

VERGILIAN BIBLIOGRAPHY 1985-86

Author(s): Alexander G. McKay

Source: Vergilius (1959-), 1986, Vol. 32 (1986), pp. 79-97

Published by: The Vergilian Society

Stable URL: <https://www.jstor.org/stable/41591944>

JSTOR is a not-for-profit service that helps scholars, researchers, and students discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content in a trusted digital archive. We use information technology and tools to increase productivity and facilitate new forms of scholarship. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org

Your use of the JSTOR archive indicates your acceptance of the Terms & Conditions of Use, available at <https://about.jstor.org/terms>

JSTOR

The Vergilian Society is collaborating with JSTOR to digitize, preserve and extend access to Vergilius (1959-)

VERGILIAN BIBLIOGRAPHY 1985-86

In Memoriam - Robert Deryck Williams (1917-1986)

The present survey of Vergilian scholarship is the twenty-fourth in the VERGILIUS series. Classical World 68:1 (1974), published in association with The Vergilian Society, Inc., contains my "Recent Work on Vergil: A Bibliographical Survey, 1964-73." The survey was reprinted in The Classical World Bibliography of Vergil (Walter Donlan, ed.), Garland Publishing, Inc., (New York & London 1978). Subsequent reviews of scholarship have appeared in Vergilius 19 (1973), 20 (1974), 21 (1975), 22 (1976), 23 (1977), 24 (1978), 25 (1979), 26 (1980), 27 (1981), 28 (1982), 29 (1983), 30 (1984), and 31 (1985).

This compilation owes much to the assistance and cooperation of Mills Memorial Library of McMaster University, the Robarts Library of the University of Toronto, and the Library of the Union Académique Internationale, Brussels, Belgium. Offprints of articles and titles for inclusion in the annual VERGILIUS bibliography were generously provided by readers, and scholars are once again invited to send material and suggested entries to the editor of Vergilian Bibliography, c/o Dept. of Classics, McMaster University, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada L8S 4M2.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

(Short titles used for later reference are in capitals following the citations.)

1. Juliette Ernst, Viktor Poeschl, William C. West (eds.), L'Année Philologique 54 [1983] (Paris 1985)
2. Alexander G. McKay, "Vergilian Bibliography, 1984-85," Vergilius 31 (1985) 62-80.
3. Meyer Reinhold & Emily Albu Hanawalt, "Bibliography of the Classical Tradition for 1980-82," CML 5 (1985) 141-268 (Vergil, 211-18).

VERGILIAN BIMILLENARY PUBLICATIONS

4. Societat espanyola d'estudis clàssics. Actes del VIè simposi (Barcelona 11-13 de febrer del 1981) (Barcelona 1983). BARCELONA
5. Atti del Convegno Virgiliano di Brindisi nel Bimillenario della Morte. Brindisi, 15-18. Ottobre, 1981. (Perugia, Istituto di Filologia Latina) (Napoli 1983). BRINDISI
6. Virgilio nostro antico. Atti delle celebrazioni per il Bimillenario Virgiliano in Calvisano (Comune di Calvisano 1983). CALVISANO
7. Atti del Convegno Mondiale Scientifico di Studi Virgiliani. Vol 1 (Milano 1984).
8. Atti del Convegno di studi virgiliani, Pescara 23-25 ottobre 1981 (Annali Liceo-ginn. G. d'Annunzio, Pescara 1982). PESCARA
9. V. L. da Nobrega, "Le bimillénaire de Virgile au Brésil," BRINDISI 383-7.
10. Lee E. Reichman, "La célébration du bimillénaire de Virgile en Pologne," Meander 38 (1983) 285-97.

Vergilius 79

11. A. Wlosok, "Bimillennarium Vergilianum 1981/1982 (1983). Wissenschaftliche Kongresse, Symposien, Tagunden, Vortragsreihen, Jubiläumsband - ein Überblick," Gnomon 57 (1985) 127-34.

The bimillenary fever has abated somewhat but the fall-out from 1981 and 1982 continues to appear in belated publications or delayed arrivals. Antonie Wlosok's collected titles and notices is exemplary and enormously useful for those who wish to assess recent trends in Vergilian scholarship and to discover centers of concentration.

EDITIONS, TRANSLATIONS AND SCHOLIA

12. K. Bayer, "Der Dichter Vergil gibt dem mächtigen Octavian einen Rat. Zur Vorgeschichte des 16. Januar 27 v. Chr.," Anregung 28 (1982) 45.

13. D. Condom, "L'edició gironina de les Bucòliques de Virgili," BARCELONA 241-58.

14. Dietrich Ebener, "Überlegungen aus Anlass einer Vergil-Übertragung," Klio 67 (1985) 315-25.

15. Alistair Elliot, The Georgics with John Dryden's Translation (Ashington 1981). Rev: Francis Cairns, Latomus 44 (1985) 898.

16. Robert Fitzgerald, The Aeneid (New York 1983). Rev: D. S. Carne-Ross, NYRB 30, 16 (1983) 3-4; Anne Haward, JACT Review 1 (1984) 25-6.

17. Hans-Joachim Glücklich, "Überblick über einige Schulausgaben der Aeneis," Gymnasium 91 (1984) 119-34.

18. Hans-Joachim Glücklich, Vergil Aeneis. Texte mit Erläuterungen, Begleit-texte, Interpretationsgeschichtspunkte, metrischer Anhang und Stilistik (Göttingen 1984).

19. H. D. Jocelyn, "The annotations of M. Valerius Probus, III: some Virgilian scholia," CQ 35 (1985) 466-74.

20. A. Jurilli, "La fortuna editoriale delle opere di Virgilio nell'Italia meridionale fino al XVIII secolo," BRINDISI 65-80.

21. Arthur Keaveney, "A Note on Servius, ad Aeneid. 7,637," Philologus 128 (1984) 138-9.

22. Guy Lee, Virgil, The Eclogues. Latin text with verse translation and brief notes (Penguin 1984). Rev: Martin Thorpe, JACT Review 1 (1984) 25.

23. A. Mandelbaum (transl.), The Aeneid of Virgil (Berkeley & Los Angeles, 1981). Rev: Francis Cairns, Latomus 42 (1983) 695-6.

24. Graham Tingay, Virgil: Selections from the Aeneid. (Cambridge 1984). Rev: John F. Hall, Vergilius 31 (1985) 94-5.

Bayer is concerned with an anecdote connecting Vergil with Augustus in Codex Bodleianus Can. lat. 61. An 18th century edition (1771) engages Condom. Elliot's article omits the 17th century commentaries which conditioned Dryden's attitude towards his text. Glücklich's Latin text is exemplary.

APPENDIX VERGILIANA

25. W. Ax, "Die pseudovergilische 'Mücke' - ein Beispiel römischer Literaturparodie?," Philologus 128 (1984) 230-49.

26. A. de Vivo, "Contributi al testo dell' 'Aetna'," Orpheus 6 (1985) 90-108.
27. P. T. Eden, "Moretum 15," CQ 35 (1985) 529.
28. F. R. D. Goodyear, "The 'Aetna': Thought, Antecedents, and Style," ANRW II.32.1 (1984) 344-63.
29. M. Lombardi, "Echi catulliani nei Priapea e negli Epigrammata dell' Appendice Vergiliana," PESCARA 148-60.
30. Alessandro Perutelli (ed), Moretum (Pisa 1983). Rev: Raoul Verdière Latomus 44 (1985) 628-30.
31. A. Schoonhoven, "Pugilice atque athleticæ: immo rhetorice!," Mnemosyne 39 (1986) 133-4.
32. A. Schoonhoven, "The Panegyricus Messalæ: Date and relation with Catalepton 9," ANRW II.30.3 (1983) 1681-1707.

Eden emends Moretum 15 to provide better consistency (from pervidet to permeet). Goodyear's Aetna study sheds fresh light on the make-up of the poem. Catullian reminiscences in the Priapea and Epigrams are more lexical than inspirational according to Lombardi.

ECLOGUES: GENERAL STUDIES

33. P. J. Alpers, The Singer of the Eclogues (Berkeley 1979). Rev: Robert Coleman, CompLit 35 (1983) 175-7.
34. E. Coleiro, An Introduction to Vergil's Bucolics (Amsterdam 1979). Rev: Westendorp Boerma, Mnemosyne 36 (1983) 213-5.
35. M. Morani, "Osservazioni linguistiche alle Ecloghe vergiliane," Aevum 59 (1985) 69-95.
36. T. Oksala, "Zum Gebrauch der griechischen Lehnwörter bei Vergil. 1: Interpretation zu den Bucolica," Arctos 18 (1984) 45-63.
37. M. Villalonga, "La técnica repetitiva a les Bucòliques de Virgili," BARCELONA 217-39.
38. R. Di Virgilio, "Non canimus surdis. La poetica virgiliana delle Silvae," PESCARA 94-110.

Morani studies the placing of adjectives and enjambement as a stylistic factor; Oksala illuminates Greek usages in the Eclogues. Villalonga detects links between structure and theme in the collection. Di Virgilio aligns silvae with woodlands and eklogai, an ambiguity present in 4.3; 8.58; and 10.8.

ECLOGUES: INDIVIDUAL POEMS

39. R. Gazich, "Il sema 'silvestrità'. Continuità e disgiunzione nella prima ecloga di Virgilio," CALVISANO 131-40.
40. W. Hering, "Form und Inhalt in der frühaugusteischen Poesie," ANRW II, 30:1 (1982) 181-253.
41. John Van Sickle, "How Do We Read Ancient Texts? Codes and Critics in Virgil, Eclogue One," MD 13 (1984) 107-28.
42. V. Buchheit, "Wunder der Dichtung (Vergil, ecl. 3, 88 f)," WüJbb NF 10 (1984) 73-6.

43. Heinz Hofmann, "Ein Aratpapyrus bei Vergil," Hermes 113 (1985) 468-80.
44. Jean Beaujeu, "L'enfant sans nom de la IV^e Bucolique," REL 60 (1982) 186-215.
45. F. Bevilacqua, "Qualche appunto sulla Bucolica IV," PESCARA 119-34.
46. F. Della Corte, "La 'proanafonesi' della IV egloga," Maia 34 (1982) 3-11.
47. C. Monteleone, "Sul testo dell' ecloga quarta di Virgilio," QuadFoggia 2-3 (1982-33) 33-74.
48. Akaki Uruschadse, "Vergils vierte Ekloge," Klio 67 (1985) 205-209.
49. Peter E. Knox, "Wine, Water, and Callimachean Polemics," HSCP 89 (1985) 107-19.
50. A. Köhnken, "Sola. . . tua carmina (Vergil, Ecl. 8,9f)," WüJbb NF 10 (1984) 77-90.

Gazich and Hering are both concerned with Eclogue 1; Hering's review of Eclogue 1 appears in pp. 184-207. Van Sickle provides valuable instruction in his "reading" of the first Eclogue, and contests Ian DuQuesnay's strictures in Papers, Liverpool Latin Seminar 3 (1981) 29-182. The troublesome riddles of Damoetas (E. 3, 104f) and Menalcas (106f) are studied by Hofmann with reference to Aratus' Phainomena. Beaujeu despairs of an identification for the Wunderkind and settles for a new generation, an anonymous child of the Roman aristocracy. Bevilacqua recognizes divination and possibly Hebraic influence in the Messianic Eclogue but stresses the Greco-Roman traits of history, work, and peace. Monteleone favors Lactantius (Div. inst. 7, 24, 9-11) and pre-fifth century writers who follow a text providing: 18-20, 23, 26-7, 31-41, 28, 30, 21-22, and 24-5. The net result is a sophisticated genethliakon rather than prophecy. Knox examines the "intensely Callimachean" setting of the Sixth Eclogue and provides a parallel for Gallus' initiation in the anti-Callimachean, Antimachus of Colophon.

GEORGICS: GENERAL STUDIES

51. G. Boccuto, "I segni premonitori del tempo in Virgilio e Arato," A&R 30 (1985) 9-16.
52. S. Boscherini, "Tracce di scienza pitagorica nelle Georgiche," BRINDISI 303-307.
53. F. Muecke, "Life on Earth or the Man on the Land," Classicum 8 (1982) 17-22.
54. Robert M. Wilhelm, "Apollo, Sol and Caesar: Triumvirate of Order," The Augustan Age 5 (1986) 60-75.

Boscherini highlights Pythagorean science in the Georgics in a most suggestive fashion. Muecke argues that Vergil attempted to reconcile the disparity between the moral earnestness of Lucretius' didactic poem with the technical material of the Georgics. Wilhelm traces solar associations for both Julius and Augustus Caesar. The ties between Sol and Apollo and Augustus were token of fusion's energy and order in the world.

GEORGICS: INDIVIDUAL POEMS

55. David W. Tandy, "Vergil, Georgics 1.42: The Immanence of Octavian," Vergilius 31 (1985) 54-7.
56. M. J. Harbinson, "Virgil's 'White Bird'," CQ 36 (1986) 276-8.
57. Luciano Landolfi, "Durus Amor. L'Ecfrasi georgica sull' insania erotica," CCC 6 (1985) 177-98.
58. John F. Makowsky, "Georgic 3.41: A Vergilian Word-Play at the Expense of Maecenas," Vergilius 31 (1985) 57-8.
59. K. Wellesley, "Virgil, Georgics 3.44 Emended," LCM 10 (1985) 35.
60. S. Abramowicz, "De epyllio Georgicorum libro IV a Vergilio inserto," (Polish, with Latin résumé) Meander 38 (1983) 369-76.
61. E. Paratore, "Le lodi di Gallo alla fine delle Georgiche," BollClass 4 (1983) 57-68.
62. Ella Schwartz, Aspects of Orpheus in Classical Literature and Mythology. Diss. Harvard 1984. Abstract: HSCP 89 (1985) 240-3.

Tandy offers a fresh assessment of ingredere (G. 1.42): "enter (your temple)," or "cross the threshold." Harbinson detects the short-toed eagle (Circaetus gallicus) rather than the white stork (ciconia) in Vergil's white bird (G. 2.319-20). Landolfi treats Vergil's negative view of love and in particular the sphragis of his attitude in the celebrated excursus (G. 3.242-83). Makowski detects playful wit in the juxtaposition of Maecenas with haud mollia iussa, thereby accenting a salient feature of his patron's persona. Abramowicz regards the Aristaetus epyllion as a replacement for the eulogy of Gallus which was censored by Augustus. Schwartz, inter alia, associates G. 4 and Tibullus 1.7 and underscores their pervasive concern with poetry's ability to confer immortality.

AENEID: GENERAL STUDIES

63. Michael Von Albrecht, "Einheit und Vielfalt von Vergils Lebenswerk," Gymnasium 90 (1983) 123-43.
64. Thomas Berres. Die Entstehung der Aeneis (Wiesbaden 1982). Rev: Walter Moskalew, AJP 106 (1985) 527-30.
65. Marzia Bonfanti, Punto di vista e modi della narrazione nell' Eneide. (Biblioteca di "Materiali e discussioni per l'analisi dei testi classica 3") (Pisa 1985).
66. Francis Cairns, "Concord in the Aeneid of Virgil," Klio 67 (1985) 210-15.
67. A. Cattivera, "La coscienza nazionale italiana in Virgilio e in Dante," PESCARA 20-40.
68. Vincent J. Cleary, "Aeneidea: Important work on the Aeneid (1976-83) for Secondary School Teachers," CJ 80 (1985) 3351-6.
69. E. Coleiro, Tematica e Struttura dell' Eneide di Virgilio (Amsterdam 1983). Rev: G. K. Galinsky, Vergilius 31 (1985) 87-8; Ann Vasaly, Latomus 44 (1985) 667-8.
70. L. Colucci, "Noterelle sul movimento degli astri in Virgilio," PESCARA 41-71.
71. Gian Biagio Conte, The Rhetoric of Imitation. Genre and Poetic Memory in Virgil and Other Latin Poets (translated from the Italian, edited, and with a foreword by Charles Segal). (Ithaca & London 1986).

72. Y. A. Daughe, "Le treizième livre de l'Énéide. Astrologie et énergétique de la métamorphose (French & English résumés)," Pallas 30 (1983) 25-48, 135-6.
73. R. Fahr, "Lacrimans exsul feror. Eine psychoanalytisch-biologistische Interpretation von Vergils Aeneis," Anregung 29 (1983) 377-82.
74. Hermann Funke, "Sunt lacrimae rerum. Komposition und Ideologie in Vergils Aeneis," Klio 67 (1985) 224-33.
75. K. E. Gransden, "Virgil's Iliad: An Essay on Epic Narrative (London & New York 1984). Rev: Raymond J. Clark, EMC 30 (1986) 90-93; S. J. Harrison, CR 36 (1986) 38-40; Stephanie Quinn Katz, CW 79 (1986) 415; Frances Muecke, Classicum 27 (1985) 35-6; F. Robertson, G&R 32 (1985) 213-4; M. M. Willcock, JACT Review 2 (1985) 22.
76. Philip R. Hardie, Virgil's Aeneid: Cosmos and Imperium (Oxford 1986).
77. E. L. Harrison, "Foundation Prodigies in the Aeneid," Papers, Liverpool Latin Seminar 5 (1985) 131-64.
78. Evan William Hauck, Virgil's Contribution to Ekphrasis. (Diss. The Ohio State University, 1985) DA 46 (1985) 1617A.
79. Richard Jenkyns, "Pathos, Tragedy and Hope in the Aeneid," JRS 75 (1985) 60-77.
80. R. O. A. M. Lyne, "La 'voce privata' di Virgilio nell' Eneide," MusPat 2 (1984) 5-21.
81. Józef Mantke, "Aeneis als Epostitel," Klio 67 (1985) 238-47.
82. Frances Muecke, "Turning Away and Looking Down: Some Gestures in the Aeneid," BICS 31 (1984) 105-12.
83. R. F. Newbold, "Sensitivity to Shame in Greek and Roman Epic, with Particular Reference to Claudian and Nonnus," Ramus 14 (1985) 30-45.
84. John Kevin Newman, The Classical Epic Tradition (Madison 1986). Chapter 4, Virgil (104-87).
85. P. A. Perotti, "Nova Vergiliana," Latinitas 33 (1985) 251-66.
86. Michael C. J. Putnam, "Possessiveness, Sexuality and Heroism in the Aeneid," Vergilius 31 (1985) 1-21.
87. Silvana Rocca, Etologia Virgiliana (Genova 1983). Rev: W. Richter, Gnomon 57 (1985) 221-6; H. Bardon, Latomus 44 (1985) 666-7; Patricia A. Johnston, Vergilius 31 (1985) 92.
88. W. Schmid, Vergil-Probleme (Göttingen 1983). Rev: Rudolf Rieks, Gnomon 57 (1985) 508-12.
89. Charles P. Segal, "Literature and Interpretation: Conventions, History and Universals," CML 5 (1985) 71-85.
90. Werner Suerbaum, "Und der Stern zog ihnen voraus," Et Scholae et Vitae: Humanistische Beiträge zur Aktualität der Antike für Karl Bayer zu seinem 65. Geburtstag, Friedrich Maier, Werner Suerbaum (eds.) (München 1985) 22-32.
91. Werner Suerbaum, Vergils Aeneis. Beiträge zu ihrer Rezeption in Gegenwart und Geschichte (Bamberg 1981). Rev: Kytzler, Gnomon 55 (1983) 164-6.
92. Annamaria Taliervo, "Alcuni aspetti dell' etiologia in età augustea," RCCM 27 (1985) 13-21.
93. Joël Thomas, Structures de l'imaginaire dans l'Énéide (Paris, 1981). Rev: J. Perret, REL 60 (1982) 414-6; Tordeur, AC 52 (1983) 372-3; G. Radke, Gymnasium 90 (1983) 312-3; V. Pöschl, Gnomon 57 (1985) 229-34.
94. Joël Thomas, "Personnalités féminines et quête initiatique dans l'Énéide," Latomus 44 (1985) 546-60.
95. R. Vicenzi, "Cartagine nell' Eneide," Aevum 59 (1985) 97-106.

96. G. Williams, Technique and Ideas in the Aeneid (New Haven 1983). Rev: N. Horsfall, TLS 82 (1983) 380; Dee, CW 77 (1983) 58-9; P. J. Burnell, EMC 29 (1985) 189-91; John Warden, Phoenix 39 (1985) 172-4.

97. R. D. Williams, The Aeneid of Virgil. A Companion to the Translation of C. Day Lewis (with introduction, commentary, and glossary). (Bristol 1985).

Cairns examines the poles of Discord and Concord around which the epic moves. The Aeneid's first simile (1.148-54) Cairns associates with Marc Antony's discord. Cattivera underlines Vergil's concern for Italy, united and consolidated by Rome. Cleary's review article continues to offer useful counsel to high-school teachers. Colucci examines the movement of stars in A. 2.9; 2.250; 6.539; and 8.369. Segal's translation includes the larger part of Conte's two earlier volumes, both well received: Memoria dei poeti e sistema letterario (1974) and Il genere e i suoi confini (1980, 1984). Particularly valuable are Conte's interpretation of Eclogue 10, Aristaeus, Orpheus and the Georgics, Vergil's Aeneid, the Baldrick of Pallas, and the Helen Episode. Dauge argues for astronomical symbolism in the 12 books of the epic, both solar and stellar. Hardie's new volume explores cosmology and imperialism in the epic. Harrison's prodigies include the horse's head (1, 443-9) and the Table Eating prophecy. Hauck's dissertation deals with the temple wall decorations at Carthage, and the temple doors at Cumae, and accents Vergil's originality and psychological insights in the descriptions. Jenkyns argues forcefully for a more detached view of Vergilian pessimism and melancholy; a thoughtful, contentious and spirited plea for reassessment of contemporary views which so often abandon hope as a Vergilian trait. Lyne's study of pathos includes A. 4.494-7, 646-53; and 12.451ff, 473ff. Muecke considers the peculiar force of Dido's gestures of rejection. Newbold's study of sensitivity to shame samples the first 250 verses from all the epic books. Perotti's Latin article includes the slaughter of Priam, Dido and Anna, Dido and Cleopatra, and Aeneas and Lavinia in its assessment of new directions. Putnam's article brings Cacus, Pallas and Dido into fresh focus as he interprets the final scene of the epic. The conclusion is a demonstration of the epic's force: "the last lines of the poem look not to any new-found sense of order which might have been reached from an ethical use of arms leading to reestablishment of order but to the life of Aeneas' final victim suffering the ultimate indignity of death." (19). Charles Segal's article offers a steady, sensible discussion of the elements of sound criticism of the classics. Suerbaum deals with the motif of divine guidance for Aeneas in the pre-Vergilian and Vergilian tradition. Taliercio studies Callimachean aetiology and Vergilian practice in the accounts of Alba Longa, Misenum, Palinurus, and Caieta. Thomas (94) offers bright new insights into the persons and experiences involved in Aeneas' quest and recalls Brooks Otis' dictum (Virgil: A Study in Civilized Poetry, [Oxford 1963] 385) that Aeneas as hero "overcomes Dido and Turnus inside himself." Vicenzi's review of Carthage and its recurrences in the epic highlights fides Punica. Deryck Williams' offering prefaces each book with a survey of subject matter and treatment, and with characteristic care and insight, provides a general discussion of the epic's literary qualities in an Introduction. A glossary, and four appendixes (all models of fuller literary appreciation) complete this memorable guide for the general reader.

AENEID: INDIVIDUAL BOOKS

98. Bernd Manuwald, "Improvisi aderunt. Zur Sinon-Szene in Vergils Aeneis," Hermes 113 (1985) 183-208.
99. A Ronconi, "Un problema di esegesi virgiliana," PESCARA 9-14.
100. V. Ferraro, "Nostrae iniuria caedis (Verg. Aen. 3,256)," GFF 6 (1983) 103-6.
101. M. Giammarco, "Proposta di interpretazione del III libro dell' Eneide," PESCARA 111-13
102. E. L. Harrison, "Achaemenides' Unfinished Account: Vergil Aeneid 3.588-91," CP 81 (1986) 146-7.
103. L. Zurli, "Sulla marineria di Verg. Aen. 3, 356-357," Philologus 128 (1984) 105-10.
104. Robert J. Rabel, "Harpies in the Aeneid," CJ 80 (1985) 317-25.
105. J. H. W. Morwood, "Aeneas and Mount Atlas," JRS 75 (1985) 51-9.
106. Carrie Cowherd, "Dido Sacerdos," The Augustan Age 5 (1986) 17-21.
107. D. Lippi, "Magalia, magaria, mapalia (Verg. Aen. IV. 259)," Prometheus 10 (1984) 241-2.
108. G. Brugnoli, "Reges Albanorum," BRINDISI 157-90.
109. F. Fortuny, "Nota a Virgilio, Eneida VI. 802," Emerita 51 (1983) 315-21.
110. G. Perrone, "Virgilio Aen. VI.740-742," CCC 6 (1985) 33-41.
111. D. Lassandro, "Le porte di guerra del dio Giano in Virgilio (nota a Aen. 7, 601-623)," InvLuc 3-4 (1981-82) 187-95.
112. Carolinne Dermot Small, "Virgil, Aeneid 7. 620-2," CQ 36 (1986) 278-80.
113. J.-P. Brisson, "Note de lecture, Énéide VIII. 424-443," Hommages à Henry Bardon. Marcel Rénard, Pierre Laurens, eds. (Bruxelles 1985) 70-73. (Collection Latomus 187).
114. Reinhard Senfter, "Vergil, Aen. 8.589-91: Konnotationsraum und Funktionalisierung eines Vergleichs," MD 2 (1979) 171-4.
115. R. Drew Griffith, "Literary Allusion in Vergil, Aeneid 9.435ff.," Vergilius 31 (1985) 40-44.
116. Barbara Pavlock, "Epic and Tragedy in Vergil's Nisus and Euryalus Episode," TAPA 115 (1985) 207-24.
117. C. Lazzarini, "Audax-fortis. Due opposti paradigmi eroici (a proposito di Aen. 10, 284)," MD 9 (1982) 157-66.
118. C. Ratkowitsch, "Die Unterweltsgötter in der foedus-Szene Aen. 12, 175ff," WS N. F. 17 (1983) 75-88.
119. F. Stok, "Iapyx Iasides (Verg. Aen. 12, 391-392)," BRINDISI 191-8.

Manuwald responds to Greek dramatic features in the Sinon episode with attention to the speeches, the role of Calchas, and characterization. Ronconi's exegesis relates to A. 2.13-20. Ferraro deals with the problematic nature of nostrae iniuria caedis and favors caesum armentum over consilium caedis as both more concrete and appropriate. Doubts and anxiety are, according to Giammarco, the hallmark of Aeneid 3, aptly reflected in language and style. Harrison notes that Achaemenides is silent about the final manoeuvre, his own desertion by Odysseus. The technical language of seafaring occupies Zurli. Morwood is concerned with the context of the Atlas episode: Mount Atlas is, in his view, designed to embody a symbol of endurance, an apt exemplum for Aeneas, a paradigm of qualities conspicuously absent in Aeneas, toughness and a readiness to subordinate everything to his mission. The mountain simile at A. 12.701-3, signals that Aeneas is now imbued with the stamina characteristic of Vergil's Italians. Cowherd interprets A. 4.474-98 and discards notions of a witch priestess, a magical repertoire or love magic; we are left with the curses and the efficacious death of the Punic queen. Lippi prefers the reading magaria. Brugnoli points out that Vergil knows a larger number of Alban kings than are cited in Aeneid 6. Fortuny associates aeripedem with "wind-swift" movement. Perrone aligns inanes with ventos. Lassandro reconciles A. 7.601-23 with Livy, 1.19.1-4. The shock, associated with the Gates of War and Juno's intervention, foreshadows the terrible intensity of the forthcoming hostilities. Griffith examines the Hellenistic manner of literary allusion in the simile-pair which describes the death of Euryalus. Rabel studies the thematic development of the Harpies episode and its immediate influence on the course of the epic. Elements of the episode recur and associate Aeneas' odyssey with the developing relations with Dido.

AENEID: CHARACTERS

120. Janós Bollók, "Die Figur des Mezentius in Vergils Aeneis," Klio 67 (1985) 234-7.
121. F. Desiderio, "La dolente umanità dei personaggi femminili dell'Eneide," PESCARA 77-87.
122. C. Filograsso, "Il tema della morte in Medea e in Didone," PESCARA 173-89.
123. D. Gagliardi, "Due morti disperate: Camilla e Turno (a proposito di Aen. 10, 831 e 12, 952)," Orpheus 6 (1985) 404-7.
124. Daniel Gillis, "The Heroism of Anchises," PP 218 (1984) 321-41.
125. Jasper Griffin, "The Burdens of Aeneas," Omnibus 11 (1986) 11-12.
126. Mark Griffith, "What Does Aeneas Look Like?," CP 80 (1985) 309-19.
127. K. C. King, "Foil and Fusion. Homer's Achilles in Vergil's Aeneid," MD 9 (1982) 31-57.
128. P. J. Quetglas, "Ses portes de l'infern o es secret de l'heroi," Patio de letras. La rosa als llavis, Rev. de filol. i. lit. (Barcelona) (1983) 39-44.
129. Cornelia Regner, Aeneas und Turnus. Analyse einer Feindschaft (Studien zur Klassischen Philologie, 11) (Frankfurt-am-Main 1985). Rev: S. J. Harrison, CR 36 (1986) 43-4.
130. J. Romeuf, "Sexe fort et sexe faible dans l'Énéide," ALMArv 10 (1983) 7-22.
131. Joe Sachs, "The Fury of Aeneas," St. Johns Review (Winter 1982) 75-82.
132. Peter Schenk, Die Gestalt des Turnus in Vergils Aeneis (Königstein 1984) (Beiträge zur Klassischen Philologie, 164). Rev: S. J. Harrison, CR 36 (1986) 40-43.
133. Susan Skulsky, "Invitus, regina . . . Aeneas and the Love of Rome," AJP 106 (1985) 447-55.
134. Z. di Tillio, "L'hybris di Didone," PESCARA 165-72.
135. Grace Starry West, "Chloereus and Camilla," Vergilius 31 (1985) 22-9.
136. Antonie Wlosok, "Zur Funktion des Helden (Aeneas) in Vergils Aeneis," Klio 67 (1985) 216-23.

Desiderio examines common traits in Andromache, Creusa, and Dido. Gillis argues that Anchises is the true hero of the poem at the expense of his errant, unstable son. Griffin is convinced that it is superficial to regard Aeneas as anti-imperialist or anti-Augustan. The shield, his divinely-crafted burden, is a balance between the achievement of Empire and the inevitable human cost. Griffith notes that Aeneas is faceless and indistinct and that discrepancies and omissions are characteristic of his person. King argues that Vergil's resort to Achilles for his depiction of Turnus (and sometimes Aeneas) signals his distaste for Homeric heroism, for its irrational character and its threat to peace and civilization. Quetglas reconciles two aspects of Aeneas, his role as representative of a lost cause, and his role as triumphant forebear of Rome. Regner's excellent dissertation (supervised by von Albrecht) offers a legalistic inquiry into the right and wrong of the Aeneas-Turnus enmity. She champions adherence to the ethical systems of Vergil's Rome over the historical and contemporary prejudices of some modern critics. Aeneas, in her view, acts without blame in the final scene. Sachs argues that Aeneas' rage (12.946-7) invalidates his potential as paradigm for Roman impersonal leadership, and that self-discipline is a sine qua non for governing others. Skulsky regards Vergil's reference to Catullus 66.39 and its Callimachean antecedent as "a brilliant demonstration of intentional, complex, and controlled ambivalence, essential both to the dramatic effect of the scene and to its thematic import" (p. 455). Tillio defines Dido's tragic hybris as her passionate behavior, forgetful of her queenly responsibilities and of her oath to Sychaeus, and impervious to Aeneas' need to leave Carthage. West detects important faults in both Chloereus and Camilla, and in both Trojans and Latins. The effeminately dressed eunuch, and the evocations of a sensuous, luxurious way of life, embarrasses the cause he ineffectually champions and his death is a catharsis of Trojan weakness before Rome's advent. Wlosok's study of heroism in Aeneas' nature is directional and provocative.

AENEID: THE LEGENDS

137. G. D'Anna, "Virgilio e le antiche tradizioni italiane," BRINDISI 323-43.
138. L. Braccesi, La leggenda di Antenore, da Troia a Padova (Padova 1984). Rev: D. Briquel, Gnomon 57 (1985) 561.
139. G. Colonna, "Virgilio, Cortona e la leggenda etrusca di Dardano," ArchClass 32 (1980) 1-15. (Published, 1983).
140. A. T. Grafton and N. M. Swerdlow, "Greek Chronography in Roman Epic: The Calendrical Date of the Fall of Troy in the Aeneid," CQ 36 (1986) 212-8.
141. Lexicon Iconographicum Mythologiae Classicae II.1: Aphrodisias-Athena (Zurich, München 1984). Includes Aphrodite/Venus; Apollo; Arethusa; Aristaeus; Ascanius; Athena/Minerva, Ares/Mars, Artemis/Diana.

Colonna perceives the myth of Etruscan Dardanus as a product of north-east Etruria, shaped by Greek culture which concentrated in Cortona. Grafton and Swerdlow attempt to recover the calendar date of Troy's fall from learned traditions. They settle on a date near the beginning of summer. The Iconographic Lexicon offers useful, concise accounts of figures in the Aeneid narrative, along with helpful bibliographies and a compendium of illustrations.

AENEID: GEOGRAPHY AND ARCHAEOLOGY

142. A. Albertini, "Dov'era Andes, il luogo natale di Virgilio?," CALVISANO 57-72.
143. L. Alfonsi, "La Padania di Virgilio nello sviluppo della sua poesia," CALVISANO 13-44.
144. G. Binder, "Lusus Troiae. L'Énéide de Virgile comme source archéologique," BAGB 44 (1985) 349-56.
145. M. Capasso, Il sepolcro di Virgilio. (Napoli 1983)
146. F. Castagnoli, "Commentaires topographiques à l'Énéide," CRAI (1983) 202-15.
147. F. Castagnoli, "Commento topografico a Virgilio, Eneide VIII.720-22," RAL 37 (1983) 121-5.
148. F. Della Corte, "Brindisi e Virgilio," BRINDISI 1-15.
149. M. Dolç, "Actualitat d'un mite virgilià," BARCELONA 91-108.
150. Nicholas Horsfall, "Illusion and Reality in Latin Topographical Writing," G&R 32 (1985) 197-208.
151. I. Di Iorio, "Virgilio e l'Abruzzo," PESCARA 89-93.
152. Roland Mayer, "Geography and Roman Poets," G&R 33 (1986) 47-54.
153. G. Raepsaet, "Achille et Penthesilée dans la céramique sigillée augustéenne," Latomus 44 (1985) 841-6.
154. F. Serafini, "Ricerca sul podere della famiglia di Virgilio," CALVISANO 45-55.
155. Erika Simon, "Vergil und die Bildkunst," Maia 34 (1982) 203-17.

The Bimillenary celebrations excited renewed interest in the circumstances of Vergil's death at Brundisium and his burial at Naples. His Cisalpine homeland was equally appealing, however elusive the actual environs. Binder's study of Vergil's aetiological technique and its relevance to Augustan scholarship is a brief summons to continuing research. Castagnoli cautions that Vergil's topography is subject to poetic metamorphosis and poetic license. Similarity to identifiable sites and monuments is purely coincidental. However, Castagnoli is able to align the recent excavations of the Temple of Apollo Palatinus with the Pompa Triumphalis of A. 8.714-28. Dolç reviews contemporary attitudes and uses in connection with the Campi Phlegraei and the Cumaean Sibyl. Grimal senses echoes of the Georgics and the Aeneid in the reliefs of the Ara Pacis. The theme of Earth is paramount. Horsfall discounts Vergil as traveller, observer, or explorer and argues that his legends and topographical details tend to derive from the copious pages of Varro and other relevant accounts. Vergil's geographical information cannot be treated as substantive pieces of information. His article highlights Lake Ampsanctus, Albunea and the African harbor (A. 1.159ff., which echoes G. 4.418ff). Di Iorio detects evocations of the Abruzzo in Vergil's writing. Mayer's study of geography and of recherché identifications of peoples and places reveals Callimachus, Apollonius Rhodius, and Theocritus as inspiration for the erudition. Vergil innovated with reference to recent military conquests. A list appears in B. H. Kennedy's school edition of 1876, pp. 545-54. Erika Simon marshals Vergil's descriptions of art works, sculptural, painted, textile, ivory, and metallic.

RELIGION AND PHILOSOPHY

156. O. Bianco, "Orfeo e l'oltretomba virgiliano," BRINDISI 273-84.
157. C. Casabo, "Algunes apreciacions més de tipus sentenciós a l'Eneida," BARCELONA 163-78.
158. F. Della Corte, "L'Eneide, conflitto fra due dee," BARCELONA 79-90.
159. Domenico Fasciano, "Il concetto di Fatum nell'Eneide," RCCM 26 (1984) 65-76.
160. Hans-Joachim Glücklich "Leidenschaft, Vernunft und der Sinn des Lebens. Vergils Aeneis als Schullektüre," Gymnasium 91 (1984) 40-60.
161. A. Grilli, "Pitagoreismo e non nella IV ecloga," BRINDISI 285-302.
162. A. Grilli, "Adesione o cultura? Aspetti della filosofia nelle 'Bucoliche'," Maia 35 (1983) 23-27.
163. R. J. Quiter, Aeneas und die Sibylle: Die rituellen Motive im sechsten Buch der Aeneis (Königstein 1984). Rev: K. Olstein, CW 79 (1986) 279-80.
164. A. de Rosalia, "Il lavoro nella poesia virgiliana," QCTC 1 (1983) 15-32.
165. Andrew Wallace-Hadrill, "The Golden Age and Sin in Augustan Ideology," Past & Present 95 (1982) 19-36.

Religion and philosophy tend to be somewhat undernourished in Vergilian scholarship. Some new advances and prospects have emerged in studies by Bianco, Glücklich, and Quiter. Orphism and Pythagorean doctrine and practice claim their due. Della Corte and Fasciano are concerned with Destiny, with Juno as protector of Greece and Carthage, and with Venus as Aeneadum genetrix. Quiter's concern with ritual aspects of Aeneas' descent excites fresh interest in the initiatory pattern of the catabasis. Quiter favors the tunnel at Baiae over the Cumaean grotto as inspirational source for Vergil, but the date is contested and the use obscure.

ROME AND AUGUSTUS

166. E. Adler, "The Invocation to the Georgics," Interpretation 11 (1983) 25-41.
167. F. M. Ahl, "The Rider and the Horse: Politics and Power in Roman Poetry from Horace to Statius," ANRW II. 32:1 (Berlin 1984) 40-110.
168. Karl Galinsky, "Recent Trends in the Interpretation of the Augustan Age," The Augustan Age 5 (1986) 22-36.
169. Karl Galinsky, "Vergil and the Formation of the Augustan Ethos," Atti del Congresso Mondiale Scientifico su Virgilio I (Milano 1984) 240-54.
170. Barbara K. Gold, ed., Literary and Artistic Patronage in Ancient Rome (Austin 1982). Rev. Article: E. Badian, CP 80 (1985) 341-57.
171. P. Grimal, "Virgile artisan de l'empire romain," CRAI (1982) 748-60.
172. D. Massaro, "Virgilio poeta della pace," QuadFoggia 2-3 (1982-83) 113-30.
173. Andrew Wallace-Hadrill, "Propaganda or Dissent? Augustan Moral Legislation and the Love Poets," Klio 67 (1985) 180-84.
174. Tony Woodman and David West (eds.), Poetry and Politics in the Age of Augustus (Cambridge 1984). Rev: Arthur F. Stocker, Vergilius 31 (1985) 84-5.

Adler distinguishes between the prophet of an Empire to come and the partisan of the emerging Principate, and prefers the former for Vergil. Ahl makes an important contribution to the likely impact of politics and the powers of governance on Roman Augustan poets and their successors. Ahl's argument and illustrations are cogent and revealing. Galinsky, in common with Regner (#129), encourages readers of Augustan literature to pay attention to historical contexts and timeless values. He discounts Rezeptionsaesthetik, suus cuique Vergilius, as subjective and ahistorical. His lecture to the Vergilian Congress to celebrate the Bimillennium of Vergil's death will be considered with the other contributions in the next bibliographical survey. Grimal speculates that Vergil's championing of Octavian in both the Eclogues and Georgics ensured that his death-wish to destroy the epic was rejected. Wallace-Hadrill's article on Augustan moral legislation relates to family and sexual relations, both factors in Vergil's epic conceptions.

VERGIL AND OTHER AUGUSTAN POETS

175. Janet P. Bews, "The Metamorphosis of Virgil in the Tristia of Ovid," BICS 31 (1984) 51-60.
176. N. B. Crowther, "C. Cornelius Gallus. His Importance in the Development of Roman Poetry," ANRW II.30:3 (1983) 1622-48.
177. H. MacL. Currie, "Horace, Odes 2.1.29-36, and Virgil, Aeneid 1.459-69," LCM 10 (1985) 110-11.
178. Francesco Della Corte, "Tibullo II.5 e l'Eneide," Maia 36 (1984) 247-54.
179. William H. Fitzgerald, S. J., "Firewalking on Soracte: A Vergilian Note," Vergilius 31 (1985) 59-60.
180. Hartmut Froesch, Dichter und Staatsmacht. Vergil, Horaz, Ovid, und Augustus. (Frankfurt 1984).
181. Jasper Griffin, "Augustus and the Poets: Caesar qui cogere posset," Fergus Millar & Erich Segal (eds.), Caesar Augustus: Seven Aspects (Oxford 1984) 189-218.
182. E. J. Kenney, W. V. Clausen (eds.), The Cambridge History of Classical Literature, Vol. 2, Part 3: The Age of Augustus (London/New York 1982) (pb 1983). Rev: J. Butrica, EMC 29 (1985) 183-5.
183. John T. Kirby, "Vergilian Echoes in Horace Carm. 4.12: A Computer Study," Vergilius 31 (1985) 30-9.
184. Friedman Kühnert, "Augusteische Dichtung und Dichtung der Augusteischer Zeit," Klio 67 (1985) 118-29.
185. G. Petersmann, "Cornelius Gallus und der papyrus von Qasr Ibrim," ANRW II. 30:3 (1983) 1649-55.
186. Kenneth Quinn, "The Poet and His Audience in the Augustan Age," ANRW II. 30:1 (1982) 75-180.
187. David West, "Orpheus and Eurydice," JACT Review 4 (1986) 7-11.
188. James Zetzel, "Recreating the Canon: Augustan Poetry and the Classical Past," Critical Inquiry 10 (1983) 83-105.

Bews assesses Vergilian traits in Ovid's Tristia; the most significant echoes occur in Book 1; they diminish in the successive books and almost evaporate in Book 5. They impart shape, dimension, resonance and depth of feeling to Ovid's lines. Fitzgerald associates A. 11, 785-90, and Pliny, N. H. 7, 2, 19 and Silius Italicus, Punica 5, 175-8 with Horace's Soracte Ode to dispel the ode's seeming discontinuity. Froesch provides a textbook of selections. Kirby demonstrates, with computer assistance, that the language of Horace, Carm. 4, 12 is distinctly Vergilian and so constitutes a bond between the ode and the poetry of Vergil. But the internal evidence, of diction and imagery, does not support an identification of Horace's "Vergil" with the poet Vergil. West shows that Ovid (Met. 10) made no effort to parody Vergil, or to compete with or criticize his predecessor.

STYLE, LANGUAGE, METRE

189. J. Closa, "L'element celtic a l'obra de Virgili," BARCELONA 109-118.
190. L. Colucci, Strutture sintattiche e stilistiche in Virgilio. Il clamor caelo. Corso di letter. lat. (1981-1982) (Chieti 1982). Rev: Squillante Saccone, BStudLat 12 (1982) 256-8.
191. Fabio Cupaiuolo, "Alcune osservazioni sull'esametro delle Georgiche di Virgilio," BStudLat 15 (1985) 3-17.
192. J. Dangel, "Les enjambements dans l'Énéide: lecture syntactique et incidences métriques," Latomus 44 (1985) 72-100.
193. John Duhigg, "Smooth Hexameters: Accident or Design?," Classicum 12 (1986) 14-6.
194. Daniel H. Garrison, The Language of Virgil: An Introduction to the Poetry of the Aeneid. (New York, Berne, Frankfurt-am-Main 1984).
195. Frances McLean Geekie, Repetition in Vergilian Simile Passages: A Study of Verbal Repetition in the Similes and Surrounding Text in Books 1-6 of Vergil's Aeneid. MA Thesis (University of Ottawa, 1982).
196. Nicholas Horsfall, "Virgil and the Inscriptions: A Reverse View," LCM 11 (1986) 44-5.
197. J. Juan, "Ambigüitat i obscuritat, elements d'estil en Virgili," BARCELONA 259-63.
198. G. Nussbaum, Vergil's Metre, a Practical Guide to Reading Latin Hexameter Poetry (Bristol 1986).
199. Józef Korpany, "Furor in der augusteischen Literatur," Klio 67 (1985) 248-57.
200. W. Moskalew, Formular Language and Poetic Design in the Aeneid (Leiden 1982). Rev: E. Kraggerud, Gnomon 57 (1985) 226-9.
201. Edgar C. Reinke, "Onomatopoetic Alliteration in Vergil's Aeneid," CB 62 (1986) 37-42.
202. P. Salat, "Un maître-mot chez Virgile, l'adjectif ingens," ALMarv 10 (1983) 71-84.

Closa detects Celtic elements in Vergil's description of nature, his evocation of celtic peoples (cf. A. 8.655-62) and in vocabulary. For Duhigg, smoothness equates with the absence of interverbal consonantal clashes (A. 1.1; 2.1; 10.1; 11.1; 12.1). The effect is one of greater euphony. Its appearance in opening lines seems the result of chance rather than deliberate design. Garrison's beginner's Latin textbook is designed for three weeks and provides A. 1 lines 1-207 as basis for a taste of unedited Latin. Horsfall studies the impact on Vergil of the manner and language of inscriptions known to him (A. 7.1ff.; 11.57f.; B. 4.7; A. 11.43, and 12.648). Horsfall's samples are arguably epigraphic in origin. Reinke offers a representative selection of alliterative lines in A. 1-6. Salat studies instances of the use of ingens in the Georgics and Aeneid, and finds an analogue in the use of immanis and immensus.

VERGIL AND EARLIER WRITERS

203. J. Avilés, "Catul i Virgili," BARCELONA 179-97.
204. Alessandro Barchiesi, La Traccia del modello. Effetti omerici nella narrazione virgiliana (Pisa 1984).
205. V. Bejarano, "Ennio en Virgilio," BARCELONA 119-24.
206. M. Bettini, "L'ape e il pipistrello. Una similitudine di Virgilio ed una di Omero," BRINDISI 345-59.
207. L. Landolfi, "Virgilio, Lucrezio e la Laudes veris," QUCC 20 (1985) 91-109.
208. A. Marastoni, "Virgilio nella lettura agricola romana," CALVISANO 81-95.
209. M. Paschalis, "Notes on the First Proem of the Georgics in Its Relation to the Proems of Lucretius," Hellenika 35 (1984) 143-6.
210. S. Sanvitale, "Assonanza di poesia. Arianna e Didone," PESCARA 190-215.
211. M. K. Thornton, "The Adaptation of Homer's Artemis-Nausicaa Simile in the Aeneid," Latomus 44 (1985) 615-22.
212. John Van Sickle, "Homer, Apollonius, Theocritus, Virgil," Atti del Convegno Mondiale Scientifico di Studi Virgiliani 1 (Milan 1984) 124-47.

Avilés traces Catullian influence on Vergil (structure, vocabulary, and metrics). Bettini treats A. 6.703 and Homer, Od. 24.1ff. Landolfi explores coincidences and contrasts in Vergil and Lucretius. Marastoni marshals Vergil's precursors and contemporaries in agricultural writings. Sanvitale matches vocabulary usage in Catullus 64 and Aen. 4. Thornton observes that Vergil compares Dido with Venus, not Diana. Nausicaa (likened to Artemis) is a passing sexual arousal for Odysseus, whereas Dido is the object of a torrid passion, more suitable to the realm of Venus. Van Sickle's essay will be reviewed with the remainder of the volume next year. Wright regards Eclogue 1 as preface to the book, with programmatic intentions: to provide a distinctively Roman pastoral which derived from Theocritus and Callimachean principles.

ANCIENT AUTHORS AFTER VERGIL

213. M. Goodfellow, "Purple Passages from the Second Georgic in Tacitus," PACA 17 (1983) 100-107.
214. Marianne Sussex Goodfellow, The Georgics in Antiquity (Diss. University of Ottawa 1984).
215. Johannes Irmischer, "Vergil in der griechischen Antike," Klio 67 (1985) 281-5.
216. Y. Nadeau, "Traduction and Censors (Juvenal 2, 159; 8, 17; 11, 31: Virgil A. 6. 697ff)," LCM 10 (1985) 44-8.
217. David Sansone, "Orpheus and Eurydice in the Fifth Century," C&M 36 (1985) 53-64.

Goodfellow finds antecedents for Tacitus' description of amber (Germ. 45, 5) in G. 2.116-22. Her doctoral dissertation traces the literary fortunes of the Georgics in Latin poets and prose authors, from Horace to Macrobius.

ANCIENT LIVES

218. Giorgio Brugnoli (ed.), Foca: vita di Virgilio (Testi e Studi di Cultura, 1) (Pisa 1984).

219. Heinrich Naumann, "125 Jahre 'Vita Donatiana' des Vergil," ET SCHOLAE ET VITAE (Friedrich Maier, Werner Suerbaum, eds) (München 1985) 33-40.

Brugnoli supplies an introduction, text, translation and commentary of Phacas' Life; Naumann traces scholarly reaction to the Donatus Life for more than a century.

MANUSCRIPTS

220. Robert E. Gaebel, "Roman Cursive Influence in the Text of the Georgics," RhMus 128 (1985) 305-13.

221. G. C. Alessio, "Appunti sulla diffusione manoscritta di Virgilio nel Mezzogiorno d'Italia (secc. XIII-XV)," BRINDISI 361-81.

222. James E. G. Zetzel, Latin Textual Criticism in Antiquity (New York 1981). Rev: J. N. Grant, Phoenix 39 (1985) 86-8.

Gaebel traces confusion of cursive letters in early stages of the textual transmission of the Georgics, and sheds light on the early textual history of the Vergilian corpus.

COMPUTER STUDIES

223. Wilhelm Ott, Metrische Analysen zu Vergils Aeneis Buch VIII (Materialien zu Metrik und Stilistik, 18) (Tübingen 1985)

224. Wilhelm Ott, Metrische Analysen zu Vergils Aeneis Buch IX (Materialien zu Metrik und Stilistik, 19) (Tübingen 1985).

225. Wilhelm Ott, Metrische Analysen zu Vergils Aeneis Buch XI (Materialien zu Metrik und Stilistik, 20) (Tübingen 1985).

VERGIL AND LATER AGES

226. Christopher Baswell, "The Medieval Allegorization of the Aeneid: MS Cambridge, Peterhouse 158," Traditio 41 (1985) 181-237.

227. Heinz Berthold, "Das 'klassische' Zitat. Versus notissimi der Augusteischen Epoche," Klio 67 (1985) 304-14.

228. B. Bilinski, "Echi virgiliani nell' opera copernicana De revolutionibus. Copernico tra Virgilio. Celio Calcagnini e Pontano," BRINDISI 247-72.

229. B. J. Bono, Literary Transvaluation: From Vergilian Epic to Shakespearean Tragicomedy (Berkeley, Los Angeles, London 1985). Rev: N. Gross, CW 79 (1986) 285; Michael C. J. Putnam, Vergilius 31 (1985) 85-7.

230. Nancy Ruth Bodvik, The Epic Quest: Rimbaud and Vergil's Aeneid. Dissertation, University of Arizona, 1985. DA 46 (1985) 1623A.
231. Douglas Brooks-Davies, Pope's Dunciad and the Queen of Night. A Study in Emotional Jacobitism (Manchester 1985).
232. Hanne Carlsen, A Bibliography to the Classical Tradition in English Literature (Anglica et Americana, 21) (Copenhagen 1985)
233. J. Closa, "Vergilius, poeta Latinus. Virgili en els humanistes hispànics," BARCELONA 153-61.
234. Maria Clytowska, "Die augusteischen Dichter in Polen im 16. Jahrhundert," Klio 67 (1985) 291-4.
235. A. Dal Santo, "Vergilius qualis vates demigrantium et miserorum appareat in nunnulis poematis Pascolianis," Latinitas 34 (1986) 29-38.
236. Andrew V. Ettin, Literature and the Pastoral (New Haven & London 1984). Rev: John E. Rexine, Vergilius 31 (1985) 89-91.
237. Andrew Fichter, Poets Historical: Dynastic Epic in the Renaissance (New Haven 1982).
238. Bruce Fogelman, "'Pan With Us.' The Continuity of the Eclogue in Twentieth-century Poetry," CML 6 (1986) 109-25.
239. M. Granada, "Virgilio y la Theologica poetica en el humanismo y en el platonismo del Renacimiento," Faventia 5 (1983) 41-64.
240. Bruce A. Graves, "Wordsworth and the Language of Epic: The Translation of the Aeneid," SPh 83 (1986) 261-85.
241. O. B. Hardison, "Tudor Humanism and Surrey's Translation of the Aeneid," SPh 83 (1986) 237-60.
242. H. H. Huxley, "Regina Bellatrix," Vergilius 31 (1985) 61.
243. Craig Kallendorf, "Boccaccio's Dido and the Rhetorical Criticism of Virgil's Aeneid," SPh 82 (1985) 401-15.
244. Craig Kallendorf. Latin Influence on English Literature from the Middle Ages to the Eighteenth Century: An Annotated Bibliography of Scholarship. 1945-1979 (New York 1982). Rev: D. N. Yates, CW 79 (1985) 67.
245. A. Khueny, Valéry und Vergil. Die Übersetzung der Bucolica Vergils und ihr Einfluss auf das Gesamtwerk Valerys. Dissertation, University of Innsbruck, 1983.
246. M. Owen Lee, "The Exasperated Eagle and the Stoic Saint," The Opera Quarterly 2:4 (1984-85) 76-84.
247. R. and M. Lloyd, "Acrostichis Duplex," Vergilius 31 (1985) 82-3, 120.
248. Anthony Low, The Georgic Revolution (Princeton 1985).
249. M. Lukkainen, Untersuchungen zur morphematischen Transferenz im Frühdeutschen dargestellt an den Tegernseer Vergilglossen. Ann. Acad. Scienti. Fennicae. Diss. Hum. Litt. 32 (1982) (Helsinki).
250. A. Lunelli, "Il commento virgiliano di Pomponio Leto," BRINDISI 309-22.
251. Friedrich Maier, "Der Aeneis in Hermann Brochs 'Der Tod des Vergil'," ET SCHOLAE ET VITAE, Friedrich Maier, Werner Suerbaum, eds. (München 1985) 41-8.
252. C. Marangoni, "Il Virgilio dell' Aretino," Giorn. stor. della lett. it.(Torino) 160 (1983) 524-6.
253. J. Martínez Gázquez, "Virgilio y los tratados agrícolas hispano-árabes," BARCELONA 125-7.
254. J. L. Moralejo, "Sobre Virgilio en el alto medievo hispano," BARCELONA 31-51.

255. A. V. Nazzaro, "La IV Bucolica di Virgilio nell' antichità cristiana," Omaggio Sannita a Virgilio (San Giorgio del Sannio 1983) 46-84.
256. Louis Perraud, "Integrating Art and Music with Roman Literature in Translation," CW 79 (1986) 324-9.
257. Meyer Reinhold, Classica Americana: The Greek and Roman Heritage in the United States (Detroit 1984). Rev: Susan Ford Wiltshire, CW 79 (1986) 198-9.
258. Michael Roberts, "Paulinus, Poem 11, Virgil's First Eclogue, and the Limits of Amicitia," TAPA 115 (1985) 271-82.
259. Diana Robin, "Humanist Politics or Vergilian Poetics? (Filelfo's Odes 2.2 and 3.4)," Rinascimento 25 (1985) 101-25.
260. B. Scognamiglio, "Fortuna di Virgilio nel Novecento," Orpheus 6 (1985) 408-16.
261. C. P. Segal, "Literature and Interpretation: Conventions, History, and Universals," CML 5 (1984-85) 71-86.
262. Charles P. Segal, "Classics and Comparative Literature," MD 13 (1984) 9-21.
263. Steven Shankman, "J. V. Cunningham's Montana Pastoral and the Pastoral Tradition," CML 5 (1985) 293-300.
264. Werner Suerbaum, "Ein neuer Aeneis-Zyklus; Darkness Visible," Anregung 29 (1983) 1-25.
265. A. Vernet, "Virgile au moyen âge," CRAI (1982) 761-72.
266. J. L. Vidal, "La technique de composition du centon virgilien Versus ad gratiam Domini sive Tityrus (Anth. Lat. 719a Riese)," REAug 29 (1983) 233-56.
267. J. L. Vidal, "Christiana Vergiliana, I. Vergilius Eucharistiae cantor (Catalan)," BARCELONA 207-16.
268. Susan Ford Wiltshire, "Vergil, Allen Tate and the Analogy of Experience," CML 5 (1985) 87-98.

Baswell studies marginal notes and allegorical commentary prevalent among university circles in the 15th century. Brooks-Davies examines the influence of Vergil on Alexander Pope from the standpoint of didactic emphasis and epic rulers. Carlsen's Bibliography lists works published between 1900 and 1983. Dal Santo's study embraces Giovanni Pascoli's Nuovi Poemetti (1909). Fichter traces Vergilian influence in Renaissance epic poetry, from 1450-1600. Fogelman studies the bucolic genre, revitalized during the 20th century, and given a broader, often ironic, potential along with emotive intensity and breadth of awareness. Graves emphasizes that Wordsworth had an acute understanding of the Aeneid and a remarkable ability to preserve the nuances of Vergil's poetic style in his incomplete translation of the epic. Huxley provides another sample of his ingenious verse. Kallendorf shows that Boccaccio rejected Vergil's account of Dido in favor of the "historical" chaste Queen of Carthage. Boccaccio saw his account as more accurate and certainly more acceptable from the standpoint of morality. Owen Lee's article offers vivid testimony to the impact of Vergil's epic on Hector Berlioz, and on Les Troyens. The echoes of dactylic hexameters recur throughout the opera at decisive moments. The acrostich devised by Dr. and Mrs. Robert Lloyd is challenging and entertaining, as well as instructional. Low's Georgic Revolution examines English poetry between 1500 and 1700. Martínez Gázquez finds that Vergilian influence on hispano-arabic agricultural treatises is practically non-existent. Moralejo examines the influence of Vergil on Isidore of Seville and on Liber Glossarum. Perraud's topic explores the many faces of Dido, particularly in Purcell and Hector Berlioz, and offers valuable instruction and incentive to teachers. Roberts studies Paulinus' verse epistle to Ausonius and the translation of Christian values into the terms of Vergilian pastoral. So Paulinus tried to help Ausonius understand and accept his conversion. Robin indicates that Filelfo's Odes 2, 2 is modelled on Vergil's underworld and reverberates with echoes of Aeneid 6; Odes 3, 4 is Vergilian only in the proemium; elsewhere the world of epic yields to Horatian satire. Scognamiglio's article surveys the impact of Vergil on 19th century Germany, England, France, and Italy. Longfellow's conception of Nova Scotia as a New Troy is a token of the influence and eternity of Vergil. C. P. Segal's essay on Classics and Comparative Literature is required reading for any programmer or exponent. Shankman provides a critique of an anti-pastoral pastoralist who adopts details and precedents from Vergil. Suerbaum responds favorably to the cycle of illustrations provided by Barry Moser to the second edition of Mandelbaum's translation of the epic. Vernet's concise account of Vergil, from the 6th to the 15th century, explores the posthumous life of the poet, anthologies, imitations of the Eclogues, Georgics, and Aeneid and the high reputation of the poet's genius. Vidal provides an autopsy of the Vergilian cento which merges Christian pastoral with doctrinal and theological matters. Wiltshire studies affinities between the Kentucky poet and the Mantuan, and points to Vergil's influence on Allen Tate's three major poems: "The Mediterranean," "Aeneas at Washington," and "Aeneas at New York," and on his only novel, The Fathers.

Alexander G. McKay
31 July 1986
McMaster University