of false dreams as Vergil's way of erasing knowledge of Roman history from Aeneas' mind. He cannot retain his knowledge of the future of Rome and so continues to move in a haze of uncertainty and unreality after the descent. Perret argues that, based on the testimony of Valerius Flaccus and Statius, A. 6.602-7 and 616-20 have exchanged their original places. Putnam explores the iconography of Romulus and the implications of suo . . . honore (A. 6.790). Augustus is the new Romulus, the victor Quirinus (cf. G. 3.27), 'exalted for acts of war. Tatum studies the allusive links of Dido with Caeneus, Heracles of Argonautica 4, and Ajax. Fredricksmeyer treats the concentric arrangement of corresponding sections in the central part of Book 7 (the Allecto scene). The arrangement extends to the two outer parts of the book: the first and third sections contain correspondences to each other in their entirety and in their individual sections. Harrison examines Aen. 8.572-4, and suggests that Evander appeals as an Arcadian to Jupiter's own Arcadian origins. Michel's study of A. 8 is valuable; it includes an examination of the shield (pp. 288-90). La Penna's Vergilian lecture treats the Nisus and Euryalus episode at length (303-15). Hornsby treats the final scene of the epic. He notes that although anger and action have caught the attention of critics, speech and sight are inextricably bound to both. Aeneas is sensitive to the uses and limitations of speech and sight but Turnus is unaware and uses them in a less sophisticated, ineffectual manner. Kinsey argues that the foedus (A. 12.242-3: foedusque . . . infectum) was not concluded and that infectum cannot denote 'cancellation' or 'undone.' Losada assesses the brief but arresting picture of the hero frustrated by the vivid, biting stump. The intervention of Venus underscores the essentially human nature of Aeneas. Giancotti's lengthy review of problems and scholarship attaching to Aeneid 12 is thorough and provocative.

AENEID: CHARACTERS

128. W. P. Basson, 'Vergil's Mezentius: A Pivotal Personality,' Acta Classica 27 (1984) 57-70.
129. H. C. Gotoff, 'The Transformation of Mezentius,' TAPA 114 (1984) 191-218.
130. E. L. Harrison, 'The Aeneid and Carthage,' Poetry and Politics in the Age of Augustus (Tony Woodman, David West, eds.) [Cambridge 1984]

95-115.

131. Oliver Lyne, 'The Elusive Vergil,' Omnibus 6 (November 1983) 13-16.

132. Ettore Paratore, 'La scomparsa e il ritorno di Turno,' SANDALION 9-19.

133. P. A. Protti, 'Vergiliana,' Latinitas 33 (1985) 13-26.

Basson's treatment of Mezentius is a companion piece for Gotoff's more venturesome study of the 'paradoxical character' of the Etruscan exile. Gotoff concentrates on Vergilian invention, and on the scenes, vignettes, and nuances that affect the character of the antagonistic hero and the culminating event. Harrison's Sussex lecture studies Juno's hostility to Rome and its extension after the reconciliation of A. 12. Vergil keeps Juno ignorant of the ultimate ruin of Carthage by the Romans; she does not have access to the prophecies of Anchises, and her efforts to save her beloved Carthage are thwarted by her ignorance. Lyne, in brief compass, treats the matter of allegory in the Eclogues, the evasive and ambiguous character of the epic, the brave (?) Ascanius, the ambiguous hero and the ambivalent queen. Protti examines Aeneas and Pallas, Achaemenides, Aeneas and Ilioneus, and Achates.

AENEID: GEOGRAPHY AND ARCHAEOLOGY

134. Giovanni D'Anna, 'Virgilio e le recenti scoperte archeologiche a Lavinium,' SANDALION 93-101.

135. Karl Galinsky, 'Aeneas in Latium: Archäologie, Mythos und Geschichte,' WOLFENBÜTTELER FORSCHUNGEN 37-62.

136. G. Hafner, 'Neues zum Bildnis Vergils,' Riv. di archeologia 7 (1983) 37-52.

137. Alexander G. McKay, 'Vergilian Heroes and Toponymy: Palinurus and Misenus,' Mnemosyne. Classical Studies in Memory of Karl K. Hulley (Harold D. Evjen, ed.) [Chico, Calif. 1984] 121-37.

138. Alexander G. McKay, 'The Vergil Portrait,' Vergilius 30 (1984) 1-9.

139. Alexander G. McKay, 'The Villa Vergiliana and the Vergilian Colloquium,' VERGILIUS SUPPLEMENTARY VOLUME 2, 179-97.

140. F. Melis, S. Quilici Gigli, 'Luoghi di culto nel territorio di Ardea,' Archaeologia Classica 34 (1982) 1-37.

141. Giusto Monaco, 'Il viaggio di Enea,' SANDALION 21-32.

142. Richard F. Thomas, Lands and Peoples in Roman Poetry: The Ethnographical Tradition (Cambridge 1982). Rev: Frederick Ahl, CP 80 (1985) 186-9; Harry B. Evans, CJ 80 (1985) 265-7.

143. Mario Torelli, Lavinio e Roma. Riti iniziatici e matrimonio tra archeologia e storia. (Roma 1984).

D'Anna and Galinsky treat common material, the recent finds at Pratica di Mare (ancient Lavinium). Galinsky is particularly helpful with details regarding the alleged Heroon of Aeneas, and offers helpful reminders and scholarly notices on the mythical and historical associations of the antique site. Mc-

Kay's study of the topography and heroic associations of the two capes, Palinurus and Misenum, provides literary and historical associations which magnify their implications for Vergil's readers and for the larger meanings of the epic. The Copenhagen portrait that graces the cover of Vergilius, is included by McKay in his review of parallel imagines, some of them apparently reflected in Renaissance 'versions.' Hafner's article is equally relevant to the continuing scholarly dispute regarding the poet's proper likeness. McKay's contribution to the Cumaean Bimillenary Lectures provides details regarding the establishment of the Vergilian Society at the Villa Vergiliana, an account of the bimillenary celebration, and remarks on the topography and monuments of the immediate zone which have implications for the Vergilian text. Melis and Quilici Gigli treat the Ardeatine territory associated with Turnus, regions comparable to those saluted by Vergil in A. 6.776: haec tum nomina erunt, nunc sunt sine nomine terrae. Torelli's large-scale study of Lavinium provides some testimony for the Vergilian scholar.

RELIGION AND PHILOSOPHY

144. Raymond J. Clark, Catabasis: Vergil and the Wisdom-Tradition (Amsterdam 1979). Marianela Scarsi, SANDALION 287-9.

145. A. De Rosalia, 'Il virgiliano sentimento della giovinezza e del suo destino,' Orpheus 5 (1984) 188-96.

146. Domenico Fasciano, 'Le numen dans la poésie de Virgile,' RCCM 25 (1983) 13-35.

147. I. Lana, 'Quid de felicitate Vergilius senserit,' Atene e Roma 29 (1984) 56-69.

148. Zsigmond Ritoók, 'Terque quaterque beati,' SYMPOSIUM VERGILIANUM HUNGARIA 75-84.

149. Raimund J. Quiter, Aeneas und die Sibylle. Die rituellen Motive im sechsten Buch der Aeneis. (Königstein 1984).

150. Raymond V. Schoder, S.J., 'Vergil's Vision of Life,' Journal of Ultimate Reality and Meaning (Toronto, September 1983) 205-20.

151. Stuart Beede Shotwell, The Idea of Progress in Vergil (Diss. Brown University 1984) DA 45 (January 1985) 2089A.

152. T. P. Wiseman, 'Cybele, Virgil and Augustus,' Poetry and Politics in the Age of Augustus (Tony Woodman, David West, eds.) [Cambridge 1984] 117-28.

Fasciano's study of numen treats it as an attribute of divinity, and as synonymous with deus. Quiter's monograph on the implications of the rituals attaching to the oracular cult marks important advances in understanding. Schoder's study of Vergil's vision of life is characteristically perceptive and persuasive. Wiseman emphasizes the importance of Cybele in the Aeneid; her temple was close to Augustus' own complex, and her treatment by Vergil is in keeping with the rehabilitation of the Magna Mater. Despite her orgiastic cult, she is represented as protector of Aeneas and as guarantor of his victory.

ROME AND AUGUSTUS

153. Frank Moretti, Pietas and the pedagogy of power: Augustus and Vergil (Diss., Columbia University, 1983). DA 45 (September 1984) 769A.

154. Erik Wistrand, 'Aeneas and Augustus in the Aeneid,' Eranos 82 (1984) 195-8.

155. Tony Woodman and David West (eds.), Poetry and Politics in the Age of Augustus (Cambridge 1984). Rev: Duncan F. Kennedy, LCM 9 (December 1984) 157-60; N. Horsfall, CR 35 (1985) 52-3.

Wistrand counsels restraint in equating Aeneas with Augustus; Aeneas is designed as a paradigm, a hero whom Augustus may or may not imitate.

VERGIL AND OTHER AUGUSTAN POETS

156. Ronald Basto, 'Horace and the Helen Episode,' Vergilius 30 (1984) 20-24.

157. Robert Carrubba, 'The Structure of Horace, Odes 1.3: A Propemptikon for Vergil,' AJP 105 (1984) 166-73.

158. Hellfried Dahlmann, Zu Fragmenten römischer Dichter (Mainz 1982). Rev: N. Horsfall, CR 35 (1985) 186.

159. Widu-Wolfgang Ehlers, 'Das iter Brundisinum des Horaz (Serm. I, 5),' Hermes 113 (1985) 69-83.

160. István Hahn, 'Die augusteischen Interpretationen des sidus Iulium,' Acta Classica Universitatis Scientiarum Debreceniensis 19 (1983) 57-66.

161. R. S. Kilpatrick, 'Vergil and Horace: Arcades Ambo?,' VERGILIUS SUPPLEMENTARY VOLUME 2, 80-117.

162. J. K. Newman, 'The New Gallus and the Origins of Latin Love Elegy,' ICS 9 (1984) 19-29.

163. Marianne Wifstrand Schiebe, Das ideale Dasein bei Tibull und die Goldzeit Konzeption Vergils (Uppsala 1981). Rev: Patricia Johnston, Vergilius 30 (1984) 73-4.

164. Ulrich Schindel, 'Die "furchtbare Realität" des Geleitgedichts für Vergil. Überlegungen zu Horaz' Ode 1.3,' Hermes 112 (1984) 316-33.

165. Ernest A. Schmidt, 'Vergils Gluck. Seine Freundschaft mit Horaz als ein Horizont unseres Verstehens,' WOLFENBÜTTELER FORSCHUNGEN 1-36.

Basto accepts the authenticity of the Helen episode (vs. G. P. Goold, HSCP 74 [1970] 101-68) and detects parallels between details in Vergil's Helen episode and Horace's poems (Epode 1, and Odes 1.9, 1.37, and 1.2). Dahlmann's pamphlet treats Varius Rufus and Valgius Rufus. Kilpatrick's Bimillenary Lecture searches for possible affinities for Horace in Vergil's bucolic poetry. Schmidt's article can be read profitably in conjunction with Kilpatrick's essay.

STYLE, LANGUAGE, METRE

166. S. Andrei, Aspects du vocabulaire agricole latine (Rome 1981).

167. Antonio M. Battagazzore, 'L'immagine del fuoco in Virgilio,' SAN-

DALION 33-74.

168. M. Bonfanti, Modi della narrazione e punti di vista nell'Eneide (Roma 1984).

169. Maurice Chénier, 'Élision et accent de mot au quatrième pied de l'hexamètre virgilien,' RPh 58 (1984) 63-77.

170. G. B. Conte, 'Verso una nuova esegesi virgiliana: revisioni e propositi,' Virgilio e noi (#3), 73-98.

171. J. Dangel, 'Les enjambements dans l'Énéide: lecture syntactique et incidences métriques,' Latomus 44 (1985) 72-100.

172. J. Dangel, 'Césures et pauses syntactiques dans l'Énéide: structures verbales et incidences métriques,' REL 61 (1983) 284-311.

173. Woldemar Görler, 'From Sea to Shining Sea: Some Remarks on Virgil's Syntax,' VERGILIUS SUPPLEMENTARY VOLUME 2, 48-79.

174. Antonio La Penna, 'Albas trágicas,' Virgilio en el bimilenario de su muerte (Hugo F. Bauza, ed.) [Buenos Aires 1982] 61-70.

175. Alain Michel, 'Virgilio y la estética de su tiempo,' (cf. 174), 83-95.

176. W. Moskalew, Formular Language and Poetic Design in the Aeneid (Leiden 1982). Rev: Robin R. Schlunk, AJP 106 (1985) 135-8; Elena Zaffagno, SANDALION 291-3.

177. Teivas Oksala, 'Zum Gebrauch der griechischen Lehnwörter bei Vergil. I. Interpretationen zu den Bucolica,' Arctos 28 (1984) 45-63.

178. Wilhelm Ott, Metrische Analysen zu Vergil, Aeneis Buch V (Tübingen 1984).

179. Wilhelm Ott, Metrische Analysen zu Vergil, Aeneis Buch VII (Tübingen 1984).

180. J. Robaey, 'La senterza e la chiusa epica (Virgilio e Omero). Prove per l'enjambement,' QUCC 14 (1983) 113-28.

181. G. Simonetti Abbolito, 'Sensi diversi del termine fama in Virgilio,' Orpheus 4 (1983) 364-9.

182. Gordon Williams, 'Roman Poets as Literary Historians: some aspects of imitatio,' ICS 8 (1983) 211-37.

Battegazzore's study of the imagery of fire recapitulates much of Bernard Knox's incendiary original, and provides fresh material and ideas outside Aeneid 2. Chénier's piece on the hexameter is highly instructive. Conte's diatribe cautions against too much emphasis on echoes and reverberations of language and on comparative study in Vergilian criticism. Evidence of his own approach appears in an analysis of A. 10.873-908 (the death of Mezentius) and of A. 10.540-42, the killing of Haemon. Dangel's articles provide helpful and directional accounts of her painstaking study of the verse lines. Görler's bimillenary lecture at Cumae offers a careful analysis of Vergil's syntax, emphasizing the way in which the poet displaces adjectives to modify nouns in unusual contexts. Herein resides the essential art and unique force of Vergil's lines. La Penna's article on tragic dawns has perennial value. Oksala's study of Graecisms in the Bucolics merits close reading and development. Ott continues to provide useful metrical analyses of Aeneid 5 and 7. Williams enlarges our sensitivity to imitatio in a concise, insightful article.

VERGIL AND EARLIER WRITERS

183. Francesco Della Corte, 'Da Proteo a Sileno e da Sileno a Proteo,' SANDALION 165-78.

184. Joseph Anthony Farrell, Jr., Thematic Allusion to Lucretius in Vergil's Georgics. (Diss., North Carolina, Chapel Hill, 1983). DA 45 (July 1984) 175A.

185. Georg Luck, 'Naevius and Virgil,' ICS 8 (1983) 267-75.

186. Agostino Masaracchia, 'Virgilio e Teocrito: nascita e fortuna dell' ideale bucolico,' SANDALION 75-91.

187. Antonio Tovar, 'The Literary Background of Virgil's Georgics,' ICS 8 (1983) 60-64.

Della Corte's article oscillates between Homer's Odyssey and Vergil's Bucolics and Georgics with ease and versatility, and with fresh insights into the creative process at the close. Luck argues that Vergil borrowed considerably from Naevius' epic and tragedies.

ANCIENT AUTHORS AFTER VERGIL

188. Tamás Adamik, 'Die Funktion der Vergilzitate in Laktanz' De mortibus persecutorum,' SYMPOSIUM VERGILIANUM HUNGARIA 85-95.

189. Giuseppina Barabino, 'Il libro di Nonio Marcello e gli obtrectatores Vergilii,' Sileno 9 (1983) 197-206.

190. Giuseppina Barabino, 'L'auctoritas di Virgilio in Nonio Marcello,' SANDALION 203-25.

191. Emily Elisabeth Batinski, Vergilian Citations in Seneca's Prose Works. (Diss., Colorado, Boulder 1983). DA 45 (July 1984). 175A.

192. David F. Bright, 'Theory and Practice in the Vergilian Cento,' ICS 9 (1984) 79-90.

193. Vernon Lee Ceder, The Latin Pastoral Eclogue after Vergil. (Diss., Wisconsin, Madison 1984). DA 45 (February 1985) 2515A.

194. L. Coronati, 'Osservazioni sulla traduzione Greca della IV ecloga di Virgilio,' Civiltà classica e cristiana 5 (1984) 71-84.

195. Elizabeth Fisher, 'Greek translations of Latin literature in the fourth century A. D.,' YCS 27 (1982) 173-215.

196. Gerardo H. Pagés, 'Virgilio en Persio,' Virgilio en el bimilenario de su muerte (Hugo F. Bauza, ed.) [Buenos Aires 1982] 97-102.

197. Maria Vietti, 'Pathos virgiliano e retorica in Macrobio,' Atti, Accademia delle Scienze di Torino 113 (1979) 219-43.

198. Antonie Wlosok, 'Zwei Beispiele frühchristlicher 'Vergilrezeption': Polemik (Lact. div. inst. 5, 10) und Usurpation (Or. Const. 19-21),' SYMPOSIUM VERGILIANUM HUNGARIA 7-41; and WOLFENBÜTTELER FORSCHUNGEN 63-86.

Barabino cites and examines instances where the obtrectatores landed: E. 7.7; G. 3.245; 361; 438; 4.168; Aen. 1.110; 10.314. Bizarre combinations of words and improper usages were the chief targets, but Nonius sought to defend Vergil against his critics. The SANDALION article continues in the same. Bright examines centos found in the Latin Anthology (Codex Salmasianus) and reviews Ausonius' rules and instructions for the centonist. Fisher studies Vergil's Fourth Eclogue and Constantine's Oration to the Assembly of Saints (pp. 177-82) along with juxtalinear translations of Vergil (and Cicero), pp. 183-9. Wlosok studies the impact of Vergil on early Christian writers.

MANUSCRIPTS

199. R. E. Gaebel, 'The Vergilian manuscripts M, P and R,' Classical Texts, Trabman (#94) 59-66.

200. Florentine Mütterich, 'Ein verlorener Karolingischer Vergil-Codex,' WOLFENBÜTTELER FORSCHUNGEN 189-96.

201. L. D. Reynolds, ed., Texts and Transmission: A Survey of the Latin Classics (New York 1983).

VERGIL AND LATER AGES

202. J. Baroin, 'Deux regards sur Virgile dans l'épopée, médiévale,' Hommages à Jean Cousin (#29) 299-306.

203. Henry Berger, 'Archaism, Vision and Revision: Studies in Virgil, Plato and Milton,' Centennial Review 11 (1967) 24-72.

204. Ferruccio Bertini, 'Interpreti medievali di Virgilio: Fulgenzio e Bernardo Silvestre,' SANDALION 151-64.

205. Mária Borbély-Bánki, 'Aeneis-Travestien aus der Blütezeit der komischen Epen am Ende des 18. Jahrhunderts,' SYMPOSIUM VERGILIANUM HUNGARIA 127-36.

206. A. W. A. Boschloo, 'De Aeneis in de Italiaanse Wandschilder-Kunst van de 16e eeuw,' Hermeneus 54 (1982) 289-313.

207. Elizabeth Lindsey Britten, The Dido-Aeneas Story from Vergil to Dryden. (Diss., Virginia 1984). DA 45 (June 1985) 3642A.

208. Ch. Dédéyan, 'Dante e Virgilio,' Atti della Accad. Roveretana degli Agiati (#60) 49-77.

209. J. L. de Jong, 'Sub falso tegmine vera: Dido en Aeneas in de Italiaanse kunst der Renaissance,' Hermeneus 54 (1982) 279-88.

210. Miquel Dolç, 'Supervivencia de un mito virgiliano: la Sibila,' Virgilio en el bimilenario de su muerte (Hugo F. Bauza, ed.) [Buenos Aires 1982] 25-37.

211. Joachim Draheim, 'Vergil in der Musik,' WOLFENBÜTTELER FORSCHUNGEN 197-222.

212. Marcello Gigante, 'Premessa alla lettura dell'Eneide,' LECTURAE VERGILIANAE 6-12.

213. Miguel A. Granada, 'Virgilio y la theologia poetica en el humanismo y en el platonismo del Renacimiento,' Faventia 5 (1983) 41-64.

214. K. W. Gransden, 'The Aeneid and Paradise Lost,' SUSSEX STUDIES 95-116.

215. Colin Hardie, 'Virgil in Dante,' SUSSEX STUDIES 37-69.
216. Robert Hollander, 'Il Virgilio dantesco: tragedia nella "Commedia"' (Firenze 1983).
217. Nicholas Horsfall, 'Decus et Tutamen,' Omnibus 6 (1983) 20.
218. Herbert H. Huxley, 'Vergil and the British Pound Coin,' Vergilius 30 (1984) 40-41.
219. Amilcare A. Iannucci, 'Vergil and the Tragedy of the Virtuous Pagans in Dante's Commedia,' VERGILIUS SUPPLEMENTARY VOLUME 2, 145-78.
220. Gabriel Josipovici, 'Vergil Dying,' SUSSEX STUDIES 245-64.
221. Craig Kallendorf, 'Maffeo Vegio's Book XIII and the Aeneid of Early Italian Humanism,' Altro Polo: The Classical Continuum in Italian Thought and Letters (Anne Reynolds, ed.) [Sydney 1984] 47-56.
222. Craig Kallendorf, 'Cristoforo Landino's Aeneid and the Humanist Critical Tradition,' Renaissance Quarterly 36 (1983) 519-46.
223. P. Knezovic, 'Tragovi Vergiljevog stvaralaštva u Kunićevim elegijama (Traces of Vergil's Poetry in Kunić's Elegies)' SYMPOSIUM VERGILIANUM HUNGARIA 201-14.
224. Kathleen L. Komar, 'The Death of Vergil: Broch's Reading of Vergil's Aeneid,' Comparative Literature Studies 21 (1984) 255-69.
225. Antonio La Penna, 'Le scelte di Sannazaro in Arcadia,' WOLFENBÜTTELER FORSCHUNGEN 87-108.
226. Laurence Lerner, 'The Eclogues and the Pastoral Tradition,' SUSSEX STUDIES 193-213.
227. Wolfgang Liebenwein, 'Princeps Poetarum. Die mittelalterlichen Vergil-Bilder in Mantua,' WOLFENBÜTTELER FORSCHUNGEN 109-52.
228. Nigel Llewellyn, 'Virgil and the Visual Arts,' SUSSEX STUDIES 117-40.
229. Maristella Lorch, 'Virgil in Lorenzo Valla's De voluptate (On Pleasure),' Altro Polo: The Classical Continuum in Italian Thought and Letters (Anne Reynolds, ed.) [Sydney 1984] 35-46.
230. Bruno Luiselli, 'Il profetismo virgiliano nella cultura veterocristiana,' SANDALION 133-49.
231. C. Marangoni, 'Il Virgilio dell'Aretino,' Giornale storico della letteratura italiana 160 (1983) 524-46.
232. Stephen Medcalf, 'Virgil at the Turn of Time,' SUSSEX STUDIES 215-44.
233. P. G. B. Meyboom, 'De illustraties van de Vergilius Vaticanus,' Hermeneus 54 (1982) 266-78.
234. Alain Michel, 'Sainte-Beuve et Virgile: Néo-classicisme et romantisme devant la critique moderne,' REL 61 (1983) 265-83.
235. J. K. Newman, 'Small Latine and Lesse Greeke? Shakespeare and the Classical Tradition,' ICS 9 (1984) 309-30.
236. A. D. Nuttall, 'Virgil and Shakespeare,' SUSSEX STUDIES 71-93.
237. E. Paratore, 'Virgilio e S. Bernardo,' Atti della Accademia Nazionale dei Lincei: Rendiconti 38 (1984) 5-7.

238. E. Paratore, Virgilio nell'età di Dante (Roma 1982).

239. Annabel Patterson, 'Vergil's Eclogues: Images of Change,' Roman Images (Selected Papers from the English Institute, 1982) [Annabel Patterson, ed.] (Baltimore & London 1984) 163-86.

240. A. Petrucci, 'Virgilio nella cultura scritta romana,' Virgilio e noi (#3) 51-72.

241. John Pitcher, 'A Theatre of the Future: The Aeneid and The Tempest,' Essays in Criticism 34 (1984) 193-215.

242. Angus Ross, 'Virgil and the Augustans,' SUSSEX STUDIES 141-167.

243. B. Schneider, 'Virgilius pictus: Sebastian Brants illustrierte Vergil-ausgabe von 1502 und Ihre Nachwirkung,' WOLFENBÜTTELER FORSCHUNGEN 202-62.

244. Bruce Stovel, 'Waverley and The Aeneid: Scott's Art of Allusion,' English Studies in Canada 11 (1985) 26-39.

245. W. Suerbaum, 'Ut poesis pictura? Bilder zum Titel, zum Anfang und zum Schluss von Vergils Aeneis,' Tradition und Rezeption (Peter Neukam, ed.) [München 1984] 35-55.

246. S. Tax, 'Vergilius Britannicus,' Hermeneus 54 (1982) 254-65.

247. Norman Vance, 'Virgil and the Nineteenth Century,' SUSSEX STUDIES 169-92.

248. Werner von Koppenfels, 'Parva componere magnis: Vergil und die 'mockheroische' Perspektive des Klassizismus in England,' WOLFENBÜTTELER FORSCHUNGEN 153-174.

Gigante's introduction to the Lecturae Vergilianae III deals with the fortunes of Vergilian studies under Fascism, with Vergil as vates (transformed) of Fascist imperialism. Gransden is concerned with the epic as proper blueprint for Milton's Paradise Lost. Hardie argues that the private, melancholy and pessimistic 'voice' of Vergil emerges in The Divine Comedy not the public 'voice' triumphant and imperial. Vergil's exclusion from salvation accounts for the 'private' manifestation. Horsfall and Huxley both treat the Latin legend on the new One Pound coin; both recall that the motto derived not directly from A. 5.262 but from John Evelyn's having seen it in a vignette at the close of Cardinal Richelieu's Greek Testament (2 Corinthians). Iannucci's bimillenary lecture in its assessment of the tragedy of Vergil and the virtuous pagans of Limbo awakens a greater sense of Greek tragedy of necessity than of Christian tragedy of possibility. Their tragedy is not one of free will but of predestination. But their tragedy is also a paradox, evoking pity and compassion. 'They were irrevocably scarred by the sin of the First Adam and forsaken by the saving grace of the Second.' Josipovici writes about his play Vergil Dying, broadcast on Radio 3 (BBC) on 29 March 1979, and subsequently published by SPAN, the Windsor Arts Centre Press. The playwright records how Vergil influenced him and provides insights into the nature of the creative process. Kallendorf deals with the popular Quattrocento supplement to Vergil's Aeneid. Because the Renaissance saw Vergil as a source of virtues and ethical propriety, Vegio sought to tie up Vergil's ethical loose ends in a thirteenth book. Cristoforo Landino, Kallendorf's other concern, embodied the best of contemporary Vergilian criticism in his Disputationes Camaldulenses (1480) and in his line-by-line commentary on the Aeneid (1488). Lerner's study of the pastoral genre, and its hallmarks (countryside, language, self-consciousness in the style) is a major contribution. Lorch explains the function of Vergil's Georgics in one of the most important philosophical tracts of the Italian Renaissance. Medcalf explores the gardens, grotto and lake of Stourhead and detects elements of Vergil's durability and impression in the places and sculptures of Henry Hoare's gardens. Newman and Nuttall, in different fashion, explore the classical and Vergilian imprint on Shakespeare's plays. Nuttall is more concerned with differences and similarities in sensibility in the two poets than with direct influences. Patterson sees the Eclogues as an ideal text to document cultural history: they are a virtual emblem, or cultural catalyst in changing times in the successive scholarly commentaries, painterly history, and awareness of social and political contexts. Patterson's chapter offers bright new directions for Vergilian studies in this increasingly popular area of cultural and artistic reflections and influences. Pitcher's essay points up frequent borrowings and intimations of Vergil's epic in Shakespeare's The Tempest. Ross's Sussex lecture deals with Dryden's Astrea Redux (1660) and his translation (1697), with the illustrators, and with discussions and quotations of Vergil in Steele's Tatler and Addison's Spectator. The Seasons, of James Thomson, is addressed at the close. Sir Walter Scott, in Stovel's paper, favoured Vergilian allusions as an artistic device, one which would add subtlety, range, and coherence to his novels. Vance's study of the Victorians balances negative with positive perceptions of Vergil as poet of public and political themes, and as poet of pathos. Draheim provides a remarkably complete perspective of Vergilian influence on music from the earliest detections to modern times. Vergil's influence on the visual arts is a growing concern of scholarship; Boschloo, de Jong, and Llewellyn are concerned with Renaissance and later manifestations. Many will concur with Llewellyn's verdict on Claude's canvasses, that there was 'either a reciprocal current of influence between text and image or . . . Claude had a higher degree of Virgilian sensibility than any other artist before or since.'

McMaster University
31 July 1985

Alexander G. McKay